ROTBTFD The Walking Dead

by ThalioTP

Category: How to Train Your Dragon, Rise of the Guardians Genre: Drama, Horror
Language: English
Status: In-Progress
Published: 2015-10-28 14:28:42
Updated: 2016-03-31 13:37:56
Packaged: 2016-04-27 09:38:57
Rating: T
Chapters: 31
Words: 42,203
Publisher: www.fanfiction.net
Summary: ROTBTFD twd AU. The world is slowly dying, the dead are gaining power as time passes. The survivors are tested with mortal dilemmas, with days gone by their innocence are slowly being eaten by guilt, remorse, and anger. Follow the characters as they struggle to survive on a harsh world, where the only rule is to not die (Also includes Flashbacks.)(Fanart is now available.)

1. The Beginning

Hiccup lay motionless on the concrete floor, still snoring loudly. The abandoned store is now oozing a foul stench, some from the rotting food at the corner and some from the sweaty shirt Hiccup wore.

He rolled to his back, there were no air conditioner since the electricity went out.

He opened his eyelids slowly, looking at the dark ceiling. His head was now thinking about the heat, slowly reaching to his inner core.

The only source of light was there from the glass door that Hiccup himself had sealed up with planks of wood, he observed the room left and right.

Hiccup stood up, grunts as he saw his armpits was now flooding with sweat. He slowly reached to his plastic bottle on the shelves which was holding half a water in it, as his throat was humid again he could do the same activity he was doing for the past month.

Next to him stood a gun, a revolver with 6 bullets in it. Hiccup never had trouble dealing with Walkers before, when he always carry a butterfly knife up his back pocket.

There was a knock on the glass door, as rhythmical knocks. But Hiccup had to make sure, he already pointed the revolver at the door when a sound came.

"Hiccup! You in there? Its me!" The female voice said softly, Hiccup hurried to the door.

Once he unlocked the door, he slid it open. The sun reflects the blonde hair upon the girl, Astrid hurried herself inside as Hiccup pushed it closed again.

"Thanksâ€¦" She said, Astrid threw her backpack to the nearest desk and unloaded the contents "I've got more than usual, enough to get us for a few weeks. And this thingâ€¦"

She pulled out a necklace, diamond carved on the outside. She showed it to Hiccup "Pretty neat, huh? Its free compared to the old days."

Hiccup cannot believe his eyes "What else did you get?"

Astrid looked alarmed "Don't look at me like that. It doesn't waste any space in the bag."

"What else did you get, Astrid?" Hiccup said suspiciously.

"Nothing!" She replied angrily "Look, I know about the rule, okay? It's just a necklace Hiccup, I didn't have much time when four Walkers are closing in on me."

Hiccup's anger faded, he put the revolver back in place "Any news lately?"

Astrid fell silent, she seemed looking for a way to say it "We better leave town, Hiccupâ€¦"

"What? Why?" Hiccup raised his eyebrow.

"Iâ€¦ Er, there was Walkers, a lot of them. Not just the regular groups. I thinkâ€¦ I think its some kind ofâ€¦ A _herd_!" Astrid scratched the back of her hand "I saw them, from the office building window. There was just so many of them, even I could hear the moaning."

Hiccup looked alarmed, he ran to the gap on the planks so he could see. Blurry as it is, there were distant moaning and choking. As well as silhouettes of many, many limping people.

"GAH!" Hiccup jumped backwards with his heart beating fast, a Walker had appeared in front of him. Astrid quickly catch him before he fell, there were banging and scratching on the window. The sunlight were beginning to disappear as more and more Walkers began to press on it, too many Walkers.

Hiccup stood on his feet, heart still beating fast "To the back door Astrid, pack as many food as you can find. We need to get out of here, NOW!"

* * *

>Haven't been updating in a long time... Just came up to me...

2. The Archer

At the back of the store, Hiccup and Astrid both were standing near the back door. With their flashlight in hand they point it at the knob, and their backpacks filled with supplies.

"Ready?" Astrid said, she held the knob tightly.

Hiccup, withdrew his revolver from his parka jacket pocket. He steadied his gun and pointed it at the door, he took a glimpse at Astrid and nodded.

Astrid, with all her might pulled the rusting metal door open. The sunlight went everywhere, as well as Walkers. Two of them went limping around towards Hiccup, he shoot a bullet into one's head. Astrid drew out Hiccup's butterfly knife, and the tip went inside the other one's head.

Both Walkers went quickly dead, blood oozing from their scattered brains.

"Come on." Hiccup looked at Astrid "God knows how much heard that."

They peeked outside, the alley at the back of the shop were much quiet. Hiccup and Astrid gasped as they heard the window at the front of the shop were crashing and moaning of the undead filled the store, they locked the back door from the outside.

Hiccup quickly grabbed Astrid's arm, and took her along the alley. As far the eye can see, there were dead bodies everywhere rotting. And it seems like the walls began to cramp.

They found themselves at a fork, in front of them was a wired fence between two buildings. Walkers forcing themselves on each other, hands reaching out to Hiccup and Astrid while trying to knock it down.

"Where to go? Where to go?" Hiccup said to himself, left or right he thought.

"Right!" Astrid sped as she grabbed Hiccups arm and pull him right "You're too freaking slow, Hiccup!"

They both went past a corner, in front of them was a dead end building. The only way through was a small open window on top of them, they ill-stared at it long enough to realize they loud noise behind them.

"Let's go back." Hiccup said and Astrid followed him. But when he peeked around the corner, he saw the wired fence was now down making all the Walkers inside. Hiccup froze in place, Walkers closing in on them.

"Hiccup!" Astrid yelled, but Hiccup stayed silent as stone "HICCUP!"

She shook Hiccup so hard, he stumbled to his feet. Hiccup stood up quickly and gestured Astrid to follow him, he crouched under the window and positioned himself.

"Quick, I'll boost you up. Once you get inside, you pull me in!" Hiccup said, his hands ready to catch Astrid's foot.

Astrid look around, this was the only way out. Astrid gained speed and aimed for Hiccup, she kicked his hands and climbed to his shoulder. She was a few inches short to the window.

"I can't reach it!" She groaned.

Hiccup struggled to hold her in place, he saw Walkers turning around the corner. Heart beating fast, he took Astrid's leg and boost her up more.

"That's good, Hiccup! Just a little more!" Astrid cried.

Walkers were closing, those rotting mouths ready to feast on their fleshes. Moaning for hunger, limping forward. Hiccup stared hopelessly, there was nowhere out of this. He made Astrid drop a few inches.

When Astrid was shocked to dead, there was just a little more inches and they would get out of there.

But then a head popped out of the window, someone with a long bushy red hair reaching out to the. The yellow bandana wrapped around his head made him unrecognizable. Astrid just stare at it blankly.

"TAKE MY HAND, IDIOTS!" The feminine voice rang around the alley, loud enough for them to hear.

Astrid hesitated at first, but she grabbed the hand and climbed the wall. Hiccup looked up as Astrid and the stranger disappeared, he waited when Astrid went back with her hands to grab him.

Hiccup leaped through the air and took Astrid hands, she was having difficulty pulling him up. And another hand took one of Hiccup's arm, he kicked the brick wall to push from the Walkers under him.

As half of his body was half inside, he felt his shoulder was being pulled. He fell to the cold floor, cramping.

Hiccup took his time to get up, he was in a dark trashed office room where the only light source was the window. Astrid was leaning over him, while the stranger stood in front of them. Arrow pointing.

Hiccup and Astrid were both speechless.

"Any of ye lads got bit?" She commanded, both Hiccup and Astrid shook their heads.

"What's your names?" She asked again.

Hiccup stood his ground "My name is Hiccup, this is Astrid."

The stranger snorted under her bandana "What kind of sick mam name their sons 'Hiccup'?"

Hiccup felt offended, but answered by Astrid "It's not his real name, for safety measures."

"Alright. Then your name isn't Astrid then?" Said the stranger, putting down her compound bow.

"Noâ€¦ It's Astrid, just Astrid." Astrid said again.

The stranger looked confused "So this guy had idea of hiding his name for some reason, but you don't?"

"Pretty muchâ€¦" Hiccup said casually "Look, thanks for saving us, missâ€¦"

The stranger took off her covers, it was a girl about the same age as them. But unlike Hiccup her face was clean of freckles, instead a very dirty one with a thin scar across her left cheek.

"Meridaâ€¦" She said "Justâ€¦ Meridaâ€¦"

* * *

>New chap... As always, review...

3. The Plan

Merida strolled around the office room, picking up anything she could find. Tape, scissor, pencil, and other stationaries.

"Umâ€¦ Merida?" Hiccup went into the room.

"What?" She replied sharply, explored her hand inside a drawer cabinet.

"Should we be like, leaving? I mean, you heard about the herd of Walkers right?" Hiccup said haltingly.

Merida just snorted "Walkers? Nah, Roamers. Because they roam, get it?"

"Yes I get it." Hiccup replied, trying to hold down his rage "We need to get out of here! Right now, if we must?"

Merida didn't answer, she was looking for something.

"What are you looking for, again? Aren't you just wasting spaces in your bag?" Hiccup commented.

"If you think this is stupid, you have a small brain. I call this a plan, reuse this scissor as a knife, this pen as a hook if attached to a string, and this tape to tape the knife on a staff or something." Merida said coolly.

Astrid appeared behind Hiccup "Let's just leave her." She whispered.

Hiccup quickly followed Astrid to the next room, dusty windows lights the room dimly. It was almost night. He sat on the corner with Astrid, which was leaning to his shoulder.

"God, why does it have to be so hot?" Astrid moaned.

"Remember air conditioner?" Hiccup joked.

"Do I?" She laughed.

They took a moment of awkward silence, the ray of sunlight began to move as time pass. Merida came out of the room, and approached them.

"Alright, you want out? Ye can have it." She said "Come."

Hiccup raised his eyebrow "What are you planning to do?"

Merida walked downstairs to the bottom floor, she went to the door and suddenly stopped.

"You still have that gun?" Merida asked Hiccup, he nodded.

"Throw it away."

"What?" Hiccup raised his voice.

"It'll cause attention, my bows can do more silent. Here, I want you to hold this." She gave him a hatchet from her backpack.

"Wait. What should I do withâ€¦" Hiccup stuttered.

"I'll catch one, you hack it's head." Merida said before putting her hand on her knob. She swung the door open, a Walker was coincidentally standing on the porch. Merida grabbed the Walker's neck and slammed it to the floor, she slammed the door shut.

Hiccup felt a rising sickness on his stomach, his reflexes made him dug the hatchet to the brain without thinking. Astrid was already standing on the stairs again.

The blood from the Walker spurted everywhere near it, Hiccup left the hatchet to stick on the rotting head.

"Don't leave it there!" Merida said, she pulled out the hatchet and clean it with a piece of handkerchief "It'll get dirtyâ€¦"

Astrid gained her breath "Soâ€¦ What now?"

Merida stared at the Walker's body "Turn aroundâ€¦"

Astrid gave a raised eyebrow "What?"

Merida raised her hatchet arm on top of her head, she swung it downwards and what comes next made Hiccup held his stomach. The sound of crunching bones, the spluttering of the insides of a Walker. Astrid held her mouth tightly, Merida stopped.

"I told you to turn around, did I?" She said.

"Eeghâ€¦ What's the point of this?" Hiccup asked her slowly.

Merida just smirked, she dug her hands inside the guts "Ever noticed they never attacked each other? I have this sort-of-crazy-brilliant idea to make ourselves like them, like hiding our stench. Speaking of which, you smell Hiccup." Merida laughed, she took out a handful of flesh and rub it across her face and vest. Astrid was near to puking, and she was already looking away.

"Doesn't have to smuck every places, jacket and face should be fine. We can clean it up later if we found a river or lake, or any water." Merida added, she began to rub the insides on her vest "Just don't get it anywhere near your eye or lips."

Hiccup stared at her with disgust, he took a gulp of air "You tried this before?"

"No." Merida said casually.

"You're mental!" Astrid commented.

"I would say misguided ingenious." Merida replied, coolly "You two, go have fun."

Hiccup was already smudge himself in blood, jacket and face. Astrid however was either too scared to touch herself with Walker insides, which was understandable since it smelled like decaying meat. So Hiccup helped rub it on her face and her jacket from her backpack, meanwhile Merida was watching from the opposite wall.

"What is it with you two? What relationship are you guys in, anyway?" Merida pointed her arm to the both of them.

Astrid went pink, Hiccup got her back "Were couples, just that. Three weeks before all of this, if I could remember it enough." He said without looking at her, still focusing on Astrid "Why do you ask?"

"Oh nothing." Merida replied "Just some random question on the tip of my tongue."

The sun already set, they could hear moaning outside. Merida opened the door, the outside world awaits. She clutches her bow in one hand, an arrow in another ready to stab a Walker. Hiccup held Merida's hatchet while Astrid's shaking hand clutches a butterfly knife, figures of limping people roaming through the streets.

"Just. Keep. Calm." Merida whispered.

They walked in one row, through the streets full of Walkers. Time to time they bumped into any Walkers close to them.

Astrid was in the middle of the group, with the knife she armed herself. She looked around, she caught a glimpse of an opening "There!" She squeaked to the group.

Merida who was in the front looked to her left, there was an opening. She gestured her hand to them, they followed behind her.

Hiccup kept cautious, something cold touched his nose "It's raining!" He whispered. A few Walker's noticed.

"Just. Keep. Walking. Almost. There!" Merida called very softly.

Much more water hit their faces, they felt the blood was dripping down their faces. The Walkers are now groaning at them, looking right at them. With their noses in the air, they picked up their scent.

"Shit." Merida cursed "RUN!"

They sped and pushed away Walker's, but soon the road was more crowded. With their weapons lifted high, it bashed and scattered the brains of something nearby.

"COME ON!" Merida cried as she jogged and pushed and kicked and stabbed Walkers, Hiccup and Astrid were guarding each other. As they jumped to the side of the road and to the forest, far from the city. They gained distance, the moaning and the Walker's began to clear out of sight.

Hiccup rested his hand on a tree "We are never 'huff' doing that again." His lungs were burning.

Merida was on her back, lying on the soft grass "We did good, yes we did."

Astrid looked around "We should make a fire, its dark."

"Not here, first we leave our jackets." Merida said, opening her vest.

The rest of them did the same, as they clutches their backpacks to walk and venture on the forest, Hiccup looked behind "I like that jacket." He said softly.

Astrid chuckled and took him by the arm "Oh, come on. Get a grip, Hiccup."

4. The Forest

As the rain stopped Hiccup, Astrid and Merida approached the nearest river. They sat on the riverbank while resting under a tree.

"I'm gonna go wash, you coming?" Hiccup called.

"I'll go after you." Said Astrid, and with that he went to the river. Merida sat beside her, her bushy red hair sway in the oncoming breeze. While she crossed leg on the grass, sharpening her arrows, she caught a glimpse of Astrid who were watching Hiccup stripping his shirt on the distance.

"Lass?" Merida called, Astrid turned with a slight red.

"Yes?" Astrid asked suspiciously.

Merida hesitated to joke, the she said "Nothingâ€¦" She returned to cleaning her hatchet.

"I've been meaning to ask you." Astrid said, Merida raised an eyebrow "Where did you learn to use a bow?"

Merida didn't answer at once "I took archery classes, survived a long time because of her." She pointed at her bow "I was going to name her Eleanor, like my mam. What do ye think?"

"Your mom? I mean, it sounds beautiful." Astrid said with a hesitated smile.

Merida considered a bit, she nodded and began to stroke the handle of the bow. He look to Hiccup who were cleaning his armpits "Does he workout?"

Merida realized her mistake, when Astrid turned quickly "Why do you ask?"

"Justâ€¦ A random question." Merida lied wildly, she took a moment to look at Hiccup's visible abs.

Astrid looked at her sharply "So, do you have any friends?"

"No, not until you guys." Merida answered quickly.

"What do you do before all this?" Astrid asked again.

"Iâ€¦ What did _you _do?" Merida asked back.

Astrid glared at her "I was a college student, a gymnast enthusiast for more information." She bragged while folding her sleeves while she flexed.

"I was just a student, in Scotland." Merida said.

Astrid raised her eyebrow "What brings you to Berk?"

"Oh you knowâ€¦ The undead walking, and stuff. We, my family thought America would be safer considering, you know." She looked around to find an un-offensive way to say it "Considering all the citizens have guns in their home?"

Astrid snorted "We thought of that to sometimes, where's your family now?" But the she saw sadness in Merida's eyes "Oh. Shit. Sorry, Iâ€¦"

"When the plane full of passengers arrived at the airport, it was closed. That time I was carrying my bow, don't ask me why." Merida snapped "The passengers and my family stepped down, when those big groups you call herds, ambushed. I was to run away, we all split up. I saw most of us being torn to pieces, teeth sunken on their necks. I left everything behind, except my bow and arrow. Two days I roam with a very hungry stomach, it was hell Astrid. Then I saw a sanctuary, there wasn't anybody in there but no Roamers either. I was in luck that day, I had a match and a portable stove, which I lost by the way, canned food and stuff." Merida smiled to herself.

"What are you guys talking about?" Hiccup said as he went back in his shirt again.

"Nothing." Merida replied.

Astrid stood up and unbutton her shirt "I'm gonna go wash up. Hiccup," She called "Promise me you won't look." Hiccup nodded and sat in the place where Astrid had sat.

Hiccup and Merida had an awkward silent, then Merida said "Look." She pointed to the river.

Hiccup went blush as he saw Astrid with just her bra, then she turned and yelled "Don't look!" Hiccup chuckled to himself and he turned away, smirking.

As they sun began to set again in the forest, they already set up a tent made of bed sheet. While the fire dances in the shadows, they gathered around it.

"And that's how, I got my nickname." Hiccup tells Merida his real name at last, which was Henry. But refused to say his last name.

"Guys I was thinking, maybe we should stay here." Astrid said "I mean we haven't seen any Walkers for a day, I think it safe in the forest."

Merida quickly refused "There are other threats than Walkers, like human of course. They would kill for food these day, we need to move from place to place to gather food." She commented "Besides, I don't want more canned pea soup." They all laughed.

"I'll take first guard, you guys go to sleep." Hiccup said, he took his revolver and put it in his back pocket. As Merida and Astrid went in to sleep, Hiccup stayed awake for hours. Still keeping himself from sleeping, he yawned near the fire and his vision started to blur.

Hiccup dreamed himself on a Harley, he rode across the country with Astrid in the back seat. His sunglasses reflected the sun as they rode off to the sunset, that couldn't be right, Hiccup thought. His dream began to shook, everything went black. There were moaning along the dark corridor, which was lit by lamps. Hiccup froze in place, he felt the moaning began to rise and he began to panic. "HICCUP!" Someone yelled, when Hiccup turned there was horror. A wave of Walkers behind him, and under them was bloody Astrid screaming in agony. Hiccup tried to help, but more Walkers were coming in behind him, ignoring him and went to Astrid. Astrid's face began to vanish from sight, replaced by decaying bodies piling up on her. Hiccup didn't knew what happened next, as someone shook his shoulder, there was a hazy voice ringing louder and louder.

"HICCUP!" Merida screamed to his ear, shaking him greatly. Hiccup's eyes fell open, he looked around. Walker's surrounding him, Astrid shooting his revolver, Merida shaking him.

"Wuzzgoinon?" He mouthed. Then Merida threw him his backpack.

"Put it on! We have to get out of here!" Merida called.

"I'm out!" Astrid said, throwing her gun aside.

They sped, and fled from the camp. Walker's almost closing in, Hiccup was on his feet again.

"They must've followed us here!" Astrid said beside him.

When the safety of the fire was too far to look, they wandered into the forest of the night. Running for their life like they used to.

* * *

>I am pumped up for this fanfic, please review. I might be not updating in a while, still making a fan art and the fan-made TWD opening scene based on this :v

5. The Highway

"Hello Corona!" Merida greeted from the distance, standing above the cliff which looked down a great city surrounded by a massive amount of water "Dreamed of going here, did you know that?" She beamed on her friends.

"I've been there before." Hiccup said "I went out there on my summer vacation, you should've checked out the parade though."

Astrid stood beside him, looking at the distance "Let's see if there's some kind of canned foods, where's the way in?"

"See that bridge?" Merida pointed on the other side of the city "That's how we're going in."

Hiccup stared in disbelief "But that's on the opposite side from us! It would take ages to go around there!"

"Well if you want to swim the whole way, be my guess." Merida laughed, she went downhill first.

Hiccup stared blankly "Of all the people that could've saved us, it just have to be herâ€¦"

"You're expecting Superman?" Astrid joked.

"To be honest I was expecting someone who can build a boat." Hiccup chuckled "Or maybe dragons, they're awesome."

As they left the hill, Hiccup and Astrid both kept themselves from slipping away on the muddy grass. Merida however, was more insufferable to be around "Oy! Ye babies going down or what?"

When the ground began to flatten, they walked on foot again. Not long after that, they saw a highway in front of them. Merida leaped from the guard rail, the asphalt was way better than the mud.

There were a few cars that got abandoned on the highway, one had a little food and one bottle of beer while the other was ransacked, or bloodied, or having a Walker crawling from the front seat.

"I'll get it." Astrid suggested, Hiccup stood in place while she approached it. With a single swung from the knife, it was dead.

The road head on, nothing else but a long highway. When they all walked about half an hour, the road had been blocked with cars crashing into one another.

"Oh, greatâ€¦" Merida complained, she looked around when she thought of walking right through them "The days aren't going to get any younger, let's walk through."

When the group had entered the middle, the windows from the cars reflecting sunlight to their faces making it hotter. Hiccup swallowed another gulp of beer and put the bottle back in the backpack, he caught a glimpse of Astrid staring him. Hiccup felt pity and annoyed, so he gave the bottle to Astrid.

Merida was cautious while leading the group, bow in one hand and an arrow in the other. While the other arrows were sticking up on her backpack, it was quite obvious she had other things in it too.

"Could we rest up a bit?" Astrid said, wiping the shirt with her sleeve.

"Yeah, okay." Merida said too in exhaustion, she and Hiccup leaned against the same car.

While Hiccup wished for a breeze to hit him in the face as hard as it could, he looked to Astrid who were lending him the bottled beer. Hiccup took it immediately, he took a sip of sweet and spicy while it run down his throat.

"AAAARGH!" Merida's voice rang on his ear, he jumped aside as he saw Merida's leg was being grabbed by a crawling Walker under the car "Gerroff me! Hiccup!" She called.

Hiccup threw the bottle aside as he reached for the hatchet, aimed it downwards and swung it downwards to cut free Merida.

Merida stepped back a little "I'm okay! I'm okay! I'm not bitten, it hadn't bit meâ€¦" She gasped for breath.

"Uh, guys?" Astrid said with a trembling voice, she looked at a group of Walker's closing in on them as they heard Merida's scream.

Hiccup grabbed Merida's arm and told her to climb up the car, he and Astrid did the same. As they all stand high above ground, surrounded by Walker's from all direction.

"Hack the nearest one's head." Hiccup commanded "Merida?"

"Aye?" Merida looked at him.

"Use your bow, there's too many for us to kill the nearest. You get the furthest, got it?" Hiccup pointed.

"Yeah, yeah okayâ€¦" Merida said, pulling back the string. When the sound of an arrow being released, it went through one Walker's head and to the one behind it.

Hiccup and Astrid both sunken their weapons at the ones gathering near the car, when more began to appear the adrenaline pumped through their chests. Another one gone, and another one gone, and another one bites the dust.

Merida shot another arrow all across the highway, bodies began to pile against one another near the car where Hiccup and Astrid attacked wildly.

"Keep it up!" Hiccup yelled.

Merida was murmuring a song and fired an arrow every time she reached a beat, Astrid however was the one who seemed to have deep hatred for Walkers as she mass murdered them more than Hiccup and Merida had.

Time passed, everything was calm. They were all dead, Hiccup, Astrid and Merida all exchanged looks. They burst into a cheering noise, punching the air above them.

"Were awesomeâ€¦" Merida called as she began picking up her arrow.

"We know, you said that three minutes ago." Hiccup joked as he helped her pick them up too.

"Well it's what we are, right?" Astrid said, helping Merida and Hiccup. She handed them over with Hiccup as they all wiped their eyebrows, the sun had reached it top spot.

"It's getting hotter." Merida stared at the sun under her arm "Shall we go now then?"

They all nodded, and began to head for the bridge again. The bridge was now visible, but the cars is still blocking every path. Once or twice they had to kill a Walker, it was now normal to them. Plus, Hiccup is now felt grateful having Merida around.

They all began to cramp as the cars began to damp and the bridge was already began to fall down.

"Well, now we know what stopped those cars." Merida sighed, staring at the gap between the bridges.

"Now what?" Astrid asked.

Merida hesitated "No way we jumped to the other side, better go find another place to loot then."

Then Hiccup patted her shoulder "Look!"

Merida and Astrid stared on the city, they stared at it long enough until they saw the thing Hiccup was pointing. Up in the sky, was a flying helicopter.

6. The Suspense

"The. Fuck." Merida stared in bewilderment.

Nobody said a single word for a moment, the helicopter was going deeper into the city. The towers began to hide it, everyone seemed to panic a little.

"We need to cross!" Hiccup said, he looked down on the cold watery depths under the gap "Question is how?"

Astrid went left and right, she looked around "Maybe, uh, maybe we could jump. It's not that far, right?" She looked down on the gap, then to the next bridge.

"No, let's not risk it." Merida said in panic, she was uncontrollably impatient. She looked to the next bridge, heart beating fast. Then she looked behind her, a yellow school bus in the distance "I've got a plan, you wouldn't like it."

"What?" Hiccup and Astrid said together.

"See that school bus?" Merida pointed "One of us have to drive to the gap, and it seems long enough to build a bridge across."

Astrid stared blankly "Wait, you're planning to drive IN to the gap?"

"Actually, that could work." Hiccup said "Help me clear out these cars." And with that he approached the nearest car, break its window, released the handbrake and he began to push it to the gap "Come on! The day aren't going to get younger!"

Astrid and Merida hurried to help him, they cleared the road one by one and threw it to the gap. With all their might, sweat by sweat they began to reach up to one. Hiccup looked up while standing near the last car, the helicopter was gone, probably landed on the city.

"Watch out!" Astrid yelled as she ran to him with her knife, Hiccup jumped backwards as he thought she was going to attack him. She sunk her blade to the nearby approaching Walker, she pushed the head from the blade tip.

Merida stood beside them, she pulled her bow ready to attack "We got more incoming!"

Beyond them was more Walker's incoming, not as many as the last one but they were trapped between the gap and the Walkers.

"Help! This is the last one!" Hiccup cried, with his hand pushing the back of the car. Astrid and Merida went beside him and pushed, they threw it into the gap. With the loud splash the last car was gone, they turned to look back at the school bus, but the Walker's already surrounding it.

"Cover me." Hiccup said to Merida, she and Astrid exchanged looks.

"HICCUP WAIT!" Astrid cried, but Hiccup had already running towards the herd. He swung his hatchet to the nearest Walker, he missed and hit its lower jaw. The Walker began to make a lurching sound as his mouth was literally hanging, Hiccup strike again, refusing to miss.

Another one grabbed his left arm, Hiccup tried to shake it off. But an arrow went through its head, Merida sprinting towards clutching her bow.

"You stay back, I'll go andâ€¦" Merida said but Hiccup cut her.

"No, you need to stay with Astrid. You had a long range weapon, shoot the furthest." Hiccup replied strictly before he began to run towards the school bus "Just do it!"

Merida hesitated to argue, but she did what he said. Astrid went besides her "He's going to do it, isn't he?"

"You take the nearest." Merida ordered, Astrid stared at Hiccup in the distant. She tried to tell herself he was going to be okay.

Hiccup, managed to dodge all the Walkers and jumped into the bus. One Walker had succeeded to grab his shirt, he held one of the seats tightly preventing to let go. Other Walkers heard his cry of agony, they too begin reaching for him. Hiccup desperately tried to pull him up, he felt a searing pain on his ankle when he saw a Walker was chewing on his left leg.

He saw the door handle, he leaped forward resulting in one of his sleeve getting ripped. Hiccup slammed the bus door, he pushed against it as several Walkers began banging on it. He withdrew his hatchet from his back pocket, and put it between the two handle.

Hiccup stepped back from the door, he saw silhouettes of Walkers on the other side of the dirty glass door. He heard a yell from the outside, Hiccup hurried to the front.

Around him he saw dead rotting bodies of children, five of them with contents of their heads blown away. He sprinted out of the scene to the driver's seat, but the seat was taken by another dead body with flies flying above his half blown face. Beside him stood a pump shotgun, shells scattered all over the floor.

Hiccup threw the driver aside, he coughed with disgust. He looked outside, Astrid and Merida stood side by side. Merida seemed to be running out of arrows and saved one to stab a Walker, Astrid stood her ground and picking up the ones that are near her. They were walking back step by step, as more Walker's drawing in.

Hiccup had to hurry before the Walkers pushed them to the gap, he saw the key to the bus was still there. He started the engine times and times, but it had to die out again. Most of the Walker's distracted by the noise, they began to surround the bus.

The engine fired, the pistons began to roar. He sped to the gap, driving over any Walker in his way. Hiccup saw he had drove passed Merida and Astrid, he took a leap into the gap. The head of the bus went in first, Hiccup prayed and prayed. The head of the bus hit the other side of the bridge, and got stuck between the gap.

Merida and Astrid saw horror in each other's faces, the bus had done its job but the other side of the bridge was cracking and breaking.

"RUN!" Merida yanked Astrid's arm, they jumped on the top side of the bus which acted like a bridge on the gap.

When they safely reached the other side, Astrid screamed "HICCUP!"

The bridge was breaking, Hiccup was banging his hands inside the driver seat screaming for help. Astrid began to panic "Quick! Help me break the glass!" Astrid tried breaking it with the handle of her knife, which resulted in cracks.

Merida scraped a piece of asphalt and began pounding it to the window, the ground began to crack and the bus was sliding of the edge. Merida pounds even harder, Astrid was in panic she had bleed her palm.

Hiccup was yelling stand back in a hoarse voice, he was holding a shotgun and he punched the window with the stock. The glass shattered everywhere, Merida and Astrid both held Hiccup's each arm. They pulled him out just before the bridge edge was breaking down, and the bus fell in to the lake. Several Walkers on the other side fell too, but they kept walking forward making more and more to fall down.

Hiccup, Astrid, and Merida was all sitting in the ground. Bruises all over them, Hiccup who were holding a shotgun in his arm was breathing heavily.

"Can you get up?" Astrid said while sitting crouching next to his shoulder, almost crying with worry.

Hiccup rolled to his stomach, and tried to stand up again. But something was hurting his ankle "My ankle's twisted, pretty bad." He said softly with obvious pain.

Astrid took his left arm and carried him so he could walk, Merida did the same with his right arm. But Hiccup suddenly fallen to the ground again, he shivered and sweating.

"Hiccup?! HICCUP!?" Astrid cried, tears began to drop from her eye "Merida, help me carry him. Mâ€¦ Merida?"

Merida's eyes was fixed upon Hiccup's ankle "He's bitâ€¦" She said in horror.

Astrid looked confused on her lighting-struck face "Wâ€¦ What? I don't understand, Meridaâ€¦"

Merida had lost her grip, she swooped down on his leg and rolled up his jeans "LOOK! He's bit Astrid! He's going to die!" She snapped, looking on the bite mark. Merida herself had made the hardest decision in her life, accepting for Hiccup to die.

Astrid shook her head in grief "No. No! It couldn't be! It's just-it's justâ€¦ He can't be!" She looked at Merida for signs of a joke, which was too good to be true.

Merida said nothing, she looked at Astrid with a lot of remorse. Then she turned away, refusing to look at her.

* * *

>New chap... Let me know what you guys think... Please review...

7. The City

Astrid was now in purgatory, nothing she had ever lose had been this painful. The two voices inside her head was in a never ending battle.

I won't let him turn!

He is going to die!

I could cut of his leg.

That would only hurt him more!

But I can't let him turn!

You have no choice!

And with that she was out of her head, into the real world. Facing down on Hiccup, she had been crying so much and she hadn't noticed. She was going to lean on his mouth, hoping for a kiss. But as she stopped just before they touched their noses, she felt a warm hand on her cheek.

"Don't kissâ€¦" Hiccup smiled in a hoarse voice "Just leave meâ€¦"

And with that, Astrid had snapped. There is no way she would let him turn, no matter what.

"Astrid, what're youâ€¦" Merida croaked.

Astrid's eyes began to blank, Hiccup's hatchet she had took from his back pocket had been lifted high. She wasn't thinking anything else than _Don't let Hiccup turn. Don't let Hiccup turn._

She swung the hatchet down fast enough to go through the flesh and bone, her head was now ringing in weird noises. Screams, and gasps. She looked down, Hiccup's left feet had been successfully amputated. The blood isn't stopping.

Merida held her hands near her mouth, thunder-struck.

"Merida give me your bandana!" Astrid snapped, Merida however was too shocked.

Astrid leaped to her and took the bandana herself from Merida's pocket, she turned back to Hiccup which was now lay unconscious.

"HICCUP!" Astrid cried, hurried herself as she bandaged his amputated leg and clean it with the water left on her backpack "Don't die, please don't die."

The wound was covered and cleaned, Astrid looked back to Merida.

"Help me carry him." Astrid ordered, she lift unconscious Hiccup by the arm "NOW!"

Merida had no other choice, she too wish Astrid's decision had worked. She hurried to carry Hiccup on his other arm, they slowly carried limping Hiccup across the bridge. They carried him while careful so he wouldn't fell again.

"Stopâ€¦" Said a female voice.

Astrid and Merida both looked up to see who it is, they held Hiccup tightly. On the distant road, stood a girl who pointed a 67 GP machine gun at them. The wind blows her light bright blond hair, her tanktop and skinny jeans reveals her feminine curves.

When the sunset was right behind her, it was hard to tell the face.

"Please help us! We have an injured andâ€¦" Astrid said as she walked a few steps forward, but right in front of her a bullet missed her leg just two inches.

"I said stop." The girl said sharply.

Merida was boiling with rage "We have an injured you dipshit!"

The girl said nothing, machine gun still pointing at them.

"Merida, you had any arrows left?" Astrid whispered.

"I got spare in my backpack." Merida replied quietly "Are we going to fight her?"

"Not yet." Astrid glared at the girl, she noticed something else in the buildings around her. Many faceless people, man and women were aiming her beyond the windows. Eyes in the scope of a gun, fingers in the trigger.

"I seeâ€¦" Astrid replied shortly to the girl "You have snipers surrounding us, how many?" She asked calmly.

"18." The girl replied, her face began to appear "And me."

"Help usâ€¦ We saw that helicopter, we need help!" Astrid said.

Two more people appeared behind her, they were saying something to the girl. She nodded and the two men approached Astrid and Merida, one man points an M16 at them while the other one who had a scar face circled around them.

Astrid kept cautious, then they turned to the girl "They're clear!" Cried the man.

The girl lowered her gun, she too approached them. The girl gestured to the snipers, they all disappeared from the windows.

The girl's face was round, and was pretty young compare to the men. She held out a hand so Merida and Astrid could shake it "Hi, my name's Rapunzel. Don't ask why I have that name, my mom likes children books." She waited for someone to shook her hand, but then she realized "Oh, right, sorry. Stabbingtons!"

She commanded her two men to carry Hiccup, but Astrid denied "Woah! Woah! Woah! You can't just take him!"

"I can assure you he will be okay, we will take you to the camp where the boy will be fixed up. Maybe a peg-leg if you ask me." The girl assured her, Astrid had no choice she would not start a conflict with the person who can command anyone to kill anytime. The two men carried Hiccup by the arm, and walked away.

"Wait, camp?" Merida asked "How many people is there?"

Rapunzel scratched the back of her head "I dunno, last time I checked it was nearly two hundred."

Merida stared in bewilderment, but Astrid went ahead of her "I want to talk to the leader."

Rapunzel showed a little sign of surprise "I can't. Not yet, I still don't know who you are."

"Understandable." Merida said softly, but she caught a murdering glimpse in Astrid's eyes.

"What about the helicopter?" Astrid asked.

"Oh! You noticed? Yeah, we just got to power that thing last week. We used that to go from places to places, we just had gone to one city today to pick up supplies. Come, I'll show you." Rapunzel smiled and gestured her hand to follow.

Astrid was somewhat surprised by Rapunzel, she thought her as dangerous for a second but now she was like a very happy little kid. Seeing Rapunzel skipped all through the way, was awkward for Astrid and Merida.

"Soâ€¦ Uh, Rapunzel?" Merida asked awkwardly.

"Hmm?" Rapunzel replied.

"How does the helicopter work again?"

"I actually don't know, I've never been to one before. Can't wait though!" She giggled.

Merida nodded curtly and went to Astrid "Can you believe her? And I thought _she_ was the leader. Astrid?"

Astrid gotten silent, she was looking at her feet. Merida shook her briefly "Yo, ye okay? You zoned out there for a second."

"What? Oh, yeah, I did. I was just thinking about Hiccup, if I did the right thing or not." She said with concern in her voice.

"For a second there I thought you were a psychopath," Merida said light-heartedly "But in this world that's a good thing, Hiccup survived because of you Astrid! Even I couldn't do shit about it."

"Right, thanks Mer." Astrid smiled back.

"Ha, ha. Please don't call me Merâ€¦." Merida laughed grimly.

"We're here!" Rapunzel called to them, they arrived at the center of the town. Surrounded by apartments, several window light dimly. But what distracts them the most was the people, they seemed to be partying at a giant bonfire in the center. The only light source everywhere was only that, Astrid and Merida's jaw dropped.

Rapunzel smirked "Welcome to Corona."

8. The Life

Hiccup was staring into blackness, he felt his body was drifting in water. He was breathing but very slowly, careful not to suck some of the water. He was blank in his mind, he did not know what to think about. He remembered being bitten, but that was it. Was he dead? Is death peaceful as he imagined now?

The scene dissolved, he was sitting in a hard object. His eyes was still shut beneath his arms, but something very loud rang on his ear. It was very familiar, as if it was his twelfth grade school bell had rang again.

He raised his head up, eyes still weary. There were people around him, old friends. He was back to school again, Hiccup was confused.

He saw people settling around him as if there was no worry in their faces, where are the Walkers?

Hiccup heard a loud tap from the front of the room, he saw the teacher, Gobber had tapped his hand on the whiteboard.

"You lot had been back this year, dincha?" Gobber said, he was a hunchbacked man who had a very funny accent "But cho' should've known that, today's semester will be harder than last year."

Everyone mumbled a bit, Hiccup remembered this moment. He looked around, to see Astrid was in the back of the seat. He tried to call her but Gobber had spoken his name.

"Henry! Would you like to introduce yourself?" His voice rang.

"Wâ€¦ What? Oh, right." Hiccup said before standing up from his table, with everyone giggling and staring.

Then the scene dissolved again, the classroom began to blur when it was changed with the scenes of the library. Hiccup was so confused he didn't know Astrid was in front of him.

"Hey!" Astrid yelled quietly, she snapped her fingers right in front of his face.

"What?" Hiccup stuttered.

"I just ask you a question." She replied disappointingly.

"Oh, sorry. I kind of zoned out, what were you asking?" Hiccup gave an apologetic smile.

Astrid had her face redden "Nevermindâ€¦"

Hiccup felt a rising guilt in his stomach, he was going to say sorry again until the scene changed. It was the football field, he was sitting in one of the bleachers. Alone with nobody else beside him, or even any footballers playing.

He didn't remember any of this, he didn't even remember why he was here. Until a particular noise came behind him, a group laughing very loudly who were disturbing Hiccup's peaceful moment.

Hiccup tried not to budge went his shoulder had a nudge, he looked around. Sitting beside him was one of his particular best friend, he remembered her as Mavis. She was known as always dressing up goth, but despite her clothes she was always seemed to be always down-to-earth kind of girl.

"Hey, Henry." She smiled as she lends her a paper bag "It's not much, but you could say if you're not hungry."

Hiccup opens the bag, there was a burger inside it "Wow, thanks Mavis. I was really starving." He immediately gobbled up his burger.

Mavis gave a girlish giggle "Don't chew it too fast, or you'll get the 'Hiccups'" She laughed.

Hiccup snorted with laughter "That was dumb."

"Come on, that was funny!" She patted Hiccup's back.

"Just because my nick name is Hiccup, doesn't mean my real name is Hiccup." Hiccup gave a mocking tone.

"Hey, it's not my fault your mom had told me that you hiccupped at birth." Mavis raised her shoulders "Anyway, I better get back to class. See you later, Hiccup!" She joked and gave him a kiss at his cheek, Hiccup felt a little blossoming inside him. When he turned around he saw that the football team had started to practice, and Astrid was glaring at him from the fields.

Hiccup had forgotten about everything, he had forgotten about his will-be girlfriend in the zombie apocalypse. Astrid looked away, without a wave or a slight nod.

The scene hadn't dissolved yet after the team had finished practicing, Astrid approached him from behind just to see that he was looking grimly at his feet.

Hiccup looked up, he saw Astrid was looking down. He tried to make a conversation "Hiâ€¦"

"Hiâ€¦" Astrid replied softly, there was a brief moment of silence when she said "So, Henry. What do you think is prettier?" She blushed pink.

Hiccup stared confusingly, he tried to make it up wildly but he didn't know who were prettier from whom. Then words had slip out of her mouth "You areâ€¦"

Hiccup wished Astrid would just kill him right now, but she sat beside him "You don't think Mavis prettier?"

It became clear now "Well, she's pretty but you asked who is prettier."

Astrid looked at him, there was a strong minute of silence. Astrid leaned on him and rested on his shoulder, Hiccup did not knew what to do so he lets her.

The scene dissolved like a ripple in Hiccup's eyes, then it was dark as if it was night. There were explosions, honking, and screaming all around him. He was in the middle of the streets with Astrid by her side, and his classmates running out of the school. Hiccup remembered this, the day they were all trapped by a massive evacuation. And gunfires from the military who is shooting at them, people around him were going to die.

Many fell face first after a bullet went through them, it wasn't salvation it was extermination. To kill as many people as possible so the disease won't spread, Hiccup's leg ran automatically he sprang throughout the buildings until he found a particular hardware store and pushed the glass door open so he could get in.

Where is Astrid? His girlfriend was left all alone out there to die, Hiccup was so selfish and arrogant. He saw limping dead body's silhouettes were illuminating on the other side of the store, he hides behind the counter. He was crying in shock, he was going to die and not saying goodbye to his friends and families.

"Henry?" A feminine voice said, Hiccup sprang out in surprise as he saw Astrid was hiding behind the counter too.

Her eyes began bulging as she went to Hiccup and hug him tightly, she was crying on his chest as Hiccup hugged back.

The war didn't stop, but if they're going to die, they're going to die together.

Hiccup's eyes was now opened wide, there was blinding light on top of him. He was breathing very hard, gasping for air. He stood up quickly, he was wearing no clothes except his jeans. He looked around, it seems he was in some kind of a large tent full of medication equipment. The bed he was sitting on was folding camping bed, he was covered in sweat under his blanket when there were no source of wind in the room.

Something felt weird below his stomach, he opened his blanket to see. He looked at it with shocked, quickly threw his blanket away.

Hi right leg had touched the ground, his left peg-leg touched the ground with a click. He shook his head, still in shock. But then he tried to get up, he adjust himself to standing then he prepared for himself for walking.

He fell to the cold ground, his leg fell with a clunk. Hiccup heard footsteps from the tent door, a man was standing over him.

"Dammit, you're not supposed to walk yet." He said in worry, helped carrying Hiccup back to the bed.

"Where am I? Who are you? Where are my friends?" Hiccup demanded quickly, the man seemed to be carrying a sniper rifle strapped around his shoulder.

"Easy! Easy! There's no need to shout, the name's Eugene. You're in Corona." Eugene said calmingly, he had a face of a very young man "I was supposed to go guard you."

"Wait, Corona? This is where the helicopter went?" Hiccup asked.

"You noticed?" Eugene said in disappointment "I told them having it in the air was a bad thing."

"What do you mean?" Hiccup asked again.

"My opinion thinks that having giant loud helicopters in the air is a very bad thing, just two days ago we had a giant mob of Biters following the helicopter. The gap successfully draw them into the water and they aren't actually graceful swimmers." Eugene said assuring him.

"What about my friends?" Hiccup said, he kept thinking of Astrid.

"They're fine, they're with the leader. Man, when I saw you guys through the scope. You must be one badass little dude, driving that bus and all." Eugene smiled, as if he was imagining it over and over again "And how that red-hair went all robin hood on a massive pile of Biters, and that blonde chick cutting off your leg. Man, that was sick."

"She did, WHAT?!" Hiccup yelled.

"Woah, calm down there. She save your life, that girl." Eugene puts his hands up to calm him down.

"I know it's justâ€¦ Argh!" Hiccup fell to his back, he had lost a leg. He didn't know whether to thank Astrid or to yell at her.

Hiccup stood up, and tried to walk up limping. But Eugene stopped him "You're not going anywhere, bub." He held out an arm in front of him "Look, you should stay here. I get it you want to meet your girlfriends but, let me finish." Eugene let out a hand to stop him from arguing "I need to tell the leader, that you had woke up. I can't lose this job, man!"

He stepped out of the tent just before saying "You stay here, I can't let you do something stupid again." And disappeared out of sight.

Hiccup scratched his head in frustration, his peg-leg clunking on the surface.

* * *

>New chap... Will take requests...

9. The Daughter

Merida and Astrid were staying in the same apartment room, they both haven't felt a comfortable bed since they had lost their tent.

Astrid had already awake for a couple of hours, partly because Merida's snoring but mostly because of Hiccup. She thought she was going mad over him, every hour didn't pass without thinking about him. She rolled to her side, cheek rested in the cold part of the pillow.

Then finally she got back to sleep, Merida however stopped snoring. It was her turn to be awake, her bushy red hair was even messier as Merida lifted her head from the pillow. She was in her tanktop, threw away her blanket and walked out of the room.

Merida arrived in the living room, which was lit dimly by the only candle. She raised the candle by the holder, approached her backpack. She put the candleholder aside as she explored through the bag, her stomach lurched as she didn't grab anything she was searching for. Then something touched the tip of her finger, something cold and made out of slippery glass. She pulled out a wine bottle she found on one of the cars by the neck, the cap was still sealed.

With all hope in drinking it, she thought of something. She was going to share it with Hiccup and Astrid, she rethink it again. How could she say no to a wine?

She pulled out the cap, when she almost got the top near her mouth. A soft voice behind her spoke "You're seriously going to drink that?" Merida looked around in surprise, she saw Astrid smirking in front of the door with her arms crossed "In 4 in the morning?"

"Fine, then. You can have first dibs." Merida lend the bottle with silent twitching on her eyebrow.

"No thanks, I rather have a glass of water." Astrid went past her hand.

Merida looked at her with slight amazement "Suit yourself." The wine went over her throat, she finished with a release of air.

"Don't burp in here Meridaâ€¦" Astrid looked at her sharply.

"Heh, go fuck yourself." Merida grinned stupidly.

They took the remaining time to talk, finally Astrid shared drinks with Merida. They passed two hours of chatting until 6 am, where somebody knocked on their door.

"I'll get it." Astrid said to Merida, she peeked through the chain lock and sighed frustratingly.

"Who is it?" Merida asked.

"It's Rapunzel." Astrid said slowly, she unlocked the door and a long blonde hair fell to the floor as Rapunzel peeked from the door.

Merida had a look of slight disgust at the look of her.

"Hi!" She went happily inside, Astrid and Merida rooted to the spot "I just had to tell you you're friend is alright!"

Merida's eyes had enlarged "What?! When?"

"Last night! My ahem friend told me." She said with a slight pink.

"This is good news! Where is he now?" Astrid jumped to her.

"Woah, wait. You can't see him now." Rapunzel said with her smile faded.

Merida stood up from the chair "Why can't we?"

"Look, it's justâ€¦ We knew he was bitten, and you chop off his leg and all but we need to make sure. He has been moved to the infirmary at the nearby mall, just two more days." Rapunzel added, but it just raised Astrid to yell at her.

"He was LOCKED UP?!" Astrid's voice rang around the room "I'M GETTING HIM OUT MYSELF!"

"Hey! Calm down! It's for safety measures, better this than killing him on the spot!" Rapunzel had raised her voice.

"Yeah?! And who suggested that?" Merida joined in.

Then Rapunzel seemed as though she was struck by lightning "Ummâ€¦ My momâ€¦ The leader?" Her face filled with guilt.

Astrid went silent for a few second "That's it, I'm talking to the leader!" She marched out of the way passing Rapunzel. The door stood two men, the same one who carried Hiccup, had blocked the way.

"Sorry, this is safety measures tooâ€¦" Rapunzel said from over her shoulder.

Astrid looked back at her, she spat a disgusted look at her. Rapunzel stepped back as if Astrid was approaching her with an axe "You're going to see the leader, now if you must. But all I can tell you about your friend Hiccup is that he is 'quarantined', it is scientifically different from locked up." She added "My mom can be more violent sometimes, it should be always kill on spot. Please understand, it was I who rejected the killing idea and got myself a yelling. I saw you guys at the bridge, you three were close and I saw that!" Rapunzel said strictly, she then pulled Astrid so she and Merida could have a private talk away from the Stabbington brothers "Look, I can promise you this." Rapunzel said quietly "I will take you tonight to Hiccup, at 10 pm. Be ready thenâ€¦"

She broke away, so she could go to the Stabbingtons. Merida poked

Astrid from the back "You're going to believe her?"

Astrid looked at her quickly and looked away "If she's lying we kill everyone, you got that?"

Merida had a concerned look about her "What the hell is with you today? You're not the Astrid I remembered when it comes to Hiccup!" She said softly.

"Everything is about Hiccup." Astrid said strictly "Let's see what the leader have for me." Then she walked away from Merida, who had frozen place. Astrid went with Rapunzel from the room.

Meanwhile at Corona Plaza, an abandoned mall a few yards away from the center of town. It wasn't a really large mall, but plenty of spaces for storage and food stock.

At the infirmary, Hiccup was sitting alone in a dark room with only one window which the morning sun had raised behind the metal bars. He was leaning on the dark wall, he rested his head on his ankles. He was not sleeping, but awake with hunger.

Someone came to him from the other side of metal folding door, he peeked from the holes in the gap. Eugene had come to bring him breakfast through the small door.

"Drink the chocolate milk." Eugene smiled "You're lucky it's the last one we had."

"How long should I stay here?" Hiccup demanded furiously.

"Just one more night, pal." Eugene assured.

Hiccup grunted, he took the milk first. Leaving the lump of cheese on the tray, he looked to the sky through the window.

* * *

>Hey guys! It's me again... From now on i will take requests of who will and wont live... If none replies came then i will kill randomly... Capiche?

10. The Leader

Astrid's footsteps rang through the halls, in front of her was Rapunzel and her two minions. The hallway was damp since the windows are all closed and the air vent had stopped working.

Everywhere she looked were almost dark and the only light source were from the window, they went to the corner as they passed the broken elevator. And stopped at a metal door with a sign that says stairs.

One of the Stabbingtons opened it and let passed his brother then Rapunzel then Astrid, she looked up at the top which was about ten or twelve stairs.

They walked slowly up the stairs, Astrid thought if maybe the leader was in the suite room. Rapunzel broke off from the Stabbingtons and went to her.

"Hey, how're you holding up?" Rapunzel said softly.

Astrid barely looked at her "Badâ€¦"

Rapunzel went gloom, then she went on "Hiccup will be fine, it's okay. This won't take long, my mom usually nice to peopleâ€¦ Usuallyâ€¦"

"How would you know it was about Hiccup?" Astrid spat.

"Because everything is about Hiccup, right?" Rapunzel replied "Can I ask you a question?"

"Noâ€¦" Astrid said quickly, she wondered if she'd gone too far.

Rapunzel stared at her for a moment, her face suddenly becoming in the verge of sadness "What is it between you with Hiccup?"

Astrid was surprise that she would bring that up, talking about Hiccup was the one thing she would do now. But somehow made her uneasy, Astrid kept her place "What's it to you?"

"You know what? No, you don'tâ€¦" Rapunzel said strictly raising her voice "Maybe you haven't noticed but I am trying to help you! You know you could just told me to go awayâ€¦" And with that she rejoined her minion, leaving Astrid behind.

Astrid stared at her weakly, she felt mostly of guilt. Merida was right, this isn't her when it comes to Hiccup. After they passed a couple of floors, then came the last one. One of the Stabbingtons pushed I open and Astrid went passed it last again.

It was another hallway, similar to the last one but this one had abstract paintings on their walls opposite to the glass wall which looked down on the center of the city. Rapunzel guide them to the one door at the end of the hallway, which was the only door on the floor. She pushed it open and waited at the front, Astrid immediately took it that she was the only one who should enter.

Once she was inside of the suite, she looked up at the diamond engraved glass chandelier hanging above her. The room itself was so big, there were two stairs which reached to the second floor on the suite. Between the two stairs were a glass panel stacked so it would have the look at the pool on the outside balcony. Rapunzel closed the door behind her, Astrid was sure to be expecting someone by now.

"Hullo, dearâ€¦ Sit down, will you?" Said a high voice of a woman, Astrid looked around. At the stairs she saw a woman in her late 30s wearing a beautiful ruby red gown with a bronze ring as her belt, her long curly dark hair went gracefully over her back. Astrid looked at her momentarily.

"I told you to sit downâ€¦" The leader repeated again, but this time with a commanding voice. She pointed to a pair of sofa with a glass table in the middle, Astrid quickly sit as she said.

The leader approached her sofa, when she had settled herself she called to the other side of the room "Get us wine please!"

An older woman came hurrying into the living room from the kitchen, she was also dressed in gown but what she was wearing had the color green. She was carrying a bottle of wine and two wine glasses on a tray, the woman settled the contents on the glass table. Then she bowed to the leader and came hurrying off again.

"I just found this particular bottle of wine stored in one of the cabinets, I didn't bother to leave it there. It was a prized thing in this world we live in today, don't you agree?" The leader said as she poured the wine to the two glass, she lends one to Astrid and gave a wicked smile.

Astrid quickly accepts it "Ohâ€¦ Yes, I do. Even though I'm not actually a big fan of it, I'm more of a beer kind of personâ€¦" She laughed awkwardly, seeing the leader didn't laugh back.

"Yes, yesâ€¦ I thought so too, young people love beer. My daughter tried one with her friends, I stopped her at it before she finished the can." The leader said, she looked like she was trying so hard at getting the memory out of her head. She shook her head many times, then she drowned herself in wine "I brought you here to talk about your group membersâ€¦"

Astrid felt a little lurching in her stomach, she kept her cool "Yes?"

"Are you aware one of you is bitten?" The leader asked again.

Astrid held her anger "Yâ€¦ Yeahâ€¦"

"And I personally think that chopping his infected leg won't be so much help, dearâ€¦ And I don't know when he was bitten, so it would be just a matter of time that anything in his blood will spread." The leader said with a slight worried tone, mostly filled with disgust towards her as thought she was responsible.

"You got it wrong." Astrid corrected "He was bitten seconds before he got his legâ€¦"

The leader raised her hand to shut her up "Cutting his leg raise another problem, you are been classified as too dangerous to be near my daughter and anyone else."

Astrid snapped "Who classified that?"

"I did. If obvious things obviously didn't get to you." The leader gave a high pitched laughter, she gasped for breath as she saw a rage filled face on Astrid "Are you the leader of your group?"

Astrid tried to think, Hiccup was the obvious leader. Maybe if she said yes she would have the same ground as her "I suppose I am."

"Well then, I take full responsibility of you and your group from this day on." The leader said with a cackle.

"You can't tell us what to do!" Astrid raised her voice.

"Oh, yes I actually can." The leader said coolly "Everything in my city is under my control, I will keep an eye on you starting tomorrow. I am the leader, and I make everything clear in this city."

"Some leader you are." Astrid spat the words without knowing it had slip.

"In fact. I would be like to be called Governor, from now on." The leader rested her head on her hand "Yes, yesâ€¦ Governor Gothel, that's more like it. It have that catchy ring too!" Gothel hummed the title second time, she looked back at Astrid "I don't like youâ€¦"

Astrid's eyes widened in fury.

"A maniac, an archer, and a wimp. I don't like all of it, not one bit." Gothel gazed coldly on Astrid's eyes.

On Astrid's head however was near the breaking point, how could her called Hiccup a wimp. She was about to pounce on her as if she pretended herself a lion, but too many risks to attack Gothel and kill her.

"Well, that would be all." Gothel said again "If it wasn't for Rapunzel I would have your friend killed, I couldn't stand her pompous face she make when she beg. You will have your friend out in the day after tomorrow."

Astrid was now standing up, quickly than she'd ever imagine "You can't do that!" She yelled. Astrid felt two large hands held both her shoulder tightly, the Stabbingtons had watching her from behind all the time.

Gothel stood up as well, she walked over the table and went to mock on Astrid's face "When I say the word, your little friend goes bye-byeâ€¦ _Bye-bye_!"

And with that Astrid was being pulled out of the room, she saw Gothel's wicked face in front of her, when she was released at the front of the door. The Stabbingtons slammed the door closed. She was now between rage and misery, she won't see Hiccup for another day. How did they treat him? Is he going to survive?

Now the only way she could see him was to meet Rapunzel, Astrid felt a fat chance at that when she was mean to her earlier. Astrid fell to the carpet, she was now sobbing as she tried to redeem herself over and over again.

Who was she going to blame this time?

* * *

>I'm trying to make this as dramatic as i can... Review please..._

11. The Huddle

Back at the storage mall, where Hiccup was being held. He was playing a game of chess with Eugene for the fourth time, and won continuously. They both sat in the floor but divided by the metal folding door, the chessboard were put in the hole where Eugene used to put in food trays.

There were a moment of concentration on both side "Checkâ€¦" Hiccup said blankly.

Eugene moved his king "Your moveâ€¦"

Hiccup take a few seconds to think, he began to move his horse "Checkâ€¦" He smiled silently.

Eugene felt a rising anger, he moved impatiently "Your moveâ€¦"

Hiccup smirked "Checkmateâ€¦"

Eugene stared in bewilderment "HOW?!"

Hiccup rested his hands behind him "Kind of in my blood I guessâ€¦"

Eugene cleaned up the chessboard, he slipped in a tray of food which was covered with a metal lid from the hole. Hiccup took it and opened the lid, he saw a steaming beef stew served on a bowl complete with a spoon.

"Wow, hell yeah! You made this?" Hiccup's eyes widened in starvation.

Eugene had himself another bowl of beef stew "Mom thought me, she even made ratatouille. She was the best."

Hiccup took another scoop of meat "Where is she now?"

"She died before all thisâ€¦ Man, I really miss her cookingâ€¦" Eugene said with a mixture of sadness.

"Sorry dude." Hiccup replied.

Eugene and Hiccup both heard footsteps coming from down the hallway, Eugene immediately stood up "Wait hereâ€¦" He called to Hiccup.

Hiccup to stood up and peeked gap above his chin, he saw Eugene walking away from the door. But he can still see who were meeting him, a young girl younger than him with really long blonde hair. She seemed delighted meeting him, she reached up to kiss him and Eugene kissed back.

"Who's that?" Hiccup said from afar.

They broke apart, the girl saw him and approached the door. She peeked inside as well "You're Hiccup right?"

Hiccup nodded.

"I'm Rapunzel, why are you called Hiccup?" Rapunzel asked.

"It's my nickname, my real name's Henry. Are you the leader? You're going to let me out early?" He concluded.

"No, I'm the leader's daughter. And I'm afraid I have to keep you here until Sundayâ€¦" Rapunzel shook her head.

"But why?" Hiccup asked.

"She said it's for safety measures." Rapunzel assured.

"That's bullshit!" Hiccup rejected "Everybody turns within a day!"

"I know! I'm sorry, I've been talking to your friend and they will meet you here tonight." Rapunzel added "But you have to keep this secret, okay?"

"My friends? You've meet them? Are they okay? Aâ€¦ Are theyâ€¦" Hiccup stuttered uncontrollably.

"They're fine, I can assure you that. Eugene and I have been talking about this and we agreed that you guys should meet at least once." Rapunzel smiled.

"And whatever between me and Rapunzel is secret, so don't tell anyone." Eugene said.

"Yeah, and also." Rapunzel reached for her purse "This to make you all nostalgic."

Hiccup stared at the Walkman she held, a yellow Walkman paired with a headset with a tape inside. Hiccup accepted it "Thanksâ€¦"

"The battery is at half I think, just don't over use it until Sunday." Rapunzel added, she walked away from the door and waved to Eugene before leaving.

"She's niceâ€¦" Hiccup said to Eugene, and he nodded curtly.

Meanwhile Rapunzel made her way out of the mall with the Stabbingtons waiting outside, she walked back to the city center. Where the people are lending lunches to the citizens, she saw a big line and approached the back.

"I'll get my lunch here, you can go back to mother." Rapunzel said to the Stabbingtons, and they left without any comments.

There she saw the people chatting with each other, her mother had done a good work on keeping them happy. Even though she didn't look as she gave much care to her people.

"Rapunzel!" A voice in the crowd said, there was a streak of blonde similar to Astrid. She was calling Rapunzel.

Rapunzel didn't know how to react, she stayed silent at the approach of Astrid.

"Look, I'm sorry about before. I panicked, could you forgive me?"

Astrid looked like she had been crying, Rapunzel was rooted to the place before she nodded.

"Good, because I hope you haven't change your mind about taking us to Hiccup." Astrid smiled in relief.

"Can I ask you what is with you and Hiccup?" Rapunzel raised her eyebrow.

Astrid blinked "We're really close friends, you know?"

"Doesn't seems like it." Rapunzel said fiercely.

Astrid exhaled in guilt "He's my boyfriend, alright?"

Rapunzel thought about spatting back at her, but she stopped as she thought about Eugene.

"Are we cool?" Astrid lend out a hand to fist bump her.

Rapunzel looked momentarily, she smiled and fist bumped back.

"So I was going to ask if Hiccup get treated fairlyâ€¦" Astrid asked.

"Oh, yeah he did. Three meals a day." Rapunzel said.

"Where is he locked up when we get there?" Astrid asked again.

"He's in the abandoned mall, like I said. He's currently behind one of the metal folding doors, its okay he's not chained." Rapunzel assured.

"I better get back to Merida, I'll see you later okay?" Astrid waved, she ran past the crowd as she searched for Merida. And there she was sitting alone in a picnic table.

Merida caught the sight of Astrid "Did it work?"

"Yes, she took it seriously." Astrid replied before sitting with her "Bring your bow and hatchet, I'll take Hiccup's bag."

"How are we going to bust him out?" Merida said softly.

"Rapunzel said he's in locked up behind a metal folding door, that means a big lock or something. I brought a few kit to break the lock." Astrid looked around if it was safe.

"How are we going to pass the bridge?" Merida asked.

"Wood planks, I saw a wood carver's shop not far from here. We go out at one in the morning." Astrid said.

"What about Rapunzel?" Merida asked even lowly.

"We locked her in the cage where Hiccup is locked in, if she struggles we knock her out." Astrid said, her eyebrows were now curved.

"If other sees? I've never killed a living human before." Merida asked with worries.

"Neither did I, but it's not a difference compare to Walkers." Astrid replied, she began to sit straight "Look out."

In front of them came a boy older than them, a streak of brown hair on his handsome face. He was holding a tray of food "Haven't seen you guys before, is this seat taken?"

Astrid and Merida exchanged looks "Anywhere else have space."

"Don't be like that." The boy sat down without a single care about their objection "I'm Jack by the way." The boy raised his foot to the table.

"Listen, Jack. We're trying to discuss something here, so get your butt out of here. Please?" Merida mocked.

The boy only listen to one thing "Are you going to prank someone? Can I join in?" Jack said happily.

"NO! Now get out of here!" Astrid yelled.

"Alright, you don't have to shout." Jack left the table and walked away.

"Look! He left his empty porridge, can you believe this place?" Merida said with disgust.

"Let's just discuss this later." Astrid said.

* * *

>New chap... Please review..._

12. The Ambush

It was 9:30 pm, Astrid and Merida both were readying themselves to break Hiccup out of prison. Each things that they think could be useful were put into their backpacks, Merida readying her bow and Astrid carrying Hiccup's backpack.

Merida found something else "Could we use this?" Astrid looked at her, the shotgun which Hiccup found "There are a few shells I found in it."

"Give it to meâ€¦" Astrid said, Merida handed the shotgun to her. Astrid tilted her head around it.

There was a couple knocks on the door, Astrid and Merida looked at it. Merida opened it and hid behind the door. Astrid looked outside and there was Rapunzel standing on the carpet, she looked inside but didn't come in.

"Are you ready? What's up with the bags?" Rapunzel said suspiciously.

"Something to give Hiccup, food and entertainment. You name it." Astrid lied.

Rapunzel nodded "Come on, we need to leave now." She disappeared from the door.

Merida and Astrid exchanged looks, they both nodded. Merida left first, she stopped behind Rapunzel "Change of plansâ€¦" Merida said softly, enough for Rapunzel to hear.

Rapunzel looked at her with shock, arrow pointing at her.

"You take us to him, nothing else. We want him outâ€¦" Merida continued.

"Why? You'll get a save heaven here!" Rapunzel said quietly.

Astrid went outside, shotgun pointed at her as well "We live under tyranny. That's not what I want."

Rapunzel was frozen on place "Butâ€¦"

"No buts. Show us the way." Astrid snapped "You try one thingâ€¦"

"You put an arrow between my eyes?" Rapunzel replied sharply.

Astrid only grinned "I was going to say 'shotgun shells', but arrow works too. Now show us the wayâ€¦"

Rapunzel glared at them, then she turned and walked slowly towards the stairs. Astrid and Merida followed her, while Astrid kept pointing her shotgun at her and Merida keeping lookout. Rapunzel went down the stairs, she walked silently down.

The last floor were silent, isn't a much difference at day. They gone out of the stairs and found themselves behind a check in desk, which was a bit dusty and the files had been scattered on the desk and the floor.

When they reached out the apartment, Merida was being more cautious if there were someone patrolling. They walked away from the center of town, they began to walk into the streets of Corona. There were no electricity so the streetlights did not work. They could only see dark stores and abandoned shops, which some had broken glass and graffiti on their walls.

Merida and Astrid lit their flashlights.

They walked for half an hour before they reached the mall, it was dark and not well seen. They stare at it for a moment.

"There's where Hiccup is locked in." Rapunzel said to Astrid and Merida. Astrid gestured her to keep moving, and surprisingly Rapunzel did.

They went through the broken glass panels because the entry door had been chained, both Astrid and Merida saw piles of rice packs and canned food being stored into what use to be an unused shopping place, everywhere they look were dead and dirty. Rats chewing off the food they can sniff off, cockroaches running away from the light of their flashlights.

"Hiccup is held in this dump?" Merida said softly, then she turned to Rapunzel "Where is Hiccup, anyway?"
>"He's held in the pharmacy upstairs." Rapunzel replied without looking at them.

Astrid heard a soft clunking on the top floor "Was that him?"

"Could beâ€¦" Merida said "Hurry up."

Rapunzel was left behind, Astrid and Merida both ran towards the dead escalator. They reached the second floor, the clanking stops.

"HICCUP?!" Astrid cried, she waited for an answer.

"Astrid?" Said an echo from the left, Astrid sped up and Merida trying to follow her.

Astrid looked around, they went left and right as their flashlights shaking when they run. Merida stops Astrid, she pointed her finger to the only place which was covered in metal folding door.

Hiccup was waving his arm from inside the cage, Astrid approached him quickly. She placed her chest close to the metal door, she saw Hiccup's face inside. She point her flashlight to him and her, she felt a great joy inside her.

"Hiccup! Are you okay? Aâ€¦ Are youâ€¦" Astrid stuttered.

Hiccup shushed her "I'm alright Astrid, seriously, I'mâ€¦" But before he could finish Astrid pushed up for a kiss through the gap, Hiccup kissed back.

"Having a little reunion, are we?" A woman voice rang across the corridor, then from the shadows came Gothel.

Astrid broke up quickly with her shotgun at Gothel, she had an angered and shocked look upon her face "How did you find us?"

"I said I was going to keep and I on you, did I?" Gothel smirked, more men came from Astrid's right and left each carrying a flashlight. Including the Stabbingtons, and Rapunzel. Merida stepped back, she did not want to provoke any of them but kept her bow ready.

"Astrid and her group. I condemned you to be condemned with the penalty of death, for trying to break free a prisoner and held my daughter hostage!" Gothel spoke out loud.

Rapunzel was also in thunder-struck position "You can't do that!"

"And why can't I, dear?" Gothel glared sharply at her.

"Because I told you not to! I beg you!" Rapunzel began to walk closer to her mother "They only wanted to be together, mother. Exile them, they better be together alive than dead!"

Gothel wrapped her daughter in a tight embrace "Now, now dear. It's alright, you're scared that they will come back and hurt you. It's alright, mother is here my dear."

Rapunzel pushed her away "I'm not scared of them, if I was I could defend myself from the start. That's why I let them take me hostage."

"Just let us go, and we never come back to your city again." Hiccup said, mostly worried about Astrid.

"You! Shut up. And Rapunzel, you don't know what you're talking about." Gothel pointed her finger sharply at Hiccup then turned to Rapunzel.

"Mother, this are good people!" Rapunzel began to beg "They proof the strength of bond."

"Rapunzel, please get behind me." Gothel said calmly.

"Butâ€¦"

"BEHIND MEâ€¦."

Rapunzel was rooted to spot, she regained her courage and said "Noâ€¦"

"Excuse me?!" Gothel began to tense.

"I said I won't!" Rapunzel raised her voice "You can't punish people for doing good things! This is the opposite of everything you'veâ€¦"

Gothel had her palm hit Rapunzel's cheek so hard it rang across the corridor, Rapunzel fell down with a thud. A red mark on the shape of a hand had been printed on her side of the face, tears were glinting on her emerald green eyes.

Merida began to take charge "WHAT THE HELL IS WRONG WITH YOU?!" Gothel turned her face to her "SHE WAS YOUR DAUGHTER YOU BITCH!"

Then a thundering sound came across the corridor, Merida stopped her screaming and Gothel was watching her with her finger on a pistol trigger. Merida stood motionless, eyes widened and dead. Then she fell to the dusty floor, her back sliding down the metal folding door. Blood trails began to appear on it, Astrid couldn't believe her eyes.

Before she could scream, two hands began to grab her and removed her backpack from her arms. Hiccup's cage began to unlock, and the metal door began to fold. Astrid was threw inside, the folding door was slammed shut.

Both Hiccup and Astrid could hear Rapunzel's screaming and struggling on the outside, the flashlights began to disappear. The only light source now was the candle that stood on the middle of the room.

"I can't believe itâ€¦" Hiccup said softly, horror in his voice.

Astrid stood silent, she was frozen in fear. Merida was dead.

Hiccup puts his hand on her shoulder "Astridâ€¦"

Hiccup gasped when Astrid jumped to give him an emotional hug, Hiccup felt motionless as Astrid began to cry loudly on his shirt. He hugged her back, he too began to cry.

* * *

>I'm sorry I have to kill off Merida... I know that there is no Rise Of The Brave Tangled Dragons without her...

13. The Rebellion

Astrid and Hiccup waited for morning, they heard footsteps going down the corridor from outside the metal door. Gothel had brought her men with her, neither Hiccup nor Astrid knew if they would be killed in the spot or brought to the center town to be executed.

"Hide!" Hiccup spoke softly to Astrid, they both crouched down behind the metal door.

They heard the door being unlocked, as one of the Stabbingtons pushed the folding door upwards. Astrid leaped out and attacked, and so was Hiccup who made a roundhouse with his fake leg at Stabbington's shins. The man fell down with pain, but his brother grab hold of Hiccup's chest.

Astrid went to save him, but another man hit her head with the butt of his sniper rifle. She fell down and tried to stand up again, her head was spinning in pain. Someone grabbed both her arms and Hiccup's and locked them in a lying prone, her cheeks felt the cold dusty floor as it pressed painfully against her.

Gothel appeared from the crowd and went to Hiccup "Is this one armed?"

"No, he's vulnerable." Said one of the Stabbington brothers that sat on his back.

"Good."

Astrid went wild, just before Gothel could reach her pistol. Astrid went to bite Gothel's gun arm, as she shrieked in pain when Astrid's teeth went sinking in her knuckle. Gothel swung her arm to let her go, just before Astrid could attack again Gothel smashed her nose with the back of her gun, Astrid felt cold blood running down her lips.

The Stabbington locked her again, his pistol pointed up from her lower jaw.

"Wait!" Gothel said, she rubbed her the blood from her knuckles "Not here, I want everyone to see them tortured."

Stabbingtons looked at her blankly "Madam Governor, why not just kill them now?"

"Because I said so, kept them tied up. I want them to feel regret." Gothel glared at the sight of Astrid.

Hiccup felt prickly rope tied strongly on both wrists, he was pulled up and face to face against Gothel "You'll pay for thisâ€¦"

"I will." Gothel said calmly "But not from you, nor the bitch."

Hiccup was staring at her with boiling rage, when he was pulled away he kept looking at Gothel with pure fury. They all left the corridor, and the spot where Merida had been killed.

They was pulled out of the mall, a military truck was waiting at the parking lot. Hiccup and Astrid were tied to seats in the truck, the Stabbingtons sat in opposite chairs watching them closely. Other people began to sit on Hiccup's left and right, he look at Astrid whose nose was still bleeding.

"Are you okay?" Hiccup said softly.

"I'm fâ€¦fineâ€¦" Astrid said as her voice was raspy from her broken nose.

Hiccup jiggled his wrist, the rope was too tight "Just hang in there."

The machine began to start, they saw smoke coming from the back of the truck. With a lurch the truck began moving, Hiccup could see passing buildings above him and the morning sky filled the horizon.

For a few minutes of bumps and lurches the truck stopped, Hiccup assumed they had reached their destination. He felt himself being pulled by the wrist rope, he felt himself sweating uncontrollably. He looked at Astrid who was struggling as two men were holding her arms, Hiccup was thrown outside the truck with Astrid, he fall hard on the dusty ground and being yanked to stand again.

His head was spinning, as the sun was showering above him. He was dragged to the giant burnt wood stack where the bonfire had been lit in center of the town, where Gothel was already waiting and the crowds were circling around it.

Hiccup was being pinned down on his knee, he was unable to fight as two men were holding him down. Astrid was sitting beside him, they watched Gothel as she was calling to her crowds.

"My people of Corona! I have brought you all here to witness the execution of two criminals, low-lives, and kidnappers!" She held her arms high as she could "Sentenced to death after the kidnapping my own daughter!" She walked closer to Hiccup, she held a dagger in her hand "Starting with this boy."

Hiccup looked up with disgust, Gothel reached down for her dagger to be touching Hiccup's chin "What's your name, kid? I want god to hopefully pardon your name, hopefully." Gothel smiled wickedly, Hiccup stayed silent as he saw anger in her eyes.

"You know, I am going to make a lot of fun of this." She pointed the tip of the dagger to his left cheek "One for my daughterâ€¦" Gothel slashed her dagger to Hiccup's face slowly, so he could feel the pain as much as she wanted "One for your betrayalâ€¦" She went to Hiccup's right cheek, and also slashed it. Gothel watched as Hiccup tried to shake his head off the pain "And Three for meâ€¦"

Gothel raised her dagger hand up, and ready to push it down strongly when two gunshots were heard from the crowd. People with masks began to appear from the crowd, they were each holding a pistol in their hands, Gothel's men were readying their sniper rifles at the masked men. But there were outnumbered, Gothel looked around while she gritted her teeth.

"Let those two go." Said a masked man, he had a snow-white hair "Don't let me repeat myself."

"Why don't you just kill us? Are you afraid?" Gothel mocked "You surely outnumber us, and also our bullets. Surely you would kill us by now?"

The masked man stood silent, then Gothel looked to the Stabbingtons "Kill themâ€¦"

The masked man had shoot his pistol to the two people that was holding Hiccup, the crowd gasped and most of them was running away from the scene.

"Stop! STOP!" Hiccup screamed, right before someone tried to kill anyone. Hiccup immediately took the masked man's gun and points it to the men who were holding Astrid, he felt his cheeks were burning in pain as he said "You! Let her goâ€¦"

Both men released her and backed away, Astrid immediately ran to Hiccup and took his gun "This is for Merida, you assâ€¦" Astrid glared sharply at Gothel, which Hiccup immediately held her hand before she pulled the trigger.

"Not now, we need her for a way out." Hiccup said softly. Astrid seemed that she was about to shout "We need the Helicopter."

"Yeah, figured we get you first before doing that." The masked man said "Where's the redhead?"

Astrid stared at him "Redhead? You mean Merida?"

"That's it." The man said again.

"How do you know who she was?" Hiccup asked.

"Haven't you figured it out?" The man pulled off his mask "It's me!"

"Jack!?" Astrid and Gothel said abruptly, Gothel was beginning to look more furious "Why you littleâ€¦"

"Wait, you know this guy?" Hiccup asked softly to Astrid.

"We've met." Astrid said casually, she turned to Jack "What are you doing here Jack? You're not some, rebellious person with white hair or something. Right?"

"Here, my name is Frost. And this hair, it's hair paint. Long ago, the Governor locked me up for stealing food. Now I know that she put so many people in jail and sentenced them to death for a stupid reason, I felt like I have to do something about it." Jack explained.

"Of course, yes, I should have seen this coming. Very good Jack, yes, very good." Gothel lowered her voice a little "What are you going to plan now? Since I have got the helicopter key, and the only one who knew where it is located. I assumed you're going to take me then? Definitely dodgy, don't you think? That I could've promised you protection, or maybe kill me and take my place."

Jack was silent, he thought for a moment "Nah, I got something I need to find out there."

"So you're going to leave her here? With the possibilities that she would back to doing evil?" Hiccup commented.

"You said yourself we need her for the helicopter." Jack replied.

"You're right." Astrid said "We kill her after."

"Oh, what's that?" Gothel said aloud "You're going to kill me after? Think again."

Astrid, Hiccup, and Jack all looked around. More of Gothel's men were eyeing them from afar, their eyes focusing from their scopes. Jack's men all lowered their weapons, including Jack himself.

"You could never defeat me, you're rebel club won't exist anymore anyway." Gothel walked closer to them, her dagger was reflecting brightly against the sunlight "You're just a show-off, a fake army. What did you think you will gain from this, incompetence group of yours?"

"But you wouldn't call your own daughter incompetence, won't you?" One of Jack's rebels suddenly shouted, she opened her mask and her hoodie. The golden hair fell down her back, Rapunzel was known for her machine gun where she aims it at her own mother.

Gothel looked dumbstruck "Rapunzel! How dare you?! You have break your mother's heart!"

"I doubt if you even have one." Rapunzel said sharply, Astrid was also stared in bewilderment when she approached her.

"I'mâ€¦ I'm sorryâ€¦" Astrid stuttered with guilt, she went the hug her softly.

Rapunzel hugged back in joy "This isn't fair, I should've done something about it a long time ago. Thank you Jack."

Jack nodded and smiled "You're welcome, princess."

Rapunzel turned to Gothel "If you want to kill them, you have to kill me too."

Gothel glared while her mind was spinning madly "Very well then, kill them." She said without hesitation. Rapunzel was shocked, she saw the people around her were pointing at each other but haven't fired yet.

"BITERS!" Said a voice from afar "BITERS! GAAAAHHHH!"

Everyone turned to see where the blood curling scream came from, as the citizens came back with blood on their shirt and face. But hundreds of pale and drowned looking creatures were surrounding them and eating them one by one, Hiccup stared as if a hundreds of Walkers who had fell deep in the bay successfully walked back to land. But now their skins are white and pale, their eyes were more sunken than usually and their lips had elongated so their mouths were hidden in skin.

Jack's rebel and Gothel's men all rounded together, their eyes stared in horror at the sight.

The sight of the Drowned

* * *

>Authors Note... Updating day Mon-Fri... Free day Sat-Sun..._

14. The Helicopter

"Run!" Hiccup said to Jack's group, they followed Hiccup as he cleared the few Drowned on the path. They were all racing against time as they try to avoid every Drowned as they could, Hiccup let Astrid to run first as he looked back just to see Gothel and his men were running past him.

They were going to the closest apartment with Jack, Hiccup followed them all inside. And when his leg had already touched the apartment floor, Jack's men closed the door behind them.

"That thing isn't going to hold!" Jack yelled, as more Drowned began to pound against the glass, covering every source of light there is.

"You're right. Come on, upstairs!" Rapunzel said loudly, she pointed towards the stair room. They followed her, but someone was standing right in front of them.

They stopped quickly, right after Gothel fired a bullet to the air, her men stood beside her and points their weapons at them too. Hiccup was frozen in place, just to be cautious he raised his own gun, and so does Jack's men.

"Well, now what?" Astrid breathed to Hiccup.

Even Hiccup wasn't sure what to do, it was a stand-off. Even though Jack had more men than Gothel, her gun was pointed exactly right at Astrid.

Hiccup became alerted as one man of his side moved a little bit forward "Don't! Don't engageâ€¦"

"Hiccupâ€¦ What are you doing?" Astrid whispered loudly.

"We need herâ€¦" Hiccup said.

"Not anymore! We need to get out of here instead of them!" Astrid yelled silently.

Hiccup shushed her "Her gun is pointed at you."

"You noticed did you?" Gothel began, everyone became more nervous. Then Gothel continued "So you know not to do any rash decisions."

"We outnumber you." Hiccup threatened.

"And yet nobody is firing." Gothel smirked.

Hiccup cannot argue, then Jack went beside him "What do we do?" He whispered.

Hiccup's only option was to negotiate "Look, we can get out of here together. Nobody have to die."

Gothel looked at Hiccup, then Astrid. She made a disgusted look "Nahâ€¦"

Hiccup's eyes widened.

"That blondie's going to kill me anywayâ€¦ This is boringâ€¦" Gothel said hazily, then unknowingly she fired her gun towards Astrid, the others began to fire too. Luckily Hiccup caught her just in time, but the bullet went past his shoulder.

Astrid and Hiccup both ducked behind the nearest counter, Jack and Rapunzel was in the opposite desk counter. A few of his men were lying dead on the floor, some who are left alive are somewhat shocked by their death.

Hiccup heard the stair room door unlocked then locked again, he stood up to look as he saw Gothel and her men were gone.

"Hiccup, you're hurtâ€¦" Astrid said as she stared at his shoulder.

"I'll live, how's everyone else?" Hiccup turned back, still clutching his arm and looked towards one person were leaning over a body, her tied hair fell down both cheeks.

Jack patted her shoulder, he stood up and walked to Hiccup "How's the door?"

"I think they locked itâ€¦" Hiccup said.

"Great, were trapped." Jack puts down his gun and looked at the Drowned.

Hiccup poked him and pointed at the girl "What's up with her?"

"That's Tuffnut, her brother Ruffnut just died." Jack stared.

Hiccup chuckled "Weird names are what it is today, huh?" He saw a few more men were now trying to comfort her.

"What theâ€¦ HICCUP!" Rapunzel began running towards Hiccup, she looked thunder struck at the window panels. Which were cracking slowly on the pressure of the Drowned.

Hiccup and the others were backing up, Astrid ran past him and went to the door "Help me with this thing!" Jack and Rapunzel went to help.

Hiccup looked at Tuffnut, who wouldn't leave her brother's body alone. He and a few other men helped her get up, and away from his body.

Hiccup felt his heart just leaped out, one of the panels had already broken through. The moaning of the drowned filled the room, they limped to them.

Hiccup took his own gun and shoot it to the nearest Drowned, he backed away as more were coming from the broken glass panel. A few of them fall dead one by one, bullets through their heads.

Hiccup fired his last shot "I'm out!"

"Me too!" Said one of Jack's men.

"Is that door ready yet?!" Hiccup yelled to the back, Jack's men were still firing.

Astrid was now stared hopelessly, she resorted to the last thing on her list. Astrid stepped back a little and kicked it as hard as she can, the hinge was almost fallen off, Astrid kicked it again and again. One last time the metal door flew inside, the upper hinge was already teared apart.

"Inside! Now!" Astrid yelled as she stood beside the door, Jack's man rushed inside and up the stairs. Lastly followed by Hiccup who yanked Astrid up the stairs, the all avoided the Drowned successfully.

They all sped upstairs, the Drowned who were near are quickly dead. Hiccup run last, he kicked the shins of each dead and watched them roll down the stairs. Astrid suddenly yanked his arm backwards, they both ran until they reached the top.

All of Jack's men had already went through, Hiccup and Astrid walked out of the metal door and stared to the blinding sunlight, but the wind was somewhat unnatural.

They walked past Jack's men, in front of them were Jack and Rapunzel staring into a military helicopter.

Hiccup saw Gothel, in front of her was Eugene. Eugene had blood running down his right side, face full of bruise. Gothel had her gun pointed to the back of his head, Eugene was tied up and sat in the line of fire.

"What happened to him?!" Hiccup yelled.

"He was sentenced for betrayal! Stay back or he dies!" Gothel demanded.

Hiccup tried to run at her to give Gothel a good kick, Rapunzel stopped him "Don't hurt him!... Please!" She was near the verge of tears.

"Then go back! Back from here!" Gothel commanded.

Rapunzel thought for a while, and Jack saw her at it "You're not actually going to do what she says, right?!"

Rapunzel looked at him then Gothel again, she did something she never done before. Hiccup stared as Rapunzel raised her machine gun and shoot it blindly everywhere, bullet went flying towards Gothel's men.

Rapunzel stopped, everyone in the side of Gothel was dead, including Gothel herself. Rapunzel was in tears as she saw Eugene survived, she went there to hug him. Then everyone else followed her as the Drowned had followed them there.

Hiccup went up the helicopter, he helped Rapunzel with Eugene, then everyone else. Jack and Astrid went to the driver's seat.

"Can you drive this thing?" Astrid asked, she looked outside the window to find more were coming. Jack's men were trying hard to kill them one by one.

"I'll try. How's mister good-looking back there?" Jack called.

"He'll live! I hope he does!" Rapunzel replied, Eugene in her arms.

Hiccup went to the front as well "Drive it! Now!"

Jack gritted his teeth, the machine went roaring. The helicopter's rotor were lifting them up the ground, but Jack bumped the skids to the side of the building "I got it! I got it!"

The helicopter became still, the Drowned were hopelessly reaching them from underneath. Jack flew them away from the top building, away from danger.

"We'll be alrightâ€¦" Rapunzel smiled at Eugene's blue and black face.

Hiccup too, was smiling at the sight. Then suddenly Eugene's leg were being grabbed by an arm from outside the helicopter door, Rapunzel screamed.

Turns out one particular were holding on to the skids, his head pooped from underneath and bit Eugene's leg. Hiccup hurried to them, he held Eugene on his arms as well as Rapunzel, keeping him from the weight of the Drowned hanging his teeth at Eugene's leg. Eugene screamed in agony.

Hiccup's sweat making his arm began to slip, Eugen breathed to him "Don't let go..."

And with that, he was gone. Pulled by the Drowned and fell to the ground below, Rapunzel looked downwards, tears on her face running down her cheeks. But no cry were heard.

All of Jack's men went to see, the ground was too far down to see Eugene.

Rapunzel backed up, she leaned one the helicopter's wall and hugged her legs tightly.

Hiccup stared at her in silence.

Jack and Astrid knew what happened, they too were silent.

* * *

>New Chap... Please Review...

15. The Flashback

Jack found himself facing a crowd of people, beside him was his sister and mother. After the outbreak, the town of Burgess had been evacuated immediately on the nearest military station. Jack stood in a cramping line where people rushed to the front first, he held his sister's hand tight.

"Watch where you're going asshole!" Someone called from the distance.

Jack immediately guide his family further into the base, he bumped into people over and over again. He kept walking as he saw families torn apart, the whole damn world had been turned upside down in a blink. This isn't like the videogames he used to play, this was real life, this was fear.

"Jack! Wait!" His mother called.

"What? What is it mum?" Jack scrolled around, but his mother weren't there "MUM!" He called again.

"Jack where's mum?!" His sister began to panic.

Jack observed his surroundings, he was standing in the middle of people "I can't see her Emma!"

"We need to find her!" Emma squeaked.

"MUM?! MUM!" Jack and Emma yelled as loud as they could.

This isn't happening, she wouldn't have gone far. Jack almost began to fell as he heard a terrible scream, the mumbling of the people nearby silent. Then the scream came again, Jack found himself in the middle of the racing crowd trying to get away from whatever made that scream.

Then one bump made him let go of Emma, Jack watched as she was driven away from the crowd.

"EMMA!" Jack called, he pushed through dozens of people and came out to see Emma waving in the distant "HANG IN THERE EMMA!"

Jack sped up, he climb up a person to get to the other side. He began to cramp again, the massive amount of people trying to get inside the evacuation zone were pounding on him from each side. Then he saw it, Emma in the distant, silently calling for help.

Jack immediately grab her shoulder, Emma turned around to him and smiled with pleasure.

A gunshot were heard, then the gasp of people. Another gunshot was fired, but this one was automatic, Jack watched as the man in front of him died when a bullet went through his forehead. The shooter came from the watchtower inside the evacuation zone.

"Get down!" Jack ordered to Emma, she immediately do as she was told.

Jack were crouching with Emma in the waves of feet trying to stomp them, they dodged and crouched away from the panicking people. They were trying to get away from those bullets from the military, and something from behind them.

Jack coughed as dusts from shoes went through his nostrils, and thousands of feet bumping his stomach continuously. He felt as if he was about to faint, then Emma grabbed his hand and pulled him forward.

Then something were in the way, it was another one of what they called Infected. But it was their mother.

Jack stared with horror in his eyes, his mum had been crushed to death by hundreds of people. She then took a leg and chew it on her bloody teeth, the owner of the leg screamed.

Jack backed away, he stood up and yanked Emma to stand too. He carried her on his shoulder and ran through the mass of people, as well as dodging the dead away from his feet.

They arrived at the gate in the quarantined zone, he puts down Emma and banged his fist hard on the metal gate "LET US IN! LET US IN!"

Then two guards with automatic weapons pointed it at them "Hands in the air!"

"Were not sick!" Emma said.

"Handsâ€¦ IN THE FUCKING AIR!" The other one yelled.

Jack backed away from the gate, his hand carried Emma's "Please, just let us in!"

A woman dressed as a scientist came running to the gate, her colorful dyed hair flew everywhere "Let them in!"

"But ma'amâ€¦" One of the soldier objects.

"They're children Aster! Let them in!" The woman ordered.

His friend unlocked the gate slightly and Jack yanked Emma inside, he saw the gate being closed again. The soldier were grabbed by a hand from outside the gate, one of the Infected had successfully got him. The soldier cried in pain as the Infected bites of his lower arm, Aster immediately help. He tried to yank his friend's arm out from the Infected's bite, but it didn't work as more of them began to bite it too.

Jack watched as he screamed and screamed, Aster was in shock he shot the man's face with his automatic rifle. Jack covers his sister's eyes.

The man fell to the ground, with a few Infected still biting on his arm. Aster walked away from the gate, he went pass Jack and the woman without seeing their faces.

Then the woman came to Jack "Come, let's get you two inside."

"What about those people outside?" Emma asked.

The woman looked from behind the gate "We can't help themâ€¦"

"Then why did you help us?" Jack asked.

"I didn't want toâ€¦" The woman said gloomily "My name is Toothiana, I will escort you inside."

Jack and Emma followed, they saw the inside of the military facility was bigger than they thought. But there were sick people everywhere "What's wrong with them?"

"They're not bitten, we reserve the sick and old and young first." Toothiana said.

"Oh, what are you going to do with us?" Jack asked again.

"First, we are going to bite checks. Then you two will be put into your own beds." Toothiana checked her watch.

"We will get our own beds?" Emma smiled.

"You will, sweetie. Oh, and tomorrow, we will be re-evacuated in ten o'clock in the morning." Toothiana said.

"Re-evacuated where?" Jack raised his eyebrow.

"We will all be re-evacuated to the evacuation zone in Corona City." Toothiana smiled "If you would come with me, we will get you some food and drink."

Emma and Jack walked behind her, they went through dozens of people in bed with couple of kids leaning over them "Emma?" Jack asked.

Emma looked at him.

"How are you holding up?"

"Good, I think." Emma said gloomily.

Jack tried to lighten up the conversation "Today will be different, Emma. I just know itâ€¦"

"What do you think Corona will be?" Emma asked.

Jack scratched the back of his head "I think we will find a lot of good people to take care of usâ€¦"

* * *

>Jack's backstory...

16. The Airline

The helicopter flew silently across Corona, they did not look back, nor did they wanted to. As Jack piloted the helicopter to the south and went over the broken bridge, nobody said a single word, but Rapunzel was even quiet.

Astrid looked at Jack, she remembered his hair were used to be brown "Hey, what's up with your hair?"

"Oh, it's just flourâ€¦" Jack said, then he remembered something "What about your redheaded friend?"

Astrid didn't answer at once "The Governor killed herâ€¦"

"Look, I'm sorryâ€¦" Jack said.

"Don't worry about itâ€¦" Astrid looked through the front window "I've never been on a helicopter before. You looked like you have."

Jack took a glance at Astrid "I practice."

"Yeah? Where?" Astrid asked suspiciously "I mean in this hell-sort of word we live in, where did you even get a place to practice?"

Jack chuckled "There's an object called videogames, it comes really handy in the apocalypse."

"What, you play Fallout or something?" Astrid snorted.

"I'm actually surprised you knew that game, but no." Jack smiled "Virtual Helicopter Simulator 3."

"Of course it isâ€¦" Astrid said silently.

They had a moment of enlightening in the dark, meanwhile Hiccup sat beside Rapunzel since the demise of Eugene. Since then Rapunzel hadn't let go of her legs or gave a single sound, as if she was dead.

"You're hanging there?" Hiccup asked, worried.

Rapunzel didn't answer.

Hiccup sighed "You must've loved that guy, huh? You know when I first met him, he was like allâ€¦ Smoulderâ€¦" Hiccup gestured.

Rapunzel turned her head slightly.

"That guy was all fun, I spent some time with him back when I was locked up. Never saw him shoot a gun though, I was pretty sure he was a good sharpshooter." Hiccup complimented.

Rapunzel astonishingly said "Yesâ€¦ He wasâ€¦"

Hiccup felt alerted "Oh, sorry. I didn't meant to offendâ€¦"

"Don't worry, you didn't." Rapunzel reassured.

Hiccup nodded curtly "Since when have you been in contact with Jack?"

"Oh, a few days before today. I was first sent by mother on a hunt for Frost, then I felt pity on them when I did found Jack. I promised them food, as long as they didn't mock mother again." Rapunzel slowly got out from behind her legs.

"What did they do to offend your mother?" Hiccup asked.

"Graffities, about how my mother was a tyrant, and forcing people to go against her." Rapunzel replied without looking at him.

"Did they?"

"Well, some of them didâ€¦" Rapunzel think hard "I remembered that guy did."

Hiccup looked at the tall man sitting in the far end, then Rapunzel continued "His name's Kristoff, he was an ice trader I think."

"Ice trader was a thing before?" Hiccup joked "What about your mother? What did she did before all this?"

Rapunzel rested her head on her palm "She was a republican, I was her adopted daughterâ€¦"

"You were adopted?" Hiccup began to feel more questions coming.

"I was, firstly because none of my family members are the same as me. Mother was too protective, maybe because of her position and didn't want me to ruin it." Rapunzel said grumpily.

"How come she became a leader? Or a governor?" Hiccup asked.

"She justâ€¦ Didâ€¦" Rapunzel shook both of her arms madly.

Hiccup patted her shoulder, he stood up and walked to the front seat. He peeked between Astrid and Jack "Where are we going?"

"Until our gas probably run out. Or maybe drop off somewhere near for food, Arendelle seemed closeâ€¦" Jack said.

"Good, I think I need a beer." Hiccup said, scanning the sky.

"You had too much alcohol, Hiccup." Astrid commented.

"It's gold on today's world! Maybe we can find ourselves some goldmine." Hiccup said optimistically.

"Yeah, some condoms!" Jack laughed.

"Don't make this personal, Jackâ€¦" Astrid scoffed.

"Girls don't have dicksâ€¦" Jack smirked.

"And your dick doesn't have any girl. What was your point?" Astrid spat back.

Hiccup laughed "Oh, burnâ€¦" Astrid went laughing with him.

"Alright, I better check with everyone in the back. If there's anything I should know about anyone, let me know." Hiccup said to Jack.

"Nah, they're all good, everyone's good. You have nothing to worry about, I think my men needs a little lightening up." Jack replied.

Hiccup nodded, and went back. He stood on the passenger room, awkwardly scratching his hands "Soâ€¦ Anyone wants to introduce themselves?"

Jack's men looked at him, Rapunzel did too.

"Ok, my name's Hiccup. I know, weird name, huh?" Hiccup began to sweat, he swore he heard Jack saying 'awkward' behind him "Alrightâ€¦ Why don't we start from you?"

Hiccup pointed at the tall man, his almost blue hair glinted in the sunlight "Alright. Like there's anything much to know. The name's Aster."

"Okayâ€¦ How about you?" Hiccup pointed to the one who had his mask on.

The person behind the mask were a woman, her multicolored hair fell down her back "I'm Toothiana."

"Okay, that's good. Then that leaves Ruffnut, and Kristoff." Hiccup smiled awkwardly "Welcome to the team!"

"Yay?" Toothiana said softly.

"Now what?" Hiccup said to Jack silently.

Jack grabs the headphones that were hanging above him, he puts it on and speaks to the microphone "This is the captain speaking, thank you for choosing airline Jack. Please hang in your seats, we are going to Arendelle in about, um, an hourâ€¦" Then the mic went silent.

"Well, you heard the captain." Rapunzel said to Hiccup "Let's take a seatâ€¦"

Hiccup saw her sat in front of him, her hand tapped to the empty seat beside her, gesturing for Hiccup to sit down. Hiccup took the invitation, he placed himself comfortably beside her. He smiled curtly at her and look away quickly, he watched the distant sky on the opened helicopter door "Does anyone know how to close that door?"

Everyone else raised their shoulders, Hiccup rested his chin on his hand. Astonishingly Rapunzel began to hum softly, the repeating beat with her tongue raising up and down, with the same three beats all over again.

Somehow her humming began to sound eerie as she raised her voice a little bit louder, Rapunzel immediately began to shut up and blushed awkwardly.

Meanwhile, Jack were humming the exact same song Rapunzel was humming. But more loudly.

* * *

>Can anyone guess what song Rapunzel was humming?...

17. The Kingdom

30 minutes later, the city of Corona had already gone out of sight. Rapunzel wonders what about those innocent people who died, she hoped a calm death for all of them.

She raised her legs up on to the seat, she hugged her legs again. Most of Jack's men were already asleep except for Aster, who Hiccup had watched silently and hadn't seen him blink.

Astrid too had fallen asleep, her head fell to the side of the cockpit. Jack kept his eyes on the sky, not knowing to him that Hiccup had sneaked up behind him.

Jack looked back "You startled me, sir!" He said softly.

"Sorry dude, is Astrid sleeping?" Hiccup looked to her.

"Cold deadâ€¦" Jack said casually.

"Maybe I should move her to somewhere comfortable." Hiccup suggested.

"Yeah, you do thatâ€¦" Jack said without a single care.

Hiccup carried her to the back of the helicopter on his arms, she was fast asleep and isn't easy to wake up. He adjusted her head and body away from the open door, he put a little first aid kit under her head. He looked momentarily at her, Hiccup was glad that she was still calm on all of this. He brushed a hair out of her face and sat on the floor beside her.

Rapunzel watched silently, she looked to the cockpit and saw Jack.

She stood up and walked to the front cockpit "Hey Jack."

Jack looked at her "Hello princessâ€¦"

Rapunzel sat at where Astrid had sat, she stared at the window "Do you like, know where were going?"

"Of course I doâ€¦" Jack smiled.

"Then why are we avoiding that small town over there?" Rapunzel pointed.

Jack didn't answer at once "Because we're going to Arendelleâ€¦"

"Can I ask why?" Rapunzel said suspiciously.

"There's another sanctuary there, I think we can find a few good people." Jack assured her.

"We don't have to, right?" Rapunzel began to raise her voice "I mean where is the purpose is this helicopter? Maybe we should stop somewhere, and live there."

"Yeah, Arendelle." Jack said quickly.

"We don't have to go there, landing on a nearest town works enough!" Rapunzel said.

"Arendelle, we're going to Arendelle." Jack snapped.

"Arendelle is dead, Jack! They said so before all the radio shuts down!" Rapunzel snapped back.

"If we survive, they survive too." Jack raised his own voice.

Rapunzel sighed in disappointment "You have a family there?"

Jack froze.

"Anyone related? Or maybe someone that is very special in your life that you're willing to sacrifice us just to see him or her again?"

"Bothâ€¦" Jack said coldly.

"Alrightâ€¦" Rapunzel began to feel taller "Who is it?"

"My sisterâ€¦" Jack said, holding back the anger "And that's it, nothing else."

Rapunzel looked at him with her begging face "How did you get separated?"

Jack tried very hard to keep his eyes on the sky "We were re-evacuated to Corona when the bride had been destroyed, our bus were separated when my sister's turned back when Infected were coming from every side. I was trapped with other children, then the driver said he could end our pain with a single shot. Enough for everyone."

"Then?" Rapunzel began to sympathize.

"I wanted out, I yelled and screamed so they threw me out. But the Infected were still banging their hands on the bus sides, so I waited and saw other children who wanted death, got it." Jack sniffed his nose "More people had loss hope but I stay sane because of the thought my sister was still alive, it wasn't an obsession, but a belief. Everyone was dead, the driver kept asking me if I want my turn. Then he killed himself, my stomach was very empty and my lips were very dry because I waited and waited, until all the Infected began to scatter."

"Then what?" Rapunzel asked again.

"I waited one night by the school bus door, what if an Infected is waiting just by the other side. I kept thinking to myself, I was already dead, I was already dead, over and over again. Once I was outside at the kill zone, I tried my best to be as quiet as possible. Then came the bridge, it wasn't as big as it was before so I could jump over it. And that's how I'm here todayâ€¦" Jack wiped his eye.

"And what makes you think she's in Arendelle?" Rapunzel said.

"Toothiana said something about another base in Arendelle, which was used to be like a backup sanctuary." Jack said "It has to be where they are, where my sister is."

"But are you really sure?" Rapunzel was trying to reassuring herself.

Jack took a glimpse at her "Yes."

"Well then, then we have no regrets at all in getting there." Rapunzel said coldly.

"Okay. What is up with you?!" Jack demanded.

"Nothing!" Rapunzel replied quickly.

"You definitely think that this is a waste of time! Do you?! Then tell me, am I wrong to save my only family I have, the only one that I should have been made up a long time ago. Am I wrong to do that?!" Jack yelled.

Rapunzel felt a rising guilt "No." She said softly.

"Am. I. wrong?!" Jack yelled again.

"No!" Rapunzel said it louder this time, she looked away from him and watched her legs sadly.

They had a moment of silence, then Rapunzel said again "I didn't think it was a waste of timeâ€¦"

Jack snorted silently.

"I justâ€¦ Can't get this feeling out of my head that I am better than anyone else, that I was the most pitifulâ€¦ And I don't like it." Rapunzel began to cry, he hugged herself tightly.

"It's called ego, don't worry about it." Jack said coldly.

"I'm sorry Jack, I'm justâ€¦ Sorryâ€¦" Rapunzel said the last part slowly.

Jack didn't answer, he looked to the sky and guided the helicopter with full concentration. Then something was glinting in the distant, Jack leaned forward a bit and saw a huge amount of water. A lake.

Jack quickly puts on his microphone "This is the captain speaking, we're about to reach Arendelle, I repeat, we are about to reach Arendelle."

Jack felt a rising hope on his chest, he is still hoping for his sister's present there.

They were closing in on the beautiful kingdom placed near the lake, he remembered that Arendelle was built a very long time ago and was still used today. But something was wrong. There was smoke, and fire on the top of the highest castle.

He flew right above it, and he can see nobody, not even a silhouette of an Infected.

18. The Crash

"Where the hell is everybody?" Jack mumbled.

"There should've been something there, I mean, there's smoke." Rapunzel said also.

"I'm going to land somewhereâ€¦" Jack said, he steered the helicopter left and adjusted it in the air. He took the microphone and spoke "This is Captain Jack, we will descend at any moment, please hang on to your seats because the captain don't know shit about landing helicopters. Thank youâ€¦"

"You don't know how to land a helicopter?" Rapunzel breathed.

"No ma'am, I do not." Jack said, he easily and carefully puts down the helicopter right on the flat-roofed house under it.

Hiccup immediately appeared from behind "You don't know how to land a helicopter?"

"I don't, please get back to your seat, thank youâ€¦" Jack sighed.

Then Toothiana came "You don't know how to land a helicopter?"

Jack glared at her "I can backflip it if you want."

"Rightâ€¦" Toothiana disappeared.

"Alright. If anyone wants to ask me if I can land a helicopter. Knock yourself out!" Jack called, nobody replied.

"Once we get down, I want some of your men to search the area. In case anything hears this helicopter." Hiccup said.

"Haddock, I have four men left, might as well send them all." Jack said softly.

"Since when did you called me Haddock?" Hiccup raised his eyebrow.

"Since your mom. Now will you please get back to your seat?!" Jack commanded frustratingly.

"Jeez, alright." Hiccup sighed, and went back. He sat beside Astrid, who were already awake.

"Hehâ€¦ Haddockâ€¦" Astrid laughed silently.

"Shut up." Hiccup smirked, he nudged Astrid's shoulder a bit.

Astrid counter attacked with a hard push at his, she laughed loudly.

"Why, did you do that?" Hiccup groaned.

Astrid leaned to the side of the helicopter "What do you think we will find other than wine and beer?"

"I would sayâ€¦ Someplace safe for us to live? Maybe make a new community?" Hiccup suggested.

"I'd like that, no one have to die anymore." Astrid replied, she rested her head on his shoulder.

"Yeah, that would be great." Hiccup smiled.

The speaker spoke again "Hello, yes this is dog. Just kidding you guys. This is the captain speaking, we are about to land in, three, two, oneâ€¦"

Hiccup and the others felt the helicopter shook madly, the skid made a screeching sound as it made contact with the rooftop. Hiccup held onto Astrid tightly, the skid were sliding on top of it, but it stopped just when it almost fell on the edge.

"Whaâ€¦ Ho! Ho! Ho! Ho! I did it! I can't believe it worked!" Jack tried to breathe as he talks.

"Hooray youâ€¦" Rapunzel was hugging her seat tightly, and still shaking.

The whole passengers gasped, the helicopter lurched and shook as if it was sinking down. Then they heard a loud noise of cracking and mix to screams, the rooftop fell inside and bringing the helicopter with it.

"EVERYONE HANG TIGHT!" Astrid yelled very loudly so it pierced through the screams.

Hiccup grab hold of the metal handrail right in front of him on the opposite wall, Astrid took his waist just in time before the helicopter turned upside down. Everyone grab hold of something so their bodies won't be tumbled and thrown to the insides of the helicopter, then it stops with the helicopter leaning to the other side.

Hiccup felt a massive headache, followed by a cold streak of blood. With all his might he opened his eyes, it was dark than being outside, only a few sunbeams came from the massive hole above them. The gravity made his body to be pulled downwards straight to the helicopter door, but his hand is still holding onto the handrail.

The other passengers are grunting as they adjusted themselves to their seatbelts, Rapunzel and Jack are both unconscious. And Astridâ€¦

"Wait! Where's Astrid?!" Hiccup yelled, his eyes widened as he saw Astrid wasn't holding his waist anymore. He let go of the handrail and let his body slide down the floor, then his legs felt the hard floor, the metal leg clanked in the hollow air.

Hiccup was in an abandoned house, with debris everywhere "Astrid?!" Hiccup called "Astrid!?"

"Shushâ€¦" Someone sneaked up behind him, it was Aster "Hear that?"

Hiccup listened closely, there were a couple of rasping sounds "Yeahâ€¦" He whispered.

"Let's go check it outâ€¦" Aster walked past him.

"Wait, what about Astrid?" Hiccup whispered loudly.

"You go find her, I'll search the houseâ€¦" Aster replied softly, then disappeared through the door.

Hiccup looked around and saw large planks of wood scattered, Astrid could be anywhere.

Toothiana slid down and landed beside him "I'll make sure everyone's ok. You find Astrid, go!"

Hiccup whirled around, he ran off to outside the room. It was a stairwell and another room at the opposite side, Hiccup saw it was unlocked so he got in.

Inside was Aster with his weapon still in his hand, he stared on a bed with a Walker on it.

"What are you doing here?" Hiccup said slowly, the Walker seemed that it couldn't get up.

"This is a child, look at her." Aster said.

Hiccup saw the rotting and skinny body of the still moaning Walker, her head were almost empty of hair "She looks like she hadn't been fedâ€¦"

"Right you are, what do you insist we should do with her, mate?" Aster asked.

"Dispose her? Andâ€¦ Maybe bury her?" Hiccup tried to sound sympathetic.

Aster shook his head, he whirled and turn his gun around and bashed her skull with the butt of the automatic rifle "Let's just leave her beâ€¦"

Hiccup and Aster turned, they suddenly rooted to the floor. A woman a little shorter than them were pointing her Fedorov rifle at them, her orange braided hair fell to one side of her shoulder.

She smirked in a satisfied way "Drop the gun, Bunny." She ordered to Aster.

Aster did as he say and raised both hands up, Hiccup did too "You know we could just yelp for help, right?"

The woman laughed "I think my sister's took care of that." She cocked the gun loudly, as if she was trying to act cool "The name's Anna, and welcome to Arendelle."

19. The Sisters

"Woah mate, calm downâ€¦" Aster tried to negotiate "We didn't know this building was occupied, I swear if we knew it was we would not land hereâ€¦"

"As if we were picking a place to landâ€¦" Hiccup muttered.

Surprisingly, Anna puts her gun down "So, you're not one of _them_?"

"Do we need to know who 'them' is?" Hiccup raised his eyebrow.

Anna raised her shoulder "Not really. Not right now actually."

"Soâ€¦ Can I get my gun back?" Aster looked down.

Anna sighed "I suppose you can, you Englishmen."

Aster nodded and took his gun again, they both put down their arms.

Anna kept cautious, she still pointed her Fedorov at their legs "Anyone of your friends do something stupid, it's the bullet."

Hiccup got himself shot in the head by something, but not a bullet "What about a blonde girl? Do you have her?"

"Uh, can you be specific?" Anna said stupidly.

"Blonde, her hair tied behind her head, and she was wearing a blue shirt and grey jeans." Hiccup explained.

Anna tried hard enough to remember "I'm sorry, I don't know. Maybe she walked off somewhereâ€¦"

"What? That couldn't be. She was holding on to me when we crash! Andâ€¦ And I was a bit unconscious and I don't know where she was!" Hiccup said in disbelief.

"We could try finding her later, now if you like. I need to meet my sister, you can come." Anna walked out of the room.

Aster and Hiccup exchanged looks, the too followed her.

Back at the crashed-in room, they found that the group were gathering closely. But someone else was with them, a pale woman with snow white hair is leaning over unconscious Rapunzel, and Astrid.

"Holy crap." Hiccup hurried to the scene, he leaned over her unconscious face quickly and sat right beside the white haired woman. Astrid was anything but fine, he could see a sharp metal object piercing the side of her shirt "Isâ€¦ Is she okay? How did this happen?" Hiccup said in panic.

The white haired woman calmed him down "I found her on a pile of debris, she was unconscious when I did. I can heal her cut, I just need some surgical stitching sutures." She said.

"Wait. How could I trust you to do that?!" Hiccup said in disbelief.

"I was a doctor once, and my name is Elsa." She replied calmly.

"Alright, where do we get that?" Hiccup asked, he was wasting every seconds.

"There's a hospital nearby, get there and find me a surgical suture packs. I'll make sure these two are okay." Elsa ordered "I'll have my sister Anna for your aid, you should leave now before an infection kicks inâ€¦"

"I'll come with you." Ruffnut suddenly said, she was leaning on a wall "You could need a few more hand."

"I'll come tooâ€¦" Toothiana said.

But then Elsa stopped her "No, I need you here for a surgery. You are a scientist right?"

"What about me?" Kristoff volunteered.

"Alright, no one else. We need someone to guard here." Elsa said strictly "If that's all, then hurry. We don't have much time."

Hiccup turned to Kristoff and the others "You heard her, come on." He walked quickly to the stairwell.

They all followed Hiccup out of the house, one by one they got out of the poorly illuminated house. The sun was shining over their eyes, Hiccup felt like he hadn't been out for days. The roads were cobbled one by one as it seems, the houses and abandoned stores were old looking.

There isn't much threat as they look around.

"Where's the hospital?" Hiccup asked to Anna.

"It's somewhere down the left street." Anna pointed to the junction a few meters in front of them, one road goes down and the other goes up.

"Maybe we should keep our voices low?" Kristoff said as he pointed towards the incoming Walker nearby.

Hiccup moved just in time before Anna shot it "We don't need an extra noiseâ€¦" He leaned down to grab a sharp edged rock and clutch it tightly on his hand, closer he moved the Walker's was more rotting than anything he had ever encountered, almost all its bones were showing through the open wounds. Hiccup swung his rock hand quickly and strongly from his waist up, the Walker became still and fell to its side with the rock still stuck in its skull.

"Come onâ€¦" Hiccup hurried forward, the others did not say a word.

The group tried to walk as fast as him, for someone who hardly drinks and barely eats he walked faster than them all. They haven't ate since this morning, Hiccup guessed it was past afternoon.

Meanwhile at the back, Anna silently staring at Kristoff. He caught sight of her "What?"

"Did you know that one of your eyebrow is bright yellow?" Anna said happily, then she blushed "Sorry, just forget it."

Kristoff brushed her eyebrows with his thumb, a yellow substances were left on it. Kristoff sniff it softly "Smells like ginger spice." He muttered.

"How so?" Anna asked.

"I guess from the breakfast I got todayâ€¦" He said.

"So, where were you before here?" Anna asked again.

Kristoff rubbed the back of his head "I rather not talk about itâ€¦"

"Well, alright then. What did you do before all of this happened?" She began to walk beside him.

Kristoff rubbed his chin "I was an ice trader, about three months ago, if I'm correct."

Anna's face split into a smile "Woah, we have that here!"

"What? Ice trader?"

"Yeah, exactly." Anna replied.

"What about you? What did you do?" Kristoff asked back.

Anna huffed "It wasn't actually good. I lost my job, I couldn't find a good working place, I was carrying tons of debt. Mostly my sister payed my apartment bills, I couldn't thank her enough. The only good thing that comes for me is the apocalypse, I was feeling a littleâ€¦ Freeâ€¦"

Kristoff looked at her "Roughâ€¦" He muttered, Kristoff then added "Have you been living here with your sister since then?"

"Elsa thinks it's better if we stay, the sanctuary was overrun and died quickly. Luckily the a few Undead wanders into the city, mostly we clear themâ€¦ But then a group showed upâ€¦" Anna said a little softer on the last part.

"Group? Not us?" Kristoff asked to assure himself.

"No. They're the opposite of you guys. We found them sacrificing one of their members just so the rest could get away from a herd of Undead, then a few came to us and threaten us for food and water, andâ€¦ Andâ€¦" Anna buried her face in her face "Oh Godâ€¦" She said as softly as possible.

"What? What happened?" Kristoff quickly said, warily.

Anna wiped away her small amount of tears "No. Letsâ€¦ Not talk about thatâ€¦"

Kristoff backed away "Oâ€¦ Okayâ€¦"

"You guys are nice, we don't get that anymore." Anna sniffed.

Kristoff did not speak, his words were interrupted by the sound of Hiccup.

"Anna! Is that it?!" Hiccup called back, he was pointing at the medium sized building just over a few ones.

"Yeah, that's it!" Anna replied loudly.

"Alright, no time to lose!" Hiccup said again, then he raced faster forward.

* * *

>Hi guys... Sorry if my writing lately is a bit off... I am working on the fanart... In the meantime I am waiting for your reviews... Enjoy!..

20. The Talk

Back at the wrecked house, Jack was sitting in a dusty floor with his legs crossed. He hadn't remove his sight form unconscious Rapunzel, he felt a rising guilt looking at her swollen forehead.

Elsa watched from afar, six of them including Astrid and Rapunzel stayed behind. Aster was still busy removing the supplies that are still in the helicopter "I found a med kit. Can we use that?"

Elsa snapped awake "Oh, yes, sure."

Aster slid down the helicopter and walked towards her "There isn't any sutures in here, but a few painkillers will help wouldn't it?"

"Yes, it will help. Thank you." Elsa took the box and opens it, he was right and there wasn't any sutures, only two painkillers, one roll of bandage, a syringe still wrapped in plastic, and two bottles of penicillin antibiotics.

She rushed to Jack "How's she doing?"

"She haven't woken up, is she going to be like this for a while?" Jack said, his fist clenched in front of his lips.

"I think so. But she will survive, I can assure you that." Elsa assured him, but he didn't seem to listen. Elsa puffed and sighed "Look, it will be alright. She will be fine."

Jack moved aside so Elsa could sit beside him, she took out the bandage and one bottle of penicillin, she combined them both "How did you get the helicopter?" She wraps Rapunzel's forehead as she asked.

"It's downloadable content." Jack said coolly.

"For what?" Elsa asked again.

"Well, I won't exactly say it 'downloadable', more like a 'trophy'. Know what I mean?" Jack gave a heart-warming smile.

Elsa chuckled "Is that what you do before all this? Play videogames? Gosh, you sound just like Anna!"

"I was a teenager." Jack added "It's what I do since I don't have a job."

"How old are you?" Elsa rested her head on her hand.

"About, 19, I dunno. It has been a while since I kept track of time." Jack said lazily.

"We all did." Elsa smiled.

Jack coughed when he found her staring closely at his eyes "When will she wake up?" His had pointing at Rapunzel.

Elsa backed her head away from him a bit "Maybe, for a few days. I've seen people who wouldn't wake up for two months, I didn't know what happened to him though, I left the hospital since the outbreak."

"Alright, I admit being a doctor is pretty cool. So, where you professional one?" Jack leaned on with arm backwards.

"I don't know professional. I would say fine." Elsa replied, Jack had never met someone so modest. Which is really isn't saying much comparing to his sisterâ€¦ His sisterâ€¦

"Dâ€¦ Do you have some kind of sanctuary nearby? One that is still have people in it?" Jack said quickly.

"For all I know it has been gone for a long time, it's abandoned." Elsa explained.

Jack felt a sudden lurching in his stomach, as if a thousand voices called out in disbelief "Surely that they have already fled!"

"No, I saw it myself. I didn't see when the gate's been breached, but there were Undead everywhere." Elsa said gloomily.

Jack buried his face in his hands, feeling exhausted and frustration. He wouldn't give up now, not now when he's so close "But is there a possibility?!" He snapped.

"Sure, there should be." Elsa began to feel threatened "What is up with it, anyway?"

"I have a relative that I think is staying thereâ€¦" Jack confessed, he didn't bother to lie about it.

"Oh, I'm sorry. I hope they really made it out, it's still a possibilityâ€¦" Elsa patted his shoulder, then she peeked across his back "I really need to get to Astrid, see if I can get that piece of metal out of her stomach. Can I trust you to guard over Rapunzel?"

Jack nodded.

"Thank you, Jack. By the way, I like your hairâ€¦" Elsa complimented.

Jack looked up to his forehead, he brushed his finger on a piece of hair. The flour didn't come off at once, guess it had stuck to his hair. But Jack rather keep his hair like that, Elsa liked it she said.

Jack saw Toothiana and Aster were both chatting in a rising and falling tone on the opposite side of the room, Jack didn't bother to interrupt.

He stared at Rapunzel, now he felt bad at yelling at her. She was the one to understand him unlike her mother, and repaying her in fury was just plain rude. Jack had a lot of things to make up, not just to Rapunzel, but his friends and his sister as he promised her a 3 months ago that he would find her.

* * *

>Hiccup's group had already reached the front door of the hospital, which were covered in a metal folding door. He got a sick feeling and a horrid vision of Merida for one second, he shook his head.

"Any other way in?" Hiccup asked Anna.

"Yeah, there's stairwell down the back of the hospital. It was used for emergency long ago." Anna replied.

Kristoff went in front of them "We've got Walkers, three of them." He alerted to the ones that are coming out of the alley.

"You have a knife or some sort?" Hiccup asked Anna. She shook her head.

"Well, guess we should take them out the old way." Kristoff said before shooting three rounds per Walker, they all fell down before even reached ten feet. Kristoff lowered his gun "Guess there are no other Walkers, Ruffnut and I will keep a lookout, you two okay if search the hospital alone?"

"We're good." Anna assured. Kristoff gestured to Ruffnut and walked away from them.

Hiccup turned to Anna "Do you know the insides of the hospital?"

"Yeah, my sister used to work here. Let's go around the back." Anna marched to the alleyway. Hiccup followed.

When Kristoff and Ruffnut were out of sight, Hiccup kept cautious "I really need a weapon of some sort."

"Fancy a Fedorov?" Anna asked softly.

Hiccup shook his head "I'm not really a good shot at automatic rifles."

"I'll teach you someday." Anna smiled.

Before Hiccup could reply, he was interrupted by a low growl. They entered the back of the hospital, which was a small parking lot for ambulance, and one of them made a constant rapping.

"Stay hereâ€¦" Hiccup ordered to Anna.

He walked and stood beside the ambulance door, he grabbed the handle and waited. Then he swung it open, with a Walker fell face first to the asphalt ground, Hiccup's heart gave a jolt.

He pinned down the back of its neck with his foot so the Walker couldn't get up "Kill it!" He called to Anna.

She hurried and bashed its head with the butt of her gun, the blood spluttered everywhere.

"Yuckâ€¦" Anna grumbled.

"Now we've taken care of that, time for the ambulance." Hiccup jumped from the back of the ambulance and climbed inside. It was dark and putrid ooze came running into his mouth.

"Smells like that guy had been here with no shower." Hiccup muttered exaggeratingly. He continued to look around.

He peeked inside every cabinet and every first aid kits, there were no sutures. Hiccup cursed and bit his lip, until he found something that might be useful.

In front of him was a small switchblade, he could see the silver blade being unarmed inside the black coating of the handle. Hiccup flipped it open, and a clip point blade sprung out.

He walked out of the ambulance "Come on." He turned to Anna "Let's get this over with."

21. The Hospital

Hiccup pressed his ear to the back door of the hospital, there were no moaning. He nodded to Anna, which gestured for her that it was clear "Just keep cautious."

"Rightâ€¦" She replied, her finger twitched on the trigger as she lift it up.

Hiccup opens the door slowly, which resulted in a long loud creak. He bit his lower lips, the switchblade sprung on his hand. Everywhere he see was dark, there was no light source except from the back door, Hiccup immediately stated that he was in the emergency room.

"You have some flashlight?" Hiccup whispered to Anna.

"I have a lighter." Anna went to his back pocket and pulled out a small silver cigarette lighter.

Hiccup flicked it open, the fire was dim but enough to reveal the whole room. There were hospital beds scattered from where they supposed to be, the curtains were some opened and some closed and the other was torn down. He walk through the medical objects in the floor, he scanned the room for some box of sutures but didn't find any. Instead was bottles of alcohol tinctures were placed on a nearby table.

"Ever made a Molotov cocktail?" Hiccup muttered.

"No. But I know how though." Anna replied softly, her voice trailed away as a distant clunk was heard.

The sound made them both jump, Hiccup pressed his finger on his lips. He walked first, trying to make sounds as small as possible. He lift the lighter in front of him, he saw on the corner of the room was another door, it was green but the paint looks like it had been scratched over and over again.

Again, Hiccup pressed his ear to the door, no sound. He jiggled the handle a few times "Lockedâ€¦" He muttered.

"Now what?" Anna hissed.

"I think I can jiggle it open, I just need a few tools." Hiccup whispered.

"Can't we just kick the heck out of it?"

"We don't know what's behind it." Hiccup countered, he thought of Astrid that time, how she would kick the door open even if he had said not to. He shook his fist frustratingly "Fine, we can kick it open."

He was considering that decision, he is considering that decision after he said it. What if something wrong happen? What if there were like, a hundred Walkers just waiting on the other side.

"Are you sure?" Anna raised her eyebrow.

"Wait, let me justâ€¦" Hiccup then knocked on the metal green door a few times, the sound was loud enough for anything in the other side to hear. Amazingly there was no answer, and no banging on the door from the other side.

Hiccup walked back a bit, he adjusted the aim and kicked his right leg to the center of the door. It didn't budge "Hold on, I think I kicked at the wrong place." Hiccup stepped back and kicked it again, this time at the lock side of the door.

"Hey!" Anna suddenly said.

Hiccup looked at her with a sweaty face.

"It supposed to open outwards." Anna pointed at the hinge.

Hiccup looked with the face of agony "Well, now what?"

"Let's seeâ€¦" Anna stood beside him to get a closer look, she pointed her Fedorov at the lock. She hesitated "Do you think it would work?"

Hiccup only raised his shoulders.

Anna didn't change her mind, she fired a shot to the lock. The gunshot rang across everywhere, Hiccup felt a little uncomfortable with it.

"It didn't breakâ€¦" Anna muttered angrily, looking at the almost broken lock.

"But I think it worked, canâ€¦ Can we try that again? You do have more magazines for it, right?" Hiccup asked to lighten her up.

"Yeah, alright. I think I have one more with Elsa." She lifted the gun again, she fired it for two times until finally they heard the lock fell to the floor, the door swung slowly at them.

Hiccup was speechless "Ladies first?" He joked.

Anna glared at him for a few seconds, Hiccup immediately walk fast through the door, avoiding her gaze.

Once on the other side, he raised the lighter just above his head. It was a short hallway, in the end he could see the glass panels used as the front door. The light from it was covered from the metal folding door on the other side, only little rays of sun made through the gap.

"Where's the stairs?" Hiccup asked Anna.

"Just on the corner at the other room." Anna pointed.

Hiccup nodded and walked first, he entered the check in room. He could see a bit clearly with the lighter plus the sun rays, the seats were still tidy and not trashed, but the counter had one of its computers hacked and sliced.

Like Anna said, there were stairs leading up on the opposite side from them. Hiccup gestured to Anna to follow him, he led her down the stairs, it was a stairwell and it keeps going up.

"Any parts of the hospital I need to know? Where's the surgery room?" Hiccup asked.

"Thatâ€¦ Was the surgery room..." Anna said softly.

"But I thought that was the emergency room, was that the emergency room?" Hiccup began to say quickly.

"It was, that's because it was for surgery..." Anna said.

Hiccup deadpanned "What about the storing room? Anywhere upstairs?"

"There is one in the second floor, just a few flights." Anna explained.

"Alright, anything else?" Hiccup asked again, for precautions.

"Not from what I know, if there's anyone dead and walking I think we can cover it." Anna assured.

Hiccup climbed first, just as he thought, there were no Walkers as far as they have seen. Then he arrived at the second floor, he tilted the lighter left and right, and saw a double metal door who had been painted with words just a few steps on his left.

Anna arrived beside him, she took a long hard look at it "Don't Dead Open Inside?"

"No, it says Don't Open, Dead Inside. You... You read it from top to bottom." Hiccup corrected, Anna didn't seem to care.

He left the door as well, because there seemed to be no dead inside. He followed her from behind, lighter and switchblade still at hand.

Then Anna stopped, she was standing in front of a door "It's just over here... Aren't you coming in?"

"What?! You're the one with the gun!" Hiccup hissed.

"Oh come on, if there was something we should have heard it." Anna said, ignoring his denial.

"We definitely heard something!" Hiccup countered.

"I thought it was just my imagination." Anna put her arms on her hips.

"Oh yeah? Then why don't you go in first?"

"Because, I got principles..." Anna grinned, then she stopped "Turns out I can't live by them..."

Hiccup stared confused "What does that supposed to mean?"

"Fine, I'll go in first. But if anything attacks me, it's on... AAGH!" Anna yelped loudly, a cat just sprung out of the room and ran outside, away down the stairs.

Hiccup watched as it disappeared from sight, he turned to Anna as she was breathing hard and touching the handle as she gains balance "Whuh... What the... What was that?"

"That was a cat." Hiccup said calmly, he walked past her so he could get inside "I'll come in first from now on..."

He moved his lighter left and right, the fire shows a lot of medical item. Then he turned to Anna "Can you find me the sutures?"

"It's... It's just over there at that cabinet..." Anna gasped for air, then she fell to her knees "I need to lie down..."

"Keep yourself in there, champ..." Hiccup muttered loudly.

He walked past a few shelves and boxes, he turned around the corner and walked towards the cabinet. He saw a lot of sterile and unwrapped sutures and needles, he isn't really a doctor so he didn't know which sutures go with the right line because each box had different colors, it was for Astrid's sake so he took one of each colors.

Hiccup turned to Anna "You need something?"

"Just find me some water, kay?" She called from the door.

Hiccup looked around, he did found some water bottles stacked neatly on top of one shelf. But he realized he needs something to carry these.

"Is there any bag I could use?" Hiccup called to Anna.

"There's plastic bags underneath the cabinet, each size for each purpose." Anna said, Hiccup heard her muttered something like "Each size for each purpose, heh, that was dorky..."

Hiccup saw a small drawer under it, he pulled out one long plastic bag and put everything useful inside it. He might need some food, once he saw an MRE bag he could not resist.

Anna saw him walked past her "Alright, let's go. Can you stand up?" Hiccup said.

Anna pushed her legs "Yeah, I can manage."

"Alright, let's get out of here." Hiccup walked towards the stairs, the two disappeared from sight.

22. The Wolves part 1

Elsa dashed through the halls of the hospital, she went through a couple of people who are busily evacuated and most of them are patients. Elsa herself couldn't believe something like this would ever happen, she wasn't optimistic but even a situation like this had never came to her mind.

The dead are rising, that's what she could think at the time. She had seen the news, every single one of them would broadcast the infection and the walking and the immortality. The world is coming to an end fast.

She approached the lift and clicked the down button. She rubbed both of her hands impatiently, head tilted to the number of floors on the top of her head. The hallway had been deserted, everyone left in a hurry. Her white doctor outfit had made her pretty sweaty, she took it off and revealed a green t-shirt.

She remembered she had to do something, but what? All of this stress and the rising urge to get her sister to safety only made it more annoying and a head pain.

A distant grumbling was heard, footsteps clanking in one of the halls. Elsa watched and waited, she steadied herself to the floor waiting for a surprise attack. Until she heard a low moan her heart stopped.

Elsa pressed the button impatiently, as many times as possible to make the elevator go faster. She looked up again, only one floor away. But the footsteps and the moans were coming from...

Elsa jumped back in surprise as the lift door flew apart with a bell, a figure falling towards her, an infected man had jumped her from the front of her.

She struggled as the weight of the rotting body fell to her hands, keeping the blackened mouth from biting her neck. The growl and her hiss was anyone's worse nightmare, Elsa watched as her hands pushed to the side, making the infected being thrown.

She quickly got up, her face stared in horror as she could saw the falling skins of the infected's face. She couldn't take it anymore, she dug the heel of her shoe to the creature's eye, continued to kick until there was no movement from the dreaded beast. Elsa pulled back, she saw her foot had crushed a part of the infected's brain. At least now she knew what will kill them.

She looked to the elevator, another body was there. It was obvious she wasn't taking it, she had to follow the rest of her people.

Elsa decided to take the stairs, she dashed down a few flights before stopping at a particular floor. Her head stared at the double metal door which was locked for a reason, behind it she could hear the moaning and growling of the patients she could not safe. The chains stood strongly between the handles, Elsa looked around and saw an unfinished painted room, inside was a black paint.

She immediately took it and returned to the metal door, slowly painted the words _DON'T OPEN DEAD INSIDE_ with the brush she found. At least if anyone finds this place (hopefully the military) she would warn them not to open this room.

She kicked the paint aside, after that she wiped her brow. Fortunately the lights are still blaring, so she could still look without the trouble of seeing. Elsa continued downstairs, her heels clicked rhythmically on every step.

She entered the waiting room, which was dimly lit from the evening sunset. She could see from the glass panels are infected people roaming the streets, whatever happened to her patients she did not know. Her colleagues would be dead now, no, that would never happen. She told herself.

Elsa quickly reached the top of the panels and pulled down a metal folding door, the rust creaked and made a loud noise as it was closed and locked shut.

Elsa moved to the counter on the opposite side of the room, she thrashed the desk hoping she would find any information about patient zero, or anything she could find to help her cure everything. She gasped as another footstep were heard, but this time from the back hallway.

She hurried her search, but this time for a weapon. There it was an axe were hanging in the wall next to the fire extinguisher, she pulled it down and hold her position. The footstep sounds like it was running and getting closer. Elsa held the axe close to her heart, she had never killed anyone before and the footstep sounds like it wasn't an infected.

She hadn't had time to think as a shadow went passed her, her reflexes made her arm flung the axe down, unluckily it fell on one of the computers. She looked up and saw Anna, thunder-struck.

"You almost cut off my head..." Anna breathed.

Elsa tried to explain, but her voice trailed away as she saw her sister carrying a gun which was strapped to her shoulder "You had a gun?! When did you get a gun?!"

"Look I know you couldn't forgive me for carrying a dangerous weapon, but it's important that we need these things, I mean look at you!" Anna said, arms gesturing to the hacked computer.

"Where did you get a gun?" Elsa calmed down, she had trouble removing the axe from the computer.

Anna shrugged "Some friends I just found..."

Elsa made a look of disbelief as she suddenly pulled the axe strongly "Just found?"

"They're the Wolves..."

"NO! Definitely not!" Elsa snapped, she knew who the Wolves were. The town had a motorcycle gang of rednecks which would go drunk, destroying city property, and street fighting. Basically Elsa's pain in the ass.

Anna groaned "Come on! They helped a lot! People like them are reliable in the apocalypse!"

"Really? Helped a lot?" Elsa said sarcastically "People like them should be dead in the apocalypse!"

"Sis, I've played enough videogames to train me for this moment. It was worth it!" Anna said.

Elsa made another obvious look of disbelief "You think this is funny?!"

"No! Of course not!" Anna gasped "Just give them a chance! They won't be another pain for you. They had recruited people in the last few days!"

"Wait. YOU'VE JOINED THEM?!"

Anna bit her lower lips "Shhh... Don't get mad..."

* * *

>So this is a flashback from Elsa's and Anna's past... It will be a two part or more, but I am focusing on The Pines Twins crossover from now... As always... Review...

Girlfriend : Did they review?

Not yet, my dear, not yet...

23. The Wolves part 2

YAY!... 500 views!.. Isn't really what I should celebrating, but THANK YOU FOR READING TO THIS POINT!..

* * *

>Anna and Elsa had been with the Wolves for a while now, each day with them isn't what Elsa would call safe. According to her everything they do is dangerous. The infected people wasn't on the number one on the 'must be avoided' list because even she had to make personal space of 5 feet with each members of the Wolves, they usually flirts with her daily or just there to annoy her, by bashing skulls in front of her, wearing blood on their mask, fencing with sticks, making loud noises, et cetera, et cetera. Elsa was greatly disgusted and shook her head in disbelief.

Anna blends in perfectly, she didn't have that 'beauty face' on her, mostly covered by laughs and wide smiles trying to bright up the apocalypse. The Wolves boys didn't bother her much, which is one of what Elsa's thankful for on this god forsaken world.

Elsa watched from afar with her back leaning against a tree, the Wolves talking aloud around the fire with Anna in it.

Elsa looked away as Anna looked at her.

Anna smiled "Aren't you going to eat with us, sis?" She called, waving the canned baked beans in her hand at Elsa.

"Nah." Elsa rejected softly "I'll get mine later." She usually eats when they all went to sleep, sometimes she didn't eat at all.

"Don't give us that 'saving food' bullshit!" One of the Wolves called at her.

Anna nudged his shoulder "Language!"

Elsa felt her stomach grumble, maybe it was worth the food "Alright. I'll eat."

Anna fisted the air "Yeah! Since when is the last time you've ate?" She scooted to make room for Elsa.

"Yesterday?"

"That was rhetorical, don't answer it."

"Alrightâ€¦" Elsa raised her eyebrow, she suddenly felt in her palm was the baked bacon with the lid already opened.

Anna reached for something in her pocket "Spoon?"

Elsa stared warily "Is it clean?"

"I've used it to eat, then cleaned it with shirt. Is that clean?"

Elsa tried to deny, but her stomach was already starving. While her mouth chewed the beans slowly, she smiled at the edge of her lips. Food never tasted this good before.

Anna and most of the Wolves had went to sleep. Their leader, Hans, was not "Hey. You're not sleeping?" He said, giving her his sparkly white teeth.

"No, why are you still awake?"

Hans walked towards her and sat beside her "Patroling, can't be too careful this days."

Elsa sniggered "Funny, I thought I was the only one."

"Who thought that we need to be more careful?"

"That we need to be _very_ careful." Elsa said.

There was a moment of silence, both of them don't know what to keep the conversation going.

Hans coughed "So you're sisterâ€¦ She's different?"

"Yeah, I'm a doctor, see? She was stuck at the dead end job, mostly happy that she doesn't have to pay her apartment bills again." Elsa said, then she added "Like she was the one paying it."

"The Wolves are like that too, some have dead end jobs, and some just wished for the apocalypse to happen. I kept them happy, we made a group at first, and then it was motorbike racing, I always backed up for them when they get too drunk at a bar or picking a fight with a stranger because they smashed his mailbox." Hans said.

"And why are you so happy? That you finally run away from the police?"

Hans laughed "A quarter part of meâ€¦ Yesâ€¦"

Elsa smiled "So what do you want to do tomorrow? I heard Corona, have a quarantine zone."

"Yeah, okay." Hans agreed, he picked up his Fedorov from the ground and stood up "Get some sleep." Then he continued with his patrol.

Elsa watched him disappear to the dark.

And then a soft voice behind her said "He's dreamy isn't heâ€¦"

Elsa jumped backwards, then realized it was Anna "I thought you were sleeping?"

"I tend to stay awakeâ€¦" Anna said, her eyes was filled with enlightenment.

Elsa had thought what she was talking about "Seriously? Hans?"

"Well, he's the most normal Wolf I've ever met."

Elsa couldn't deny that "Sure butâ€¦ Are you sure? You could really meet someone else!" She said the last part in a whisper.

"Oh come on! What do you have against the Wolves?" Anna sighed.

Elsa's eyes narrowed "One, they're criminals. Two, they're reckless. And threeâ€¦"

"Alright! I get it!" Anna cut her off "Surely you would give them a chance!"

"I used to say 'only when the zombie apocalypse happens' when you said that sentence." Elsa deadpanned.

"Well, it's the zombie apocalypse now." Anna smiled weakly.

"But that's definitely, absolutely NOT a good thing!" Elsa raised her voice "I took psychology. And we are most certainly to be influenced by their bad behavior! _That's why we'll be going to Corona and rebuild society like it was supposed to be_!" Elsa said strictly "I appreciated their help, but I don't see them less than what they used to be unless they do something really good for one."

Anna frowned "They saved us."

Elsa opened her mouth but no sound came.

"And you gave _me _a chance!"

Elsa sighed "I admit, alright. But I'm still looking out for you. Got that?"

"See this? This is why I don't visit you anymore!" Anna said in disbelief.

"What are you talking about?"

"THIS! This judgmental side of you! Every time I took you to see my ex-boyfriends it's always 'he's too loud!' 'he has a bad habit!' 'he is too touchy!'"

"I was just looking out for you! Didn't want you to get hurt!" Elsa said.

"How would you know? You always locked yourself out from the outside world with work! Sure I appreciated the apartment bills, but I don't like you seeing me as a kid! I can take care of myself!" Anna said loudly "I can prove myself! I can shoot a gun! I can survive without you!"

"This doesn't have anything to do with anything!"

"_Oh yes it does!_" Anna said sharply.

"I told you, I was looking out for you!"

"It doesn't matter what you think! You're not mom!"

Elsa blinked "Of course not, but it would be what she want! What dad want!"

"But not what I wantâ€¦" Anna said "I want to be with you for all my life, thinking there might be some way I could get you out of work. Some way I could make you think that you don't have to tell me what to do all the time!"

The ruckus had made some of the Wolves woke up from sleep, Hans joined them too.

Elsa stood up, so she could be at the same height as Anna "Fine! You don't want me? I'll just leave."

Anna looked as if she was about to stop her, then she yelled "Fine!" And walked away.

Elsa watched with shock as their conversation leads up to this, Elsa was too angry to apologize. So she walked to the tree to take her purse full of water bottle, MRE, and medicine. With high hopes she dashed away out of the forest, away from the Wolves and Anna. Elsa flickered her phone lights on and continued to walk forward with half rage.

* * *

>Review plz!..

24. The Wolves part 3

Elsa walked for at least a week and a half, water supply had been decreased. Her mouth never felt burning, she wished it was morning again, so she could sip on those cold dews on the leaves.

She hadn't eaten any meat in two days, she was good with edible plant and mushrooms. But that wasn't enough.

Despite all the dehydration, the heat, and the smell of her odor which began to be maddening. Elsa still doesn't have the will to go back to Anna.

Sometimes, no, everyday she thought that maybe she had been too melodramatic. It was a stupid move, she knew she had a better chance to survive with a group.

Elsa sighed, and kept walking, wandering around in the woods. She realized the ground level was rising, she was walking towards a steep hill.

Elsa looked around, making sure the surroundings were safe. Then Elsa continued forward, hoping she could find any refuge or town to settle from the top.

With the help of her hands she climbed until she could see the sun more clear with no trees covering it, Elsa stood on the top, she observed the topography. Her hopes were rising when she saw in the middle of the large gulf.

"Corona!" She breathed in relief, the city was sitting on a large island. The glass buildings reflected the sun.

Elsa looked back, wondering if she should walked back and tell them she founds the city. But maybe Anna and the Wolves had been there first.

Elsa stared deeply on the city, it doesn't looked like it could be infested. She enjoyed the sudden breeze for a while, but then she saw on the bridge which connected Corona and the peninsula, was cars and trucks and busses crashed into each other.

Elsa also realized it had a large gap on the bridge, nobody can jump over it. That means Anna had been long gone.

"Shoot! What the heck am I going to do now?" Elsa grunted, she shove her hand into her purse. She took out the water bottle and shook it in her hand, there was obviously a few drops inside it.

At this rate she can't survive long.

Elsa thought quickly, there's a small town not far from here. Maybe she could make it her own refuge, a town for herself. She could round all the cars and make a barricade around the block, to prevent looters and zombies from breaking in. Maybe there's a little chance the grocery stores haven't been looted yet, maybe she could use what she found as a survival kit. Yeah, it was a good plan.

But, does she have to do it by her own? She would be lonely.

But she can't trust anyone else but herself, maybe she could recruit anyone that coincidentally came by her town. But what if they betrayed her? She doesn't have a gun, she only had a wooden stake she used regularly for the infected she came by. She had a couple close calls with humans a few days ago.

Elsa sat on the top of the hill, she took the time to feel the grass brush on the skin of her thigh.

She has to go back, she has to apologize. She may be mad, but Anna is still her sister, and the only family member left.

Elsa sighed, a long way back. She hoped she would find more water on the way, and wished that Anna haven't left Arendelle yet.

Anna sobbed, her leg pained from the tight roped that used to coil around it. The member of the Wolves had betrayed the group, Hans was dead.

She killed him, with his own gun. Now Anna carried a burden for murder. She never dirtied her hands with blood.

She watched them turn, first a bite on a member of a group. Hans took care of it, the others began to change, they were mad at each other. But Hans was the one who are mostly blamed, Hans accidentally killed a man. That means two are dead, but things began to escalate as another committed suicide. Hans and Anna was the only two left, but Hans snapped and did horrible things to her, and Anna had no choice but to push him against a herd of infected.

As the sun began to set, and the skies began to darken. She needed to find Elsa, she couldn't be out there and be safe at the same time.

Anna walked on the empty streets of Arendelle, a magazine left on her bag. Every rounds wasted on keeping herself alive.

She sniffed, as she walked past the infected people she had put down. She might've missed a few but the ruckus she made earlier would bring them to her. Maybe Elsa too.

But she knew already that Elsa had gone far, and wouldn't come back.

She heard a noise, down on a far end of the street. A light from a flashlight, it couldn't be the Wolves. They were all dead.

Anna raised her Fedorov, this should be easy. She thought.

The flashlight holder quickly saw her "Wait! Don't shoot!"

"Who are you?!" Anna wiped her tears, trying to sound intimidating as possible.

The man lowered his flashlight, but Anna still can't see his face "I'm just a guyâ€¦"

"Just a guy, huh? What's your name?" Anna kept wary.

"N-name?"

"You heard meâ€¦"

"Let us pass, please. We won't come back again!" The man said.

Anna blinked "Who's with you?"

"Just me and a little girl!" The man pointed his flashlight to his back.

Anna lowered her gun as she saw a small brunette cowering in fear, she could see the man's face. He was Asian, and wearing a baseball cap. The two were unarmed, but the man had a backpack.

"Let us go." Said the man "Please."

Anna looked down "Get out." She said coldly.

The man took the little girls hand "Thank you. Are you coming with us?"

"I said get out."

The man nodded and jogged out of sight.

Elsa quickly found her "Bad day?"

Anna jumped forward in surprise "What the hell Elsa?!"

"I'm sorry, I thought it would've been better to go back home butâ€¦"

Anna cut her off quickly by hugging her "You should've come back faster, moron!"

Elsa hugged her back "How's it going?"

"I've had better, thank god you came back!"

"Now that I know where Corona is, I found a shortcut so we can get there in just a day." Elsa said.

Anna realized that she hadn't mentioned the Wolves once, and she hoped it stayed that way.

"But I am afraid the bridge connected is broken, and we can't go over. Sorryâ€¦" Elsa continued.

"No! Let's just stay here, I'm sorry I pushed you away. Things haven't been peachy since you've left." Anna cried once again "The Wolvesâ€¦ They're dead, Elsa!"

Elsa was shocked to hear it "I'm sorry Anna, if I would've came here faster, I could'veâ€¦" Elsa immediately saw the bruises around Anna's foot.

Anna looked down, she felt guilty and scared.

"Did they do that to you?" Elsa said loudly.

Anna nodded.

Elsa hugged her tightly, keeping her sister safe once again.

* * *

>Sorry I didn't make Hans to appear longer... I don't think it's important for the main plot..._

25. The Surgery

Astrid felt her stomach slowly started to sting, her eyes are still blurry and her brain is still painfully dizzy. She heard someone was mumbling something beside her, as the dizziness slowly fades away she could hear a faint sound of two people.

"-don't have any anesthesia, try to calm her down." Said the first voice.

Astrid felt a lump in her throat, she can't breathe. Her heart began to beat faster and faster yet she can't seem to move from her position. Astrid began to choke, she can feel her mouth was oozing something that's not saliva.

Elsa panicked, unconscious Astrid was choking blood. Her years of experience never felt so useless.

Jack looked at her in fear, he held both Astrid's shoulder so she doesn't struggle that much "What's happening?! What do we do?!"

"She's having an internal bleeding!" Elsa said, trying to keep herself calm.

She threw the block of sharp metal she just surgically removed from Astrid's body while forgetting the cost of doing that, Elsa knew somewhere in Astrid's colon or stomach is penetrated.

Hiccup and the rest of the group who went to the hospital to get sutures fortunately has returned, to find Astrid seizures on the floor.

Hiccup went passed Anna and hurried towards his girlfriend "What's going on?!" His voice was hoarse "Astrid! Astrid!"

"Quick! Give me the sutures!" Elsa said quickly.

Hiccup checked his pockets and took out a box of suture lines with needles "There's more in the bag!"

"This'll doâ€¦" Elsa said, taking it "I need some privacy! Jack and Hiccup stays here, the rest of you wait outside!" She commanded to the rest of the group behind her.

They all left in a hurry and closed the door behind them.

"Hiccup I need you to do cardiac compression and prevent blood out of her lungs!" Elsa ordered, as she opened the box of suture lines.

Hiccup immediately put both hands on top of one another and began pressing them down against Astrid's chest, he could tell that it was working when more blood began to pump out of her mouth.

"Turn her head." Elsa said, while tying the suture line to the C shaped needle.

Jack turned Astrid's head to the side, her breathing become easier.

"What now?" Hiccup panted.

"Hold her downâ€¦" Elsa said, she lowered her head to the stab wound. The suture needle is slowly entering her flesh, Elsa however opened the wound to see the source of the internal bleeding "Luckily it didn't hit any vital organs, but we need to hurry or she will run out of blood."

Elsa looked around "Jack, fetch me that med kit!"

Jack quickly stood up and ran past unconscious Rapunzel, he bend over next to a piece of debris to pick up a small box of medical equipment kit. He hurried back to them and lend it to Elsa "Hereâ€¦"

Elsa opened the box, she took out a syringe and a bottle of morphine painkiller. The syringe needle entered the small bottle and pulls out with enough doses to stop the pain when being sutured.

When she injected the painkiller inside Astrid, she groaned a bit while still closing her eyes.

"That should relax her a bit. I will began the surgery, can anyone get me some light and scissor?" Elsa said.

"I'll do it." Jack said, he pushed himself off the floor again and began walking towards the door.

Jack saw the rest of the group was chatting outside, he closed the door behind him. Their conversation stopped when he came out.

"How's the girl?" Aster arched his brow.

"She'll be okay, listen, I need you guys to find me some light source and a pair of scissor for Elsa." Jack ordered to his men.

"What about me?" Anna poked her head behind Aster.

Jack paused "Youâ€¦ Erâ€¦ I'm sure you can help with somethingâ€¦"

"Maybe you can help us get some mattress for Astrid to sleep on." Toothiana suggested "In the meantime, I will get some water."

"Thanks Tooth." Jack smiled. He then turned to his men "Let's go!"

They all scatter around the house, searching for the supplies Elsa had ordered. Aster and Ruffnut searched the first floor, while Anna and Kristoff is currently removing the mattress on the second floor guest bedroom. While Jack isn't really familiar with the place, he kept randomly walking all over the house, searching for a flashlight or a study lamp while checking his men.

Jack moved to the second floor again, he hasn't checked the room next to where Elsa is doing surgery. He went inside and felt sick when he saw a little girl had died on her bedroom, no wonder Kristoff chose the guest bedroom.

Jack felt his shoulder being tapped, he looked around and saw Toothiana "Geez Tooth! You scared me!"

"Sorryâ€¦" Toothiana replied, her eyes was fixed on the dead girl.

"Did you find any water?" Jack asked.

"No. But I need to ask you somethingâ€¦" Toothiana said softly.

Jack arched his brow "What is it?"

"Well, how are we going to find your sister?" Toothiana's voice was near whisper.

Jack looked up to her amethyst eyes "Iâ€¦ Don't knowâ€¦ Elsa just told me the nearby refugee site was already crawling with dead people, I'm sure she got out, somewayâ€¦" Jack mumbled, part of him was starting to accept the truth.

"Don't give up so easily! Your sister might still be alive!" Toothiana made a reassuring smile.

"But what if something bad happened to her? I don't know if she is okay or not!" Jack exclaimed.

He felt Toothiana's hand on his shoulders, Jack's eyes suddenly opened wide when she pecked him on the cheek.

"Be calmed by my saliva!" Toothiana said, with a little joking tone "Emma will be fine! Just don't lose hope."

Jack looked at the dead girl, he shook his head erasing the picture of Emma on that bed. Then he nodded to Toothiana.

Kristoff went pass their door, he knocks the door with his finger. Toothiana and Jack broke apart, seeing him with a mattress put in his left arm.

"I found a scissorâ€¦" He said.

Anna suddenly appeared behind him "And I've got some pillows!" She said happily.

Jack made a little smile "Can you give them to Elsa, I still have to find some light source."

Kristoff nodded, he carried the mattress to the opposite room with Anna following him.

Jack looked around the little girl's bedroom, there was a study light but he remembered there was no power. Toothiana helped by checking the desk while Jack searched the wardrobe.

His eyes fell on the headlamp hanging on a hook inside the wardrobe, he put it in his hand and tried to press it on and off. It flashed.

"Got some headlamp! Now let's go back to Elsa." Jack said to Toothiana.

Toothiana nodded and followed him to the opposite room, at the same time Kristoff and Anna left. Jack saw the still unconcious Astrid was being moved to the top of the mattress by Hiccup, Elsa however was treating Rapunzel who is now sitting on the floor while rubbing her blonde golden head in pain.

Elsa noticed Jack and Toothiana "Good you came back, miss can you take care of Rapunzel for a while?"

"Sure, it's Toothiana by the wayâ€¦" Toothiana hurried to Rapunzel and helped her get up, she led her out of the room "I'll get you some water."

Jack went to Elsa "Here's some headlamp, is that okay?"

"It's better than okay, thank you." Elsa smiled.

Elsa and Jack went to join Hiccup, Elsa is now equipped with suture needle and line ready to stitch the wound together.

Elsa kneeled next to Astrid, then he turned to the two men "I really appreciated both your help. I will take care of her from here, okay?"

"Okayâ€¦" Nodded Hiccup curtly, he stood up and didn't look back.

Jack turned back to Elsa "You don't want anything else?"

"I just want some privacy, pleaseâ€¦" Elsa said.

Jack also nodded and went to follow Hiccup. He met him when he was sitting on the stairs.

"You okay?" Jack said to Hiccup, while closing the door behind him.

"I'll be fineâ€¦" Hiccup replied without looking at him.

Jack rubbed the back of his neck "Hey, I need a little help with somethingâ€¦"

Hiccup stared at Jack.

"I don't really like seeing a poor innocent girl unburied on a house, besides, she smells." Jack said.

Hiccup sighed as he stood up.

* * *

>Sorry this chapter took so long... Schoolwork got me like damn!.. By the way, thank you for all of you supporting me and I really appreciate it... Keep being awesome guys!.. Like always... Review...

26. The Survivors

I changed the rating to T... I will change the rating if necessary but not now... And by the way, I haven't got any beta-reader so grammar mistakes is nigh..

* * *

>The sun is now setting, Hiccup can tell it was nearly 6 or more. But unlike the other days, the sky was beautifully orange. He shove the tip of the shovel he found on the garage to the ground and lean on it, he wiped his brow from sweat.

Jack is still busy digging up dirt from the 6 foot length and 4 foot wide rectangular grave, within depth of 2 and a half feet. Jack suggested they buried the girl in the front yard, Hiccup just accepted. Hiccup had already wrap the dead little girl in bed sheets, of course both of them had trouble keeping the flies away.

"That should do it!" Jack said in relief, he climbed out of the grave and threw his spade aside.

Hiccup began to lift the girl's body and carry her to the grave, he kneeled down the side of the grave then lowered her slowly.

"You knowâ€¦" Jack said "Doing something like this makes me feel if we are regaining our humanity back."

"No." Hiccup said without looking at him "Our true nature is to survive, no matter what its costs. Burying this girl doesn't change anything, but it was worth keeping out the smell."

"So basically we can do whatever, whenever the fuck we want? As long as we don't die?" Jack said simply.

Hiccup rolled his eyes "That practically summed up everythingâ€¦"

Jack thought for a moment "But what if we want to kill ourselves?"

"Would you kill yourself for no actual reason?"

"No?"

"Exactlyâ€¦"

"So then what about those biblical rules? See no evil, speak no evil, hear no evil and such." Jack asked again.

"Just like you said, we do whatever, whenever the fuck we want." Hiccup grabbed his spade and began to move the mound of dirt to the grave.

"Ever wonder what cheese and chocolate taste like?" Jack asked.

"Where are you going with this?" Hiccup deadpanned.

"What? It's just a random question!" Jack raised his shoulders in defense.

Hiccup, much to his surprise, had already finished filling up the grave and now using the bottom side of the shovel to flatten the ground.

Hiccup gave the spade back to Jack, and began walking towards the house.

Jack followed him, he put the spade leaning to the door. Jack walked around the first floor after checking on to Aster and Ruffnut, he began to check the bathroom but the lights were off and it smelled awfully strong of rat piss.

Then he went upstairs to the second floor, Jack can't seem to find Anna, Kristoff, or Toothiana. Instead he met Rapunzel who is now sitting on the little girl's bed, her forehead was covered in bandages.

"Oh. Hey." Rapunzel smiled when she noticed Jack.

Jack entered the room "Hi, how are ye?"

"I've been worst, don't worry about me." Rapunzel assured, then she hissed in pain and grabbed her bandaged forehead.

Jack sat beside her "You should be sleeping, you're in no position to sit yet!" Jack told her.

"No, no! It's alrightâ€¦" Rapunzel said, holding the pain to herself "Just another false alarm, it's nothing bad. Tooth said so."

"No, it's not okay! I bet she tells you to rest, right?" Jack said, his hand on her shoulder.

Rapunzel shrugged "She didâ€¦"

"And I would appreciate it if you do what she said." Jack said strictly.

Rapunzel sighed, she lowered her head onto the pillow and lifted her feet from the floor.

Jack sat on the floor, giving her some space to sleep "I'm sorry I yelled at you earlier, you know, at the chopper."

Rapunzel giggled "It's okay. Did you find your sister yet?"

Jack gulped "No. Not yet."

Rapunzel stared at him in silence "Have you checked the refugee site?"

"Noâ€¦ But Elsa said it was crawling with dead people nowâ€¦"

"I'm sorry Jackâ€¦"

Jack stared at his hands in anger "But I'm not giving up, she's out there somewhere. I just know it."

"Really? Is this some kind of sibling thing?" Rapunzel asked.

"No! I can't read each other's mind, I'm not a jedi!" Jack gave her a look "But I just know it, it isn't a hunch, because I'm sure of it."

Rapunzel stroked his white hair "And me too. Does this place have any candle?"

Jack shrugged "I'll search someâ€¦"

"Thank you." Rapunzel said, she groaned in pain as she rolled to her back.

Jack stood up, he saw from the window was the sun already changing to night. Jack went out of the room, he closed the door behind him, he can see the house was already darkened.

* * *

>Astrid coughed as her eyes shot open, she tried to sit but her stomach gave her a painful sting. She felt someone held her by the arm.

"Let me go!" She struggled.

"No! You need to rest, you're not in full health yet." Said the voice of Hiccup.

Astrid relaxed a bit "H-Hiccup?

"It's me, I'm here Astrid!" Hiccup said again.

Astrid looked up in blurry vision, her eyes began to see a relieved and happy face of Hiccup.

"Whatâ€¦ Happened?" Astrid tries to sit again but groaned in pain in the process.

"Please, just lay down for a momentâ€¦" Hiccup pushed her back slowly and carefully.

Astrid is breathing heavily, she held her stomach and felt a thin bulging line.

"What's going on?" She breathed.

"You fell out of the helicopterâ€¦"

"Oh, I remember that."

"And you got impaled by a metal debris, we met a doctor named Elsa and she stitched you up and gave you some antibiotics." Hiccup explained quickly "I thought you wouldn't make itâ€¦"

Astrid is currently processing his words "I gotâ€¦ Impaled? How big is the wound?"

Dipper tilted his head "Er, it hit your colon, so I have to pump your chest to get the blood out."

"Ohâ€¦" Astrid said nonchalantly "You said there was a doctor?"

"She's sleeping."

Astrid looked around, and saw she was laying on a mattress and the only light source was from a candle next to the mattress.

She looked back at Hiccup who is sitting on the floor "What time is it?"

"It has been hours since sundown, I guess somewhere around midnight." Hiccup said.

Astrid rubbed her eyes "Where's the rest of the group?"

"Sleeping as wellâ€¦ I took charge of keeping an eye on you."

"Awwâ€¦ You don't have to do that, Hiccup!" She said. Despite what happened, Astrid seemed to regain her humor.

"Yeah, well I can't really sleep in the other rooms, they're taken. Besides, what if you moaned for water and I'm not here to get it?" Hiccup sniggered.

"I don't _moan_." Astrid gave him a crossed brow "But speaking of whichâ€¦ Get me water." She demanded with a devilish grin.

Hiccup rolled his eyes and reached behind him, he gave her a half full glass of water.

He helped Astrid so she can lift her head slowly, Astrid sipped the water and finished. Hiccup put the glass back to its original place, he helped her head back down.

Astrid blushed when she felt Hiccup stroked her blonde hair to behind her ear "Where are you sleeping?"

"On the floor, I'm not that cold anyway." Hiccup said.

"How sad, you don't even have a pillowâ€¦" Astrid gave him a fake pity "Wanna sleep with me?"

Hiccup looked up to her in an instant "What?"

"I don't really like seeing you on the floor, it looks uncomfortable." Astrid moved aside to give him space in the mattress, she patted on his side of the mattress inviting him with her.

"Well, if you insistâ€¦"

Hiccup moved from the floor then to the mattress, he was thankful he doesn't have to lay down on the cold floor.

Astrid moved to face him and she closed her eyes.

Hiccup can feel her breathing on his lips, the smell of her hair made him fall asleep.

"You smell Hiccup!" Astrid whispered, giggling.

"Hey, it's hot!"

* * *

>Wait that can't be right... Where am I going with the plot?.. Alright back to square one everyone!.. We're going to have Walkers in the next episode!..

Characters : GROAN!

Hey!.. We're doing this for the readers, remember?..

27. The Practice

Hiccup, Astrid, Rapunzel, Jack and his men is currently packing up for departure. Since their food and water supply is running low they have to run around the area to get some, but whether they will stay in Arendelle or not is not yet discussed.

Anna is currently begging Hiccup to come as well, since he was the one who came up with the idea.

Elsa however suggested that they have to start moving quickly "Because at some point the food will run out, who knows how long till a rapist or a murderer or a pack of infected will come by! Besides our chance to survive is actually bigger if we stay on the road."

They all gathered in the living room, Aster is busy checking the weapons and firearms if they will possibly jam, Toothiana is busy chatting with Ruffnut while Kristoff with Anna. Rapunzel is currently regaining her strength, she was last seen talking with Jack.

Hiccup turned to Elsa "Well, you might be right. But I think we have to fill our bags with food and water before we hit the road, and by the way, how's your fighting skills?"

Elsa shrugged "I use to practice aikido for five years. But if you think that's not enough, I'm good enough with an axe."

"No, we can use your locking techniques actually. How many Walkers have you killed?" Hiccup asked.

"Walkers?" Elsa suddenly realized what he meant "Oh! Well, I guess about five-ish or soâ€¦"

"Really? Surely you would have killed more, its basic human instinct!" Hiccup said in bewilderment.

"I don't know, ok? I really don't like to remember those times when I smash a dead human's head with a rock!" Elsa said bitterly "You're just lucky I used to work with dead people!"

Hiccup raised his hands in defeat "Alright, alright, I'm just checking."

Astrid went out of the bathroom with sickness on her face, she went to Hiccup and ask him if she could talk to him in private. They both moved to the corner of the room.

"What's wrong Astrid? You look pale!" Hiccup lowered his voice.

"I don't know if it's the old can of beans or my impaled tummy." Astrid joked, she rubbed her palm against her stomach.

"You know you don't have to come with us if you can't." Hiccup said strictly.

"I heard you guys talking and I think the doctor's right, we do have a higher chance of surviving if we keep moving." Astrid said "I wanted to come because we could use an extra to carry more stuff."

Dipper crossed his arms and think "I admit that is a good idea, but I'm serious, you need to lay down a bit. We'll go if the time's right, for now all we need is some Twinkies and Coca Colas." He said.

"But I want to come! Who's going to keep you safe if I wasn't around?"

Dipper rolled his eyes "Astrid you have to stay! I can't really guarantee your stomachaches out there, what if you encounter a Walker and suddenly get a rumbly in your tummy?"

Astrid crossed her brows, she nudged Hiccup in the stomach "I'll give YOU a rumbly in your tummyâ€¦"

Hiccup held his stomach as Astrid stormed away upstairs, everyone looked at them then her then back to Hiccup. They all looked away and pretended they never heard a thing when Hiccup noticed them.

Hiccup picked himself up together, he sighed when he heard Astrid shuts the door upstairs.

He saw Elsa approached him "Will Astrid be okay?" She asked.

"She'll be fine, thanks. Oh, and I guess we'll be walking when Astrid's feeling better." Hiccup said, he rubbed his chin "But she's kind of right, we need more supplies if we want to go on the road. Do you want to go collect stuff with them?"

"Uhâ€¦ I think I'll stay here, looking after Astrid and such." Elsa shrugged, then she added "Wait, you're not coming?"

"Oh don't worry, I'll be watching over Astrid." Hiccup said.

Jack suddenly came from behind Elsa and nudged her in the arm "Come on! This will be fun!"

Elsa blushed "Okay, alright. But I'm unarmed!"

"Here!" Jack threw her Glock 34.

Elsa lost her grip on the pistol when she caught it "But, I can't shoot!"

"Let me show youâ€¦" Jack said, he led her to the backyard and left Hiccup smiling at them.

"So how are we going to do this?" Elsa said while Jack led him throughout the house.

Jack looked left and right door "This one." He decided, he opened the door and it lead to the backyard "So I'm going to show you the basics, the holding, the aiming, the safety, the firing, and changing the magazine."

The backyard was filled with overgrown grass and weeds, there was a row of wooden fence that divided the house with the next.

Jack jumped off the edge of the patio "I'll get some targets for you to shoot, wait right there!"

Elsa watched him run around the grass while picking up litter such as empty plastic water bottles and empty cans. Jack lined them all on the fence, and then dashed back to Elsa.

"So first we are going to learn how to hold it." Jack told her.

"Like this?" Elsa wrapped her hands on the grip and finger on the trigger waiting to fire.

"Don't put your finger on it unless you want to fire." Jack said, Elsa immediately removed her finger "Luckily that gun is still on safety, so it won't go off easily."

Jack then pointed his finger on the small switch under the slide "That's the safety, if it is pointed straight then it is safe, meaning it won't fire. And if you switch it down, like this."

Jack moved behind Elsa and switched the trigger down. Elsa listened carefully to him while she smiled, and that smile never left her.

"Now you can fire it. The second step is to aim that bottles and cans on that fence over there." Jack's body was so close to Elsa's. His hand traveled to hers as he showed her how to aim, Elsa's mind was almost blurred.

"Elsa? Are you listening?" Jack asked in her ear.

Elsa shook her head "Yeah, yeah. Look into the front sight and steady my hands before firing."

Jack smiled in awe "Great! You're doing well! Now to the firing."

"I was told there would be Newton's third law of motion?" Elsa asked, she wanted to slap herself for asking that silly question.

Jack laughed "There is, actually! When you fire the Glock, the force created by the bullet that fires it forward also pushes the gun backwards so you really need a good grip on the handle if you don't want the gun flying off your hand."

"Good to knowâ€¦"

"But before firing you need to know how to change its ammo first. There's a little button on the side of the trigger that releases the magazine, put your left hand under the grip and your right index finger to push the button." Jack told her.

Elsa did what he said and the magazine fell to her left hand "Okay, now what?"

"Put it back under the grip and pull back the slide." Jack went to her side.

Elsa grunted as she pulled back the slide, it was harder than it looks. The slide jumped back forward.

"Remember to check the safety first, second you focus on the front sight not the target, third you put your finger on the trigger. And last if you're ready you fire." Jack walked back to give her some space, Elsa focused on the target. It was far but she thinks she can make it, then Jack added "Try breathing slowly, in and out. Helps you get calm. And another tip, you have to lean forward so the force don't kick you back."

Elsa nodded, she readied her stances. She took a deep breath and let it all out, the Glock fired a bullet and the shell fell to the ground as the slide kicks back. The sound was pretty loud, but Jack seemed pretty familiar to it.

Elsa's palm was stinging from the fire, but when she looked up she saw an empty can was missing from the fence.

Jack walked up to her with face filled with amazement "Woah! You're natural, Doc!"

Elsa brushed her hair away from her cheek "Thank you."

They both stopped when suddenly an aggressive growl came from the other side of the fence, an Infected had heard the gunshot and came out of the neighbor's house. It was a pale blue man with white stained dead eyes, his mouth seemed bloody and his neck was chewed off terribly on one side. The Infected seemed to have trouble jumping from one lawn to the other.

Elsa looked scared and concerned. Jack came up to her and said "This is a good chance, Elsa! Can you shoot it?"

Elsa looked at him "B-but, it's a zombie!"

"Don't worry about it. Besides, it's good for practice." Jack put his hand on her shoulder.

Elsa couldn't argue with him "Iâ€¦ I don't think I can! You shoot it!"

"What? Why?" Jack asked in confusion "It's dead! It's just a banana peel on the sidewalk!"

"What if there was a cure and we killed this man when he is still alive inside?!" Elsa yelled, she didn't lie because she was disgusted. She had this thought every time she killed an infected, she always avoids them.

"Maybe there is! But this man is bitten wide on the neck, even when we give him the antidote it can't save him from a wound like that!" Jack raised his voice.

Elsa sighed, she raised her gun arm and another to support it. She looked into the front sight and breathed slowly, she fired and saw the shell released. The pain from the release was less painful than the last time. The Infected's head shot back as a bullet went through it, then it dropped dead as its body was supported on the fence.

Jack and Elsa gasped, the other houses around them is crawled with the walking dead creeping out to them. They limped and pushed their bodies forward on the fence, as more and more Infected pushed on the fence the mass built up and the fence wasn't going to hold.

"Give me the gun!" Jack said to her. Elsa didn't hesitate when she quickly lends it to him.

Jack fired the Glock with one hand to the Infected's head, with the other told Elsa to go back. Two shots missed while the third hits an Infected, Jack then saw the fences fell and the all the dead gained entrance.

"Quick! Go back!" Jack pulled Elsa by the arm and yanks her to the house. He released her and then saw the door had no lock, Jack led her to the living room quickly.

Everyone saw when Jack burst out of the first floor hallway "What's wrong, Jack?" Asked Hiccup curiously.

"We need to get out of here ASAP!" Jack wasted no time as he grabbed his backpack.

Everyone exchanged looks "What happened out there?"

"Those Infected, what do you call 'em? Walkers? They're in the backyard and I think more are comingâ€¦" Jack and the other gasped when the door to the backyard suddenly sounded as if it was pushed by something heavy.

Aster quickly stood up "Alright everyone you heard the man!"

The rest of the group quickly packed their things, Hiccup went upstairs to get Rapunzel and Astrid. Once their down he checked them both if they're not feeling very good.

"I'll be fine." Astrid assured him.

"Me too, where's Jack?" Rapunzel asked.

Hiccup looked around "There, he's by theâ€¦"

The backyard door burst open, it was left on its hinge. It looked like the old wooden door couldn't handle that much Walker. The moaning made everybody dashed out of the house.

"QUICKLY!" Hiccup got them both out before him.

* * *

>For all of you wondering about about the fan art, visit my Deviantart site with the same name (ThalioTP)... Don't forget to favorite my drawings if you are a Deviant artist... Also don't forget to review and follow... Stay awesome!..

28. The Debt

Jack leads his men up front, the Walkers are everywhere. He dodged the nearest one while the Hiccup sunk his knife to the nearest Walker's head.

Elsa helped him to navigate the streets, left then right but everywhere they see is just more and more of the dead coming out of nowhere.

Jack saw an alley and led them there, luckily there isn't any bodies and the alley hides them from the rising of Walkers.

"There isn't any Walkers when I went to the hospital yesterday!" Hiccup kneeled down, gaining his breath.

"They must've heard the airplane crash, now that I think about it they all have been hiding in their houses. What could've gotten them out now?" Toothiana said in disbelief.

"Calm down Tooth! We just need to get out of here, where to now Elsa?" Jack turned from Toothiana to Elsa.

Elsa looked up to him from Anna "I think from this alley it leads to Durming Street and from there we need to go to the next city."

"Next city?!" Anna gasped "That's like, two days away!"

"Do you want to stay here?!" Ruffnut said in bitter sarcasm.

"Alright, break it off, how much food do we have for two days?" Jack asked Kristoff who held the bag of supplies around his shoulder.

"We can manage for a day, there's still a box of painkillers." Kristoff said as he opened the duffel and scanned the insides.

Astrid suddenly held her stomach in pain, Hiccup automatically went beside her "Maybe Anna's right, is there any place nearer that we can crash at the moment?"

Elsa thought for a moment "Maybe we canâ€¦"

Her words were cut off when a Walker finds them on the alley, Hiccup immediately raised his knife arm and lunge it down by instinct before the rotten fleshed Walker could get any closer.

The Walker dropped dead, but Hiccup saw more saw him.

"This way!" Elsa and Jack went deeper into the alley first, the others followed.

The alley began to feel damper and the stench of blood was everywhere, a body was found chewed up from the waist down and left to turn. They went passed it, but as times passed Elsa seemed to have trouble remembering the alleyway path.

They encountered a way out, but on the other side was twice more Walkers. They panicked when all the Walkers saw them, their mouths gaping in starvation and their teeth clicked as they bite, they were all rushing to get them.

"Go back! Go back!" Jack ordered them, but behind them was rows of Walkers as well. They were trapped and cornered.

Jack's men made a killing circle, readying themselves for the oncoming waves. Hiccup and Rapunzel was taking care of Astrid who felt her stomach was about to burst out.

Jack looked around, he then saw a loft ladder going up the building. He put himself under it and jumped up to catch the ladder and pulls it down.

"This way everyone!" He went up first, when he got to the top he helped the others up.

First was Astrid, then followed by Hiccup, Rapunzel, Ruffnut, then when it comes to Elsa "Be careful, the ladder's unstable."

Anna and Kristoff went up next, Jack saw Aster and Toothiana were left and the Walkers are closing in on them.

"It's no use!" Jack yelled to them "Come on!"

"Tooth! You go up first!" Aster told his teammate.

Tooth nodded and put both hands on the ladder tread and with her feet she kicked up, but Jack was right, the ladder was unstable and it was rusting.

Jack reached down to grab Toothiana by the hand, but her footing was loose. Her weight made the loft ladder falls down, Toothiana panicked.

Aster looked up and saw her dangling by Jack's hand, his weapon is almost out of ammo. He abandoned his teammates and pushed through the waves of Walkers, he disappeared.

Ruffnut quickly went beside Jack "C'mon Tooth! Grab my other hand!"

Toothiana's view was focused on her feet, both of them are kicking off the rough hands of Walkers. Her hand successfully grabbed Ruffnut's, she was being pulled up when suddenly a Walker had a grip on her ankle. She was being pulled down, more and more gripped her feet.

Toothiana looked up in horror as if she was saying "Help me!"

Her hand slipped, she screamed before falling onto the Walkers. Ruffnut jumped back in fear and covered her ears to stop the agonized scream. Jack's eyes couldn't look away from Toothiana being mauled and ripped apart.

Hiccup pulled his shoulder back, he yanked Jack back and pulled him up a few flights "We have to go! This stairwell isn't going to hold."

Their feet clanked on the metal grating staircase, after four floors they reached another ladder. They quickly took turns, and arrived at the roof.

Nobody said a word since then, they all rested and gained their strength.

Kristoff then went up to Jack "Where's Bunnymund?"

Jack looked at him "He ran off, towards the Walkers."

"Jack. Everyone is panicking, we just lost two people today." Kristoff said to him.

Jack sighed, two people died so easily. His sister would be too "We just have to keep going, find the nearest safe zone and restâ€¦"

"Everyone is traumatized, aren't you going to do anything about that?" Kristoff crossed his arms.

Jack looked behind him and saw the others, Hiccup and Astrid, Anna and Elsa, Ruffnut, Rapunzel. He couldn't shake the thought that this was his fault, he doesn't know why.

"I willâ€¦ Let's just rest a bit, I'm going around to see the area." Jack patted Kristoff by the shoulder, he left him and went around the edge of the building.

The gunfire from Aster had brought so many closing in to the building, Jack can hear them aggressively moaning at each other, blindingly crash into the wall beneath. Jack felt a tinge of guilt weighing on his chest, two people are dead, two of his men he should've look after.

He reached inside his blue jacket pocket, and pulled out a picture taken by a Polaroid camera. A crumpled and blurred picture that has been put inside his pocket, a picture of him and his sister laying on the field of grass back at Burgess.

Jack held it close to his heart "I will find youâ€¦"

* * *

>Didn't thought this was coming, didn't you?.. Well guess what!.. There's plenty more where that came from!..

29. The Rooftops

Jack looked below the building, it was a 100 foot drop and a wide gap to the other roof. He doubted anyone could jump across that gap, but when he looked around it was the only way out. He looked back and saw his group, his friends.

Rapunzel saw him, she walked up to him. Instead of saying anything, she hugged him. Jack was left in confusion, yet he felt that he needed this. Rapunzel broke off, with her hands

"I'm sorry, Hiccup told me those two are your friends. It must be hard for you to carry that much of a debt!" Rapunzel said, she sounded like she was holding back her tears.

Jack held her close "Don't worry about me, how's your head?"

"I'm fine, I think I'm just tired." Rapunzel said, rubbing her bandaged forehead "I wish I can remove them early. Where are we going now?"

"I don't knowâ€¦" Jack looked back to the next building "I'll go check on the others, is there anything I can help you with?"

Rapunzel shrugged "No, but I guess I need a little water. Is it okay if I take a bottle?"

Jack told himself he only has a bottle and he has to tell her no, just say no.

"Sure, take one." Jack said, without hesitation.

Rapunzel smiled and walked back. Jack rubbed his sweaty forehead, he felt the wind through his ear. He look back and saw a grey storm cloud, rain is going to pour apparently. Jack thought for a moment if he could jump across, it's not that far.

Jack walked back and went to Hiccup. Hiccup is leaning over Astrid and talking to her, he looked rather anxious and somewhat scared. Astrid looked weak, she was laying with her hand holding Hiccup's and the other on the side of her stomach.

Jack kneeled beside them "Can she go on?"

"No, she is in no health to-" Hiccup said quickly but was cut off.

"I will be fine, I just need some time to recover." Astrid said, her breathing was heavy and her face was sweaty. Jack could offer them some food and water, but Astrid denied again and doesn't want to hog all the supplies.

"Where are we going from here, Jack?" Hiccup said.

Jack looked up and looked behind him "I think our only way out is to jump over that gap and to that building, but I don't think your girlfriend can jump just yet."

"Hey!" Astrid raised her voice. Then she coughed, unlike a regular cough she rolled to her side and coughed madly like something was stuck in her throat.

Elsa quickly saw her, she went up to them and kneeled beside Astrid "What's going on? What do you feel Astrid?"

"Like my fucking colon being impaled!" Astrid yelled bitterly, she rolled to her stomach and rested her head on her arm "Fuck!"

"I think her stitches are loose inside her, regularly when I was a doctor, we perform another surgery. But I don't think that is necessary, she just need to move less." Elsa rolled Astrid's body to her back. Astrid's face was contorting with pain, everyone else who is not near her is silently curious about what will happen next.

"Where is theâ€¦ There it is." Elsa reached out her hand to grab the duffel bag, she unzipped it and explored her hand inside it. She took out a piece of cloth and a bottle of water, she dipped the cloth in water and raised Astrid's shirt just to reveal enough of the stitch mark.

Hiccup and Jack stood up, giving Elsa some space. They walked back, away from them. Hiccup patted Jack on the arm.

"Yeah?" Jack raised his eyebrow.

"I was thinking that, you and I have been through a lot and I know. The point is, I just wanted to say thanksâ€¦" Hiccup rubbed the back of his head.

Jack nodded "Cool, will Astrid be okay?"

"I hope so, why are you asking?" Hiccup asked in suspicion.

"Becauseâ€¦" Jack said "You two, Elsa, Anna, and Rapunzel are part of the team now."

"Oh, well, Astrid will be fine eventually. She's a strong female, much stronger than me actually." Hiccup said, he said the last part in slight embarrassment.

"Alright Hic, we eventually need to get out of here. Storm's about to come, and I don't thing little miss fierce would be better any time soon." Jack said, he was rather serious.

"Rightâ€¦" Hiccup rubbed his chin "We need to get out of here, can we like use this building as a temporary hideout."

"I'm surprised I haven't thought of that first, but we can't actually stay here forever. Maybe after the rain passes we continue to head the road." Jack told him, Hiccup nodded.

"I'll check for supplies downstairs, can you watch Astrid for me?"

Jack was going to nod before he saw something on the far end of the horizon, from the roof of the building he could see the streets clearer. A car going into the city, its black body shining on sunlight as it went from the highway to the city. The car disappeared like an ant as the buildings around it limited the view.

"Hiccup, look!" Jack quickly pointed behind him.

Hiccup peeked over his shoulder, he missed the car "What is it?"

"It was a car!" Jack said triumphantly.

"Where?!" Hiccup narrowed his eyes to get a clearer look.

"No! It was just there! It came from the highway and went here!"

"What are you trying to say?" Hiccup asked quickly.

The others seemed to hear their conversation, they looked to where Jack was pointing and saw only buildings and houses "What car?"

"I don't think we'll be alone here much longerâ€¦" Jack furred his brows.

"Should we be leaving?" Anna asked.

"We shouldn't let them see us, I guess we need to move so we can't get seen." Jack suggested.

Hiccup hesitated, he went to Astrid and Elsa. Astrid seemed to be holding on, Elsa kept a close watch on here. She looked up to Hiccup and said "She's getting better, Astrid will be right as rain in no time." Elsa assured him.

Hiccup nodded "I can't thank you enough!"

"That's okay." Elsa smiled in acceptance.

"Astrid?" Hiccup said, Astrid turned her head to see him "Can you get up?"

Astrid nodded "I can manage for one-" She held her stomach in pain "Half an hour, tops."

Hiccup nodded anxiously, he believed Astrid could handle herself better than him. Elsa helped him picked up Astrid off her laying position, but she saw something she never saw on him.

"Hiccup?" Elsa asked hesitantly, Hiccup looked at her "Is that..." Elsa didn't finished her sentence, she didn't think it was appropriate "Never mindâ€¦"

Hiccup raised his eyebrow, then he saw where Elsa had stared "Oh, rightâ€¦ Peg-legâ€¦"

"How did you, um, how did you get it?" Elsa tried to cough innocently.

"Hey!" Astrid suddenly yelled "Woman in need of help here!"

Hiccup suddenly realized "Oh! Right, sorry. Here we goâ€¦" Astrid was already up, her stomach didn't felt that much stinging anymore.

"I can handle it from hereâ€¦" Astrid removed Hiccup's and Elsa's hand away from her.

Meanwhile, Jack and Rapunzel stood at the edge of the building, they looked up and down from the gap to the other building. Down on the gap they see multiple Walkers bumping into each other on the alley, their moaning are so loud they can hear it.

Jack walked backwards, away from the gap "Let's just hope this worksâ€¦"

"Wait!" Rapunzel went up to him quickly "You can't just jump over that! That's too far!"

Jack and Rapunzel froze, everyone else seemed to stop whatever they're doing as well. A sound of an engine is continuously heard from the streets, even the Walkers could heard them, they followed the sound.

"You got a better idea?" Jack made a silent glare to Rapunzel.

Rapunzel tried to argue, but no sound came from her mouth "Be careful thenâ€¦"

"I willâ€¦" Jack readied himself to run, he leaned down and his right hand touched the rooftop. He breathed slowly, in and out, two part of his head is currently debating at each other.

Jack ran, he gained speed and balance. He was closer to the edge, and when his right foot hit and inch from the gap. He jumped. His body felt as if he was thrown forward, his upper body fell first to the other building. Jack failed to land on his feet, but other than his hurt chest he survived.

He picked himself up, he looked back to his group who are staring at him in relief. He gave them a thumbs up "Who is next?"

"I amâ€¦" Rapunzel raised her hand, she put himself in position. Jack in the other building is ready to catch her.

Rapunzel dashed, she jumped too fast. Jack was alerted when Rapunzel missed the other edge, he quickly catch her hand with his before she fell.

Rapunzel is dangling on his hand, she began to hyperventilate.

"I got you! I got you!" Jack assured her, he lifted her up with both hands. Then Rapunzel was at the other top, Jack put an arm on her shoulder "You okay?"

"I'm fine, I'm fineâ€¦" Rapunzel said, she stood up and went to the edge with him. Jack and her readied themselves to catch the others.

"Two at a time!" Jack said to the other roof.

Then it was Anna and Elsa's turn, Rapunzel and Jack caught them both successfully "Alright Astrid it's your-"

Astrid had jumped from one roof to another easily, she landed on both his legs and stood up, wiping dust from her shirt. She seemed to recover very quickly indeed.

"-turnâ€¦" Jack mumbled, he rolled his eyes. Then he saw Kristoff jumped, he was caught by two girls and lifted up. Then Ruffnut jumped.

Hiccup was the only one left "Hey buddy! Aren't you going to jump?" Jack cried.

"Dude, peg-legâ€¦" Hiccup said loud enough for him to hear.

"Just jump!" Astrid suddenly said, she kneeled on the edge ready to catch Hiccup.

Hiccup sighed, he readied himself to run. Then he sped forward with all his might, sure he already had a hang on his peg-leg while walking, but he's not sure if it won't affect his jump length.

He jumped on the edge, his heart beats much faster and he can feel it. His hand flew forward to catch Astrid's, then his body hit's the wall. He dangled on Astrid painfully, his other hand catches Jack's then they both pulled him up.

Hiccup picked himself up, Jack went beside him and patted his shoulder "See? You made it, champ!"

Hiccup nodded and went to Astrid "Are you feeling alright?"

Astrid just smiled "I've been better, but thanks for asking."

"Now what, Jack?" Kristoff went up to Jack.

Jack looked around, there was only buildings all around. Maybe they can jump and reach the windows, maybe they can jump from roof to roof again. The building levels are not the same.

"Can anyone here do parkour?" Jack asked all around, nobody seemed to raise their hands "Come on, anyone?"

"Or maybe we can just cross that billboardâ€¦" Hiccup's head nodded to a large rectangular billboard that stretches from one building to another, the advertising poster on it was torn.

Jack scratched his arm "Rightâ€¦"

"Come onâ€¦" Hiccup rubbed the bridge of his nose, he went pass Jack and walked towards the billboard. He looked down and saw about 20 Walkers or so under them, unfortunately the billboard was the only thing that bridged between their building and the one across. Either that or a 5 meter jump to the building next to them.

Hiccup saw that the billboard walkway grating is not wide enough for them to cross, but it was wide enough for them to walk sideways.

"Alright everyone, follow me." Hiccup put one foot on the grating and the other one, he leaned on the billboard and steadied himself not to fall forward. He began to walk sideways, his metal peg-leg clanked on the walkway, he's careful not to get his metal peg-leg stuck between the gratings.

The others followed, they climbed up the walkway one by one and followed Hiccup by walking sideways.

Elsa was careful not to look down, she seemed to be breathing heavily.

Anna noticed her "What's wrong?"

"I'm just not used to be walking on a see-through floor without thinking of the imminent death, this is disturbingâ€¦" Elsa breathed, she looked up and reminded herself to keep going.

"You know what else is disturbing?" Ruffnut beside her suddenly said, Elsa raised her eyebrow "This billboard advertisementâ€¦"

Anna looked puzzled, she leaned forward a bit and saw a giant torn up old advertising of a double meat burger is behind them.

Astrid who is beside Hiccup has heard a creaking metal creaking more loudly whenever they step closer to the next building, she saw that the metal supporting the billboard wasn't going to hold onto their weight.

"Go back!" Astrid suddenly cried, but her words was just mere moments before the metal plating on the next building has shot out and the billboard went unsupported on one side.

The other gasped and cried in shock. The Walker's under them either had heard their surprised screams or the creaking of metal.

Jack, Rapunzel, Kristoff, and Anna quickly dashed back to the last building. Elsa tried to follow her sister but her arm was yanked back by Ruffnut.

"IT'S TOO LATE!" She told Elsa, they jumped just in time before the whole billboard fell down to the road under them.

Hiccup, Astrid, Ruffnut, and Elsa was separated from the others.

* * *

>Your reviews motivates me!.. Thank you!..

30. The Emptiness

_One billion views!.. This calls for a diddly-doodly celebration!... Okay, I'll stop..._

I am currently waiting for the inspiration fairy to knock my head with a giant wand, since that couldn't happen I am needing of help with inspiration... You can help me continuing the plot, or maybe you can suggest a new fanfiction story for me to create...

Review!...

* * *

>Rapunzel walked down the empty road of Corona, the people has been advised still to stay in their homes since two days ago. More information on the outbreak of the virus is still being hold, the sick are to report immediately. Corona is going to be one of the fewest places to have the chance to be rebuild as a quarantine zone, which means more people for his step-mother the mayor to take care of.

She never had a chance to walk out of her house before, her step-mother strongly advices her to stay away from people. Rapunzel always gets daily warnings like "One of them could be infected!" or "What if you get kidnapped and stewed for food?!" such as those.

Her step-mother is away, doing mayor business Rapunzel could never understand. She took the house keys and sneaked out, she makes sure she locks her front door and back door, she left a note on the fridge in case her step-mother returns early, equipped herself with a frying pan (because she wasn't allowed on knives and such) and went out.

Her neighborhood was more quitter than usual, she couldn't hear the cheering of people while they are watching the sports channel, she couldn't hear Old Miss Figg mowing her lawn on the Saturday anymore, there is no more happy children playing soccer in the middle of the road.

The sidewalk is no longer having Mr. and Ms. Goodwin jogging past her house anymore, Rapunzel never realized how without people her city looked so dull and grey.

She shook it off and continued walking, she didn't have anywhere to go so she just walks around the block. She turned left and saw a bus stop, its sign is creaking with the presence of the wind, rocking back and forth when it blew. Rapunzel looked at the right and left of the street, either the bus is late or it won't be driving anymore.

Rapunzel crossed the road using the zebra crossing, something she had never done in a while. Since high school was closed until further notice, everyone stayed in their houses, too afraid to go out.

The infected people, or mother would call Biters, has never been seen in Corona. Rapunzel reached the other sidewalk, she twiddled the frying pan in her hand. Her thoughts had never flooded her head before, she missed her old life.

Rapunzel turned her head to the right, she heard a rough growling of a Tank engines. The moss green Tank went passed her, hot air blew onto her face when it did. Behind it is rows of military transport trucks following the Tank, Rapunzel held her breath keeping out the smoke before they turned left.

The growling of the Tank and the trucks slowly disappeared. Rapunzel went the opposite way from where the Tank went, she held her urge to skip along the sidewalk, thinking there was no need to be happy.

Then she heard voices of men, in front of her is a group of military running in lines. Rapunzel stepped aside to give them a space to run, when they passed none of them acknowledges her. But one of them did.

A handsome young man in military outfit, he noticed her on the corner of his eye. He looked hesitated, he stared from her to the group then to her again. The man approaches Rapunzel, his gun wrapped around his shoulder.

"I'm sorry ma'am, but you shouldn't be out here at this hoursâ€¦" The young man spoked.

Rapunzel was trapped in his gaze, she nodded her head momentarily "I'm sorry, I... Uh, aren't you a little young to be at the army?"

The man smiled "Most of us are, came from the same military school. But seriously though, it's not safe for civilians to be outside."

"Yes, of course. My name's Rapunzel." Rapunzel blurted out without knowing.

"Erâ€¦ The badge does say Eugene Fitzherbertâ€¦" The man said, he held up his golden badge with a mischievous smile "But you can call me Flynn Rider!"

Rapunzel giggled, her body seemed to work on her own "I'll just call you Eugene."

Eugene was more than pleased, he raised the front of his green army helmet with his thumb, signaling that it was his time to go.

Eugene regrouped with his teammates, they jogged out of sight.

Then Rapunzel decided too, it was time to go home. She stood in front of her front door, the time was 4 pm. She noticed the door is unlocked. Rapunzel began to feel wary, she turned the knob and opened the door inwards slowly. The lights were already on, she could've sworn she turned them off before she left. She went inside, she instantly went to the living room when she heard footsteps. Suspected it is a burglar, only to find Gothel staring invisible daggers at her.

"MOTHER!" Rapunzel screeched, she almost hit the antique vase with her elbow.

Gothel looked like she was going to strangle her, but then she groaned furiously "Close the door, dearâ€¦"

"Yâ€¦ Yes motherâ€¦" Rapunzel squeaked, she went back to the front door she closed the door and locked it.

Gothel eyed her from behind, she looked like she was waiting impatiently for an explanation.

Rapunzel took a gulp of breath and turned around to face her "Look, mother, I'm sorry I didn't stayed at home! I was just-"

"No! I don't want any of your excuses." Gothel snapped, her index finger pointed sharply at Rapunzel "I went home early hoping to find my daughter greet me, only to find a note saying you are out!"

To Rapunzel it was surprising how her step-mother looked similarly like a black panther, she always admired the black panthers on the NGC Wild channel. Rapunzel shrunk lower than she should have.

"Kids these days!" Gothel rubbed her temple in frustration "With the army roaming the streets, it's TWICE MORE DANGEROUS!"

"I thought they were here to protect usâ€¦?" Rapunzel covered her face in her long blonde hair.

"And I thought you weren't supposed to be roaming around!" Gothel spat back.

Rapunzel couldn't argue, she only looked down and said 'sorry' more times than she could count. Rapunzel played with her fingers, she wished her real mother was here to lecture her, then her thoughts came to Eugene.

Gothel sighed very sharply "Pack your bagsâ€¦ We're moving."

Rapunzel looked up quickly "What? Where?"

"To the Corona central, we'll be living in an apartment. I have called a trustable driver with a limo to pick you up, meanwhile since I have a lot on my plate I will be gone for two days." Gothel said.

Rapunzel sighed under her breath, even though Gothel wasn't thoroughly fair with her she wished her step-mother could spent some more time with her. Maybe someday Gothel can change for the greater good.

* * *

>SO obviously I am running out of ideas, that's why I am writing these flashback chapters... Instead of more author's note, how about a sneak peak for the later chapters I have been working on... You guys decide if you want these things to happen or not...

1. Aster is dead, stays dead

2. Hans is alive, becomes good

3. More characters from the Walt Disney/Dreamworks/Pixar movies

4. More deaths, you get choose the unlucky characters

5. Angst, angst everywhere

6. Fluffs, maybe a smidge but enough to get you guys happy

7. Betrayal, yes, betrayal

8. More Walkers, oh yes I'm adding more

9. Mavis

10. More villains, MUAHAHAHAHA!

So that's about it, you guys decide in the comments or send me a PM... Don't comment if you haven't thought it through...You're my favorites... Stay awesome... And like always... Review...

31. The Seperated

The billboard which connected to the last building and the next had fell down, crushing a few Walkers in the process.

Hiccup gained his breath, the experience of almost falling had been terrifying. He looked back and saw only 3 of his group was with him.

"Are you guysâ€¦. Okay?" There was a slur in his voice. His eyes traveled to the other building, Jack and the rest was separated from him.

Jack went to the edge of his building "WHAT DO WE DO NOW?!"

Hiccup can see the hopelessness in getting back together, he thought of the highway.

"WE'LL MEET AT THE HIGHWAY!" Hiccup screamed on the top of his lungs.

Jack turned to his group, they seemed to be thinking about it. Most of them nodded, Jack turned back to Hiccup and gave him an 'okay' gesture.

Hiccup exhaled sharply, he looked at his group. The girls had gained their strength, they seemed confused and shocked at the same time.

Hiccup went to Astrid first "Are you okay? Not feeling any pain?"

"No." Astrid said, she looked at him then at the far parts of the city "I think our destination might be a little bit too far, right?"

"If we can meet with them closer we will, but we can't really jump from roof to roof from here." Hiccup replied.

He turned to the other girls "Alright! We need to figure out how we can get out of here!"

They all scanned the area, Astrid saw two railings of a ladder which goes down. She called them all to follow her.

Astrid peeked her head to see the bottom of the ladder "It's clear, it's going down to another roof."

Astrid went headstrong, Hiccup followed her after, then the rest of the group. Hiccup knew Jack and his group is trying to go to the highway as well.

Astrid looked around, they were surrounded by buildings from three side and the other one side went down to the streets.

"Now what?" Elsa finally said.

Hiccup walked past Astrid then to the edge, it was a high jump down "Streets clear thoughâ€¦" Hiccup informed them.

He peeked to his right, and on the side of the next building he saw an open window "In here!"

Hiccup let the girls jumped in first so they don't slip and fall, after Astrid is in it was Hiccup's turn. He carefully put his right leg on the window sill, Astrid went to grab his arm to prevent him from falling.

Just at that moment, his peg-leg slipped the sill making Astrid gasped. His heart jumped and his chest felt a searing pain as it collided against the sill, his arm was still being held by Astrid. The others saw them and immediately went to help.

But Hiccup was too heavy to heave by both the girls and the sill. The sill broke in half, Hiccup is falling to his back as his arm slipped away from the girls' grab.

"HICCUP!" They screamed.

Hiccup landed with a release of air from his lung, his back when 'thud' when it contacted with the sidewalk. Unfortunately rather than passing out and not remembering the pain, Hiccup is widely awake and felt his backside and shoulder had cracked.

Hiccup whimpered "The Gods hate meâ€¦"

Three heads went out of the window, but Hiccup's head is still stinging and his eyes were still blurry.

"Oh my god! Are you okay?!" Elsa shrieked in fear.

Ruffnut went to her shoulder "That 'thud' was so loud!" She was fine.

"Hang on! We'll be down there in a minute!" Astrid said before leaving the scene.

Hiccup lifted his head off the sidewalk, he tried not to shake it so much because the ringing is still in his head. He rolled to his front, he pushed himself of the ground. Even the process was painful, his shoulders refused to move anywhere other than down.

As he stood up, he looked around. There is no Walkers in sight, his right arm is fortunately okay so it held the other left tightly. Hiccup strode painfully down the street, his ears picked up something.

On his left was an alley, and without warning. Something pounced him in the shoulders, Hiccup felt he was being dragged by two hands to the alley.

He had just about enough.

Before the person could dragged him deeper, he flicked his switchblade and swung it backwards. But surprisingly the attacker blocked his attack, Hiccup felt something covering his whole mouth. And it wasn't a hand.

"Shhhhâ€¦.." Said the attacker.

Hiccup arched his brow, outside the alley he heard moaning and grunting. Then one by one Walker's went passed them unnoticed, the sunlight began to be covered completely.

"Come hereâ€¦" The man lifted the object off of Hiccup's mouth.

Hiccup's eyes widened when he saw his forearm had been replaced by cylinder, the back of his shirt was tugged backwards.

Hiccup stood up, but he hissed in pain when he felt his back stinging.

In front of him, the cloaked figure noticed him. He took of his hood, surprisingly his serious face was very clean as if no dirt had touched it. His glossy orange hair gleamed in the darkness.

"Come on, we don't have much time." The man hissed, he looked behind Hiccup and looked very white.

Hiccup then realized the man was staring at Walker's closing in on them, Hiccup took no time to think. He jogged passed the man, and he followed Hiccup.

They came out to another street, it wasn't infested as much as the last one. Hiccup saw the nearest Walker, its teeth are black and its eyes were sunken. Hiccup quickly sunk his switchblade through its eyes.

Hiccup and the stranger ran passed the others, they managed to escaped. Though Hiccup still hasn't knew the man's name, but it doesn't matter to him now.

They stopped when they got inside a house, the man locked the door behind him.

"Thanks man, but you didn't have to save meâ€¦" Hiccup began.

"You got bit?" The man suddenly said, he stared daggers at Hiccup.

"No!" Hiccup defended "No, I fell off a windowsill."

The man's eyes wandered to the house, his good hand went to his robes and took out a Walther PPK with a silencer and pointed it right at Hiccup.

Hiccup could not believe it "What the hell, man?!"

"Arms up!" The man snapped "Arms! Up!"

Hiccup lowered his gaze, he raised both his hands on the side of his face. One hand still holding the switchblade.

The man observed him "Where's the rest of you?"

"Nowhere, there's only m-PKOW!â€¦"

Hiccup's sentence was cut by the orange haired man's gun shooting the roof above him, Hiccup closed his eyes trying to hold down his rage.

"Now. Where's your group?" The man repeated sourly "You think I would've believed you survived out here with just a pair of jeans, a white shirt, a switchblade, and a really stinky underwear?" The man scoffed.

Something about him reminded Hiccup of Gothel.

"I saw the black vehicle, where did you park it?" The man asked again.

"That was not me! I got here earlier before them!" Hiccup said.

The man realized something, he laughed "Of course! The helicopter! Oh my God, I could've sworn I was dreaming. So I was right, then? There are more of you?"

Hiccup let out a sigh "There is only me, I lost a lot since my helicopter crashed. My friend died flying it. I survived by looting the town for a couple of days." Hiccup lied.

The man raised his eyebrow, he looked like he is convinced "Then you're going to help me with somethingâ€¦"

"Yeah, I sure as hell won't. So you can go fuck yourself." Hiccup cussed.

The man grinned wickedly "I don't think we got to know each other! My name's Hans, and you are?" Hans cocked his PPK to him tauntingly.

Hiccup could not tell Hans his nickname, he thought for a while "Henry Harrisonâ€¦"

"Well, Henry." Hans began, his smile most evil "You're going to be much good for me."

* * *

>Astrid strolled around the house nervously with her hand on her chin, the other two girls Ruffnut and Elsa watched her walked around in a circle for at least 36 times.

"Astridâ€¦" Elsa sighed.

"We can make a diversion or something, draw them away so Hiccup can run back here." Astrid said hesitantly.

"Alright, stop!" Elsa raised her voice, she went to hold Astrid by her shoulders.

"AND WHAT?!" Astrid snapped, her voice is now similar of a lion's roar "LET HICCUP DIE?! HE'S STILL OUT THERE YOU PRICK!"

"I know Hiccup is alive!"

Astrid seemed to calm down a little.

"He's fine! He's stronger than all of us, all you have to do is to just trust him!" Elsa told her strictly.

Astrid shrugged "I do trust him, I only fear for the worst!" Astrid's shoulders dropped "You- You're rightâ€¦ I shouldn't have overreacted, the last time I did that it backfired very horribly."

"Uh, guys?" Ruffnut suddenly said.

Astrid and Elsa looked at her, then there was a dull thud downstairs. The thudding became very noisy as if the Walkers are pounding against it.

"We need to leave!" Elsa said.

Astrid felt her hand being dragged by Elsa, they jumped out of the same window they went into. On the streets the Walkers had noticed them and began to wall up against the side of the building.

Elsa stopped Ruffnut before she went up the same ladder that got them there in the first place.

"We're trapped!" Astrid exclaimed, her hands fisted her hair.

* * *

>Jack led his group up and down the roofs of Arendelle, he helped his teammates up the roof if it were too high.

Jack looked around the top of the building, the breeze went through his ears.

Jack saw a ladder going down "Look! Shortcut!"

Jack peeked down from the edge of the roof, the ladder went down to a side stairs with metal gratings as floors.

Jack went down first, his group followed behind him. Jack went headstrong, he arrived at the end of the stairs which is followed by a ladder going to an alley corner.

Jack led his men down the streets, it was clear. There was no Walker there.

"Alright, now all we need to do fro here is reunite with Hic's group." Jack said aloud. He walked down the street. The grey environment made it more quiet and suspenseful.

Jack saw a figure coming out from the corner of the street, a tall man wearing a black cap and a duffel bag around his shoulder. The man saw Jack and his group, both of them froze in bewilderment beforeâ€¦

"Wha- WAIT!" Jack held out his arm as the man started to run "Stop him!"

Anna sped out, she pointed her Fedorov at him. Her finger on the trigger, ready to shoot.

"NO!" Kristoff went up to her and lifted the gun off her face. BLAAMMM! The Fedorov goes.

The man suddenly dropped to his knees "Stop! Stop! Stop! I give up!" Though the bullet missed, the man looked like he had just been hit in the shins.

Anna lowered the gun, she looked at Kristoff who is staring at the strange man.

The man stopped talking, then he added "Can- can I leave now?"

Anna felt something hit the back of her brain, she cocked an eyebrow "Hey, turn aroundâ€¦"

The man peeked from his shoulder, he stared at them in confusion.

"Oh my godâ€¦" Anna breathed out when she realized "I know youâ€¦"

The man went more bewildered, he stared at Anna. His face is now filled with comfort, the man hesitated to stand up at first but at the end he did.

Jack went up to Anna "Who is this guy?"

"I don't knowâ€¦" Anna told him. Jack raised his eyebrow, then Anna added quickly "I saw him before, but, I don't know his name."

"Tadashi!" The man suddenly said "My name is Tadashi Hamada. Er, for your informationâ€¦" Tadashi continued.

"Anna." Anna said, she is still somewhat wary of Tadashi's presence.

"You're the person who has that car?" Rapunzel asked.

Tadashi opened his mouth, he seemed to be thinking about his words "Yes, I have a car. There's nothing there! I only came here to scavenge food for supplies!"

Jack felt that something odd is going on "Supplies for who?"

Tadashi realized his mistake "Gosh darn it, Callaghan is going to kill meâ€¦. I live in this walled place my friends and I call home, it's one of the only thing we've got these days."

"That'sâ€¦ That's good, right?" Kristoff said.

"Yeah, but I don't want him to think we want to steal it from them." Jack said so Tadashi couldn't hear, the he turned to Tadashi himself "Do you think your leader could save us and another four some spot to stay for a while?"

"Youâ€¦ Want to stay with us? You're not tricking me into letting you there and rob us, right?" Tadashi said suspiciously.

"No! Of course not!" Anna began "Oh my god, I am SO sorry! I almost shot you!"

"Twice, actuallyâ€¦" Tadashi muttered, he swept of the dust off of his grey jacket "But it's okay. And about the empty rooms, I guess I could save up some place for someone and his friends who didn't kill me."

Anna nodded in abashed.

"But, food's running low. And I left my car a few streets back. Maybe you can start paying taxes?" Tadashi rested both his arms on his hips.

"Right, thank youâ€¦" Rapunzel bowed.

"We'll get right to it, right after we fetch..." Kristoff stopped, his ears picked up something.

Jack turned his head to the horizon "Did you hear that?"

Anna made a quick circle "Hear what?"

Another faint sound was heard "That! This way!" Jack told them.

Tadashi opened his mouth but his words are stopped by the group suddenly running past him "Ooh boyâ€¦"

End
file.